Pennsylvania DHIA's Downsizing, Programs Provide Positive Outlook

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The annual meeting of the Pennsylvania DHIA was held Friday of last week with a positive outlook expressed. The organization paid off $600,000 in debt from cash flow and new programs such as Milk Urea Nitrogen (MUN) testing, and Performance Economics have taken off better than expected.

"There has and will continue to be a need to provide services and products that meet the individual dairymen's needs," President Lane Sollenberger said in his report to the membership. "We've dramatically down-sized the organization in many areas, including office space, employees, and type of employees; for example, non-union employees in the lab. This has cut costs significantly and has allowed us to make tremendous strides in paying back the indebtedness of the organization without increasing testing rates at the same rate. If we had to pay back our debt at this aggressive rate over the past year without cost cutting measures, I'm afraid PA DHIA would either no longer exist, or be unaffordable to many of our members.

The process of down-sizing has not been without its problems, and we realize that. But management and your board continue to be committed to making PA DHIA affordable and an essential tool to profitable dairying into the 21st century."

In the general manager's report, Dave Slusser said this year of turn around was mainly due to the cost cutting moves of 1994. This greatly improved the organization's bottom line.

"The new services are designed to help our members save money and operate more efficient farm operations. Slusser said, "PA DHIA is responsible for introducing to Pennsylvania dairymen 15 cents per cow MUN analysis, and the MUN herd summary report. We believe very strongly in this program and how it can save money for our members. We wanted to keep the cost of the prog-

More Than 110 Participate In All-Breeds Dairy Convention

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The first annual Pennsylvania Junior All-Breeds Dairy Convention was held last weekend in State College with more than 110 young people, leaders and extension agents participating.

Youth associated with all the major dairy breeds were present.

The convention started with a pizza party and social on Friday evening, followed Saturday morning with several workshops on reading pedigrees, judging cows, milking equipment, dairy nutrition, animal byproducts and cattle photography.

Older students attended workshops about biotechnology, reproductive physiology, forage particle size and pH, and designing effective advertising programs.

After lunch, Jayne Sebright and Rebecca Sonnen from Mid-Atlantic Milk Marketing Association gave a brief overview of dairy promotion activities.

Convention participants then designed and filmed their own commercials.

Winners of the milk commercial contest were Rebecca Comman, Becky Kilgore, David Blake, Cris Wood, Melissa Wertz, Stephanie Pomraning, Korey Zimmerman, Jonathan McMurray, J.D. Kelly, and Dante Chess.

Also held Saturday afternoon was a dairy management quiz contest. First place at the first-ever convention quiz contest was a team consisting of Lauren Daubert, Jennifer McMillen, Emily Norman and Erica Lloyd.

Two teams tied for second. One team consisted of Mary Morrow,

WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming Co.) — Number 1 in the catalog, a November 1995 Blackstar calf out of an Excellent Leadman, topped the Pennsylvania Holstein Sale here Thursday night at $5,000.

Held in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's annual convention, the sale highlighted the opening day's activities that bring together Holstein enthusiasts from across the state.

The top-selling calf, Passion RC Matt Margie-ET, was consigned by Matthew Senita, from Wattsburg, and was purchased by Gisela Olsen from Avenel, N.J.

The three nearest dams were all Excellent with records to 40,780m, 1,823f, 1,356p. The dam is first in Pennsylvania for fat and third for protein as a 2-year-old.

Penn-Cal Celsius Jingle-ET, a June 1995 heifer consigned by Lester Poust, Muncy, sold to Christopher Raney, State College,

Growers Should Watch For Potential Fruit Rot Diseases This Season

Dr. Jim Travis, Penn State plant pathologist, second from left, spoke about the potential for orchard problems this year with peach fruit rots to 70 growers at the Penn State-sponsored York/Lancaster County Tree Fruit Growers' Educational Meeting on Wednesday at the Farm and Home Center. The meetings continue the next few weeks in several other regions of Pennsylvania. From left, Brenda Beleski Briggs, director of the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board; Travis; Dr. Rob Crassweller, Penn State pomologist; Phil Pitzer, PDA Region VI agronomic products inspector; and Dr. Carl Felland, Penn State entomologist.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — To control new disease challenges in peaches, a plant pathologist told growers that "it's important you identify the disease properly so you know what the control should be."

Dr. Jim Travis, Penn State plant pathologist, spoke about the potential for orchard problems this year with peach fruit rots to 70 growers at the Penn State-sponsored York/Lancaster County Tree Fruit Growers' Educational Meeting on Wednesday at the Farm and Home Center. The meetings continue the next few weeks in several other regions of Pennsylvania.

Travis indicated last year an area grower experienced 'substantial damage" with peach fruit rot that affected half an orchard's fruit.

There are are three different diseases that growers should be aware of this year: brown rot, peach anthracnose, and Rhizopus fruit

1996 Dairy Of Distinction Applications Sought

KINGSTON (Luzerne Co.) — Do you take pride in maintaining your dairy farm? Does your dairy farm project an attractive, wholesome image to consumers? If so, the Dairy of Distinction Program of New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania will consider your farm for the program's annual recognition awards.

The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program was first started in 1983 to recognize the hard work and dedication of the farmers who maintained attractive farms. The purpose of the program is to instill a greater sense of con-

North Atlantic Shell Eggs

Atlanta, Ga.

PRICES TO RETAILERS IN THE PHILADELPHIA AREA WERE UNCHANGED TO HIGHER, PRICES TO PRODUCERS WERE HIGHER IN NEW ENGLAND, AND THE BALANCE OF PRICES WERE UNCHANGED. THE MARKET TONE WAS STEADY TO FIRM. DEMAND CONTINUED TO COVER A WIDE RANGE, AND WAS BEST WHERE FEATURED. SUPPLIES WERE NO MORE THAN ADEQUATE, AND HELD WITH CONFIDENCE. BREAKING STOCK SUPPLIES WERE GENERALLY ADEQUATE FROM REGULAR SOURCES, AND THE UNDERTONE WAS FULLY STEADY.

PHILADELPHIA: PRICES TO RETAILERS, SALES TO VOLUME BUYERS, USDA GRADE A AND GRADE A WHITE EGGS IN CARTONS, DELIVERED STORE DOOR, CENTS PER DOZEN: EXTRA LARGE .83½ -.91, LARGE .81½ -.89, MEDIUM .76½ -.85.

NY Phil Frozen Eggs

FEBRUARY 16, 1996

Prices were unchanged to higher for yolks, and unchanged on the balance. The market tone was steady to fully steady on all products. Buyer inquiry continued to increase, particularly following recent shell egg price increases. Moderate trading consisted of both full and less-than-trucklot volumes. Floor stocks were no more than adequate. Breaking stock costs were higher. Edible liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending February 10, 1996 were 14% less than last week, and 13% less than the same week last year.

FEBRUARY 21, 1996

Trucklot buying interest was light. Offerings were fully adequate for the unaggressive buyer interest. Planned retail promotional activity has stimulated some additional purchases but dealers were concerned about consumer reaction. Movement was presently disappointing and with the last week of the month optimism was at a premium. The market tone was weak and unsettled.

PRICES PAID PER POUND, ICE PACKED AND CO2 PACKED BROILER/FRYER PARTS, DELIVERED TO FIRST RECEIVERS IN POOL TRUCKLOT AND TRUCKLOT QUANTITIES.

New York Egg Market

FEBRUARY 21, 1996

Prices were higher. The market tone was steady to firm. Demand remained mixed across the full range, and was best where retail specials were in progress or planned. Supplies were usually adequate and confidently offered or held. The New York state inventory was 15% less than last week, and the New Jersey inventory was unchanged from last Monday.

Delmarva Broiler

FEBRUARY 21, 1996

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was about moderate; however offerings were often noted as in excess, particularly on the heavier sizes. Live supplies were moderate to occasionally heavy. Weights were mostly desirable to heavier than desired. Processing schedules were moderate to heavy, instances light. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 50 to 62 cents. Trade sentiment was barely steady to weak. In the parts complex, all items were fully sufficient for the light and unaggressive buying interest.

National Egg Market

FEBRUARY 20, 1996

Prices were higher on the West Coast, and unchanged to higher in all other areas. The market tone was steady to firm. Demand ranged fair to good, mostly moderate, and best where featured. Supplies were generally balanced or available and maintained confidently. Breaking stock supplies were usually adequate under a fully steady to firm trade sentiment, and prices paid for current negotiations were unchanged to higher. Light hen offerings were generally sufficient for the no better than moderate plant inquiries.

E. PA & NJ Poultry

FEBRUARY 20, 1996

Final majority price was unchanged when compared to a week earlier. The undertone was slightly more cautious but still generally steady. Offerings for this week were at least adequate to plentiful for a mostly light to moderate demand.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
FEBRUARY 21, 1996

Wheat bids began climbing upward again due to continued crop concerns. Corn bids were slightly lower on profit taking and lack of new export orders. Soybean bids showed no real direction, Kansas City was slightly higher on wheat strength but slowed export sales limited gains. Wheat 2 to 3 cents higher with Portland up to 10 cents higher. Corn 2 to 4 cents lower. Sorghum 4 to 5 cents lower. Soybeans mixed. Traders concerns over winter wheat condition after last month's very cold spell, pushed bids higher. Damage to crops has not been assessed fully but Illinois reported deterioration from the cold spell. Sharp declines yesterday were seen as overdone and some corrections were made. Export business has been very slow the past couple of weeks but grains inspected for export figures came in better than expected yesterday for year to date and last week. Slightly lower corn bids were due to profit taking on the board. Export demand has been very good over the past few week's, limiting declines. Soybean bids couldn't decide which direction to go with wheat higher and corn weaker. Some fund buying was noted in today's trade, offering light support. Improved demand for soybean meal kept bids from falling too far but lack of foreign interest was negative.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

FEB. 26-MARCH 3, 1996

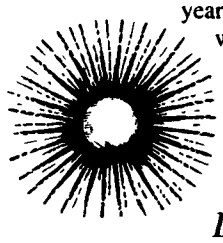
LEAP YEAR!

February 29, 1996, is a Leap Day, or an "intercalary day," this year being evenly divisible by 4. Contrary to popular belief, leap years do not occur every four years. Century years — 1900, 2000, etc. — are only Leap Years if they are divisible by 400. So, for instance, the year 2000 will be a Leap Year, but the year 1900 was not. While we're at it, we offer this additional calendar reminder: the year 2000 will not be the 21st century, so don't jump the gun. Technically, the new millennium begins on New Year's 2001. "Leapin' lizards!"



Look before you leap.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ If your dog has an unfortunate encounter with a skunk, try a dog shampoo of equal parts vinegar and water.

SPINACH FRITTATA

1 clove garlic, minced
1 small onion, minced
4 tablespoons olive oil, divided
6 eggs
1 cup bread crumbs
1 cup cooked spinach, chopped and drained
1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley (do not substitute dry)
1/4 teaspoon oregano
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
salt & pepper to taste

Sauté garlic and onion in 2 tablespoons of the oil in a large skillet. In a bowl, beat the eggs then add remaining ingredients, including remaining olive oil. Pour this over the onion and garlic in the skillet and cook over low heat, until edges pull away from the pan. Brown under the broiler to finish the cooking. Serve hot, topped with additional grated cheese.

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

A year of snow, crops will grow.

Corn is as comfortable under the snow as an old man under his fur coat.

– Russian proverb

When March comes in like a lion, it goes out like a lamb. When it comes in like a lamb, it goes out like a lion.

OPINION

Cure "Bellyfulitis" Before Starvation Sets In

A new report by a prestigious research committee of the National Academy of Sciences has found that the great majority of naturally occurring and synthetic food chemicals present in the human diet "occur at levels far too low to have any adverse effects on health."

Carcinogens and anticarcinogens in the Human Diet, released February 15 and produced by 20 of the nation's leading scientific experts in biochemistry, toxicology, risk assessment, food and nutrition, affirms that a balanced diet rich in fruits and vegetables — and low in calories and fat — is the best way for consumers to reduce the risk of cancer.

Committee chairman Dr. Ronald W. Estabrook, a biochemist from the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center, said, "If Americans are concerned about cancer, then they should be concerned about calories and fat." Noting the public's concern over chemicals, he also said that "regulation has been very effective at keeping synthetic chemicals at a very low level" in the American diet.

Jay Vroom, president of the American Crop Protection Association, said, "This is a victory for common sense and the American consumer, who has suffered needlessly over the years from 'health-scare' reports generated by groups opposed to modern, safe agricultural technology."

Vroom also pointed out that the Academy's findings underscore what former U.S. Surgeon General Dr. C. Everett Koop has said, that "our food supply is not only the safest, but it is the most abundant in the world, and pesticides are one of the important tools that have made that abundance possible."

From the chemist's lab to the farmer's field and onto the American table, the U.S. food safety system protects our entire food supply through rigorous testing and the careful use of modern agricultural technology. Each Environmental Protection Agency-registered pesticide undergoes at least 120 separate tests designed to determine human health, safety and environmental effects. On average, only one in 20,000 chemicals ever makes it from the laboratory through testing and EPA registation to the farmer's field. Pesticide development, testing and EPA registration take eight to 10 years to complete and costs manufacturers $50 million or more per crop protection product.

The irony of all this discussion is that life expectancy continues to lengthen for Americans. The number of people who live past 100 years has dramatically increased. Actually, the problem with the food supply from American farmers is not that it is full of chemicals. The problem with the food supply is that it is so abundant. This abundant food supply causes "bellyfulitis," a disease expressed by complaints through a full mouth by someone who has never faced food rationing.

We can only hope that this American disease is cured in the opponents of agriculture before starvation sets in.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Participate In Nutrient Management Hearings

The State Soil Conservation Commission will be holding hearings on the proposed nutrient management regulations in March. The hearings give people the opportunity to present testimony on the proposed regulations.

Those wishing to give oral testimony at one of the public hearings must contact Karl Brown, State Conservation Commission, Room 304, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, 2301 North Cameron St., Harrisburg, PA 17110, (717) 787-8821 at least one week before the hearing.

Oral testimony will be limited to 10 minutes for each witness. Also, three written copies of the oral testimony must be submitted at the hearing.

Written comments may also be submitted to the State Conservation Commission at the above address before March 29, 1996. The public hearings are scheduled for March 4, Somerset County Vo-Tech; March 5, Mercer County Cooperative Extension Office; March 6, Brynwood Inn, Lewisburg; and March 11, Farm and Home Center, Lancaster.

Now is the time to participate in the regulatory process and make your thoughts known.

To Check For Termites

According to Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent, you can prevent termite damage to your home if you know when to check for signs, what to look for, and whom to contact for help.

March is when you should inspect around your house and buildings. Examine the area where the foundation meets the siding. Check under the porch, in the basement, and in crawl spaces for signs of termites.

What are the signs? Look for telltale mud tubes. Since termites die when exposed to air, they build tubes to pass from the soil where they live to the building where they feed on wood. These tubes look like long streams of mud about one fourth inch in diameter running up basement walls or along foundations.

Examine wood closely. Even if the wood shows no damage, knock on it to see if it is solid. Termites could be inside wood that looks fine on the outside.

If you think you may have termites, call in a professional pest control service to confirm your findings and to set up a treatment plan.

To Select All-American Seed Varieties

As you read through the seed catalogs that have arrived in the mail or one of the many gardening magazines available, you may see a new variety of flower or type of vegetable that you have never grown before.

Your next thought may be, "Will this type of plant grow in my yard?" and "Which variety should I plant?"

Dr. Tim Elkner, extension horticultural agent, says the answer to the first question is to read the variety description closely or to consult a good garden book for further information. He says the answer to the second question is to select an "All-American Selection" if one is available. This signifies that the plant has performed well throughout the country in various test locations.

All-American Selections are judged by an independent organization of volunteers that evaluate new seed selections for growth and productivity. By choosing one of these selections, your chances of having success with a new type of plant are increased.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "Excellence is an attitude that says good can be better."

A BIT LIKE JESUS

February 25, 1996

Background Scripture:
Ruth 2 through 4
Devotional Reading:
Ruth 2:14-20

A friend of ours told us of an incident that took place some years ago when she was driving from Dallas to Austin. Out on the open highway one of her tires blew out and she had to pull off to the side of the road. Although she knew how to change a tire, she was unable to unscrew any of the lugnuts on the wheel.

"Lord, send me someone to help!" she breathed. A number of cars went whizzing by, but soon a dilapidated pickup truck pulled to a stop just in front of hers. Seeing it, she felt a sense of great relief, but when two young men alighted from the car, her heart sank. The word "hippies" flashed in her mind, for they were long-haired and bearded.

Her fears, however, proved unfounded for the two young men were polite and had her tire changed within minutes. She offered them a 20-dollar bill in appreciation, but they refused. As they drove away, they wished her "a safe trip." "My previous image of hippies had not been very positive," she told us. "What a surprise, then to find that, while several well-dressed people passed me by, the answer to my prayer came in the form of two bearded hippies who despite their appearance, weren't anything like what I expected. Actually," she admitted, "they looked a bit like Jesus."

BEARDS & LONG HAIR

In the story of Ruth there is no physical description of either Ruth or Boaz, but in our minds we tend to picture them as attractive people. Ruth, because she was so loyal to Naomi and willing to work hard to provide for the two of them. Boaz, because he was so kind to Ruth — for, after all, she was a foreigner, a Moabitess. Whereas needy local women were granted the privilege of gleaning, picking up the leavings left by the harvesters (Leviticus 19:9,10), it was not a kindness granted to foreigners. In fact, as a foreign woman gleaning in an Israelite's grain field, she might very well be molested by the laborers.

But Boaz bestowed great kindness upon Ruth even though she was a foreigner. Why? "All that you have done for your mother-in-law since the death of your husband," said Boaz, "has been fully told me, and how you left your father and mother and your native land and come to a people you did not know before" (2:11). Boaz treated Ruth with kindness because he had heard of her great kindness to Naomi, his kinswoman. One did not expect kindness from a foreigner, but Ruth did all and more than any Israelite daughter-in-law might have done. So, as Naomi's being an Israelite did not keep Ruth from being kind to her, so Ruth's being a Moabitess did not stop Boaz from being kind to her.

A CYCLE OF KINDNESS

In many cultures today we see between religious and ethnic groups a hostility and vengeance that's been passed on from one generation to another. The cycle of hatred spirals on and on and it is almost impossible to break the cycle. But kindness can work the same way. One act of kindness can inspire another kind act and our daily lives can be opportunities from keeping those cycles alive and well.

When Eugene Debs was imprisoned as a conscientious objector, he became interested in a fellow prisoner, an Afro-American who other inmates claimed was incorrigible. Debs started a campaign of kindness toward the black inmate, leaving an orange on the man's bed and going off without a word. Despite many rebuffs, the two eventually became firm friends. Years later when he learned that Debs had died, the fellow inmate, now a useful citizen, commented, "He was the only Jesus Christ I ever knew."

How wonderful if someone could say that of us!

FORCE 1.5G Protects Your Crop, Is Safe For The Environment

FORCE® 1.5G is the #1 dealer-recommended soil insecticide in the Northeast. FORCE offers outstanding protection against a broad spectrum of soil-borne insect pests, including Northern and Western corn rootworms, cutworm and wireworm.

Other benefits include:

- ▲ Low toxicity to mammals and birds
- ▲ No impact on earthworm populations
- ▲ Compatibility with Accent, Beacon and Broadstrike herbicides and other post-applied herbicides.
- ▲ Less leaching potential than other soil insecticides

Here's what Northeast growers are saying about FORCE:

Clarence Keener, Jr
Manheim, PA

"We enter state and national Corn Grower Association yield contests every year — so protecting our crop from insect pests is important to us Two of our entries in '95 were 197 and 202 bushels per acre

"We've used FORCE for the past three years on 100 acres of corn It has worked well at controlling rootworms We haven't seen any in all the time that we've used it

"The safety of FORCE is a consideration Other products such as Furadan can kill birds FORCE doesn't

"I also like the fact that using FORCE doesn't restrict our post herbicide applications Lambsquarters, velvetleaf and pigweed are the problem broadleaves on our farm We sometimes have problems with foxtails, fall panicum and other grasses

"At times, we've had to go in with a tankmix of Accent, Banvel and atrazine for a rescue treatment With FORCE, we've got the freedom to use any post product that's needed — without worrying about the insecticide interacting with the herbicide"

Consistent Performance You Can Trust

FORCE 1 5G has received excellent rootworm ratings from Cornell University

Cornell Four-Year Average Rootworm Trials

T-Band Treatment	Rate/ 1000	4 Year Average
FORCE 1 5G	8	2 39
Counter 15G	8	2 68
Lorsban 15G	8	2 89
Untreated checks		4 25

Average trials completed at both the Tully and Freeville locations (1992–1995) Rates are expressed as oz product per 1000 row feet

With FORCE insecticide, you can control the rootworms that cause this damage

DAYCO SUPER II V-BELTS

Now there's a belt that beats the toughest drive problems.

Many heavy-duty industrial machines demand more than conventional wrapped v-belts can stand Their punishing drives make ordinary belts crack under pressure The result unnecessary and expensive downtime

Now there s a solution to the consistent costly problem of replacing or retensioning belts It s the revolutionary new Super II™ v-belt from Dayco The Super II belt was designed specifically for the most brutal applications And its performance blows the cover off conventional wrapped belts

In heavy torque high horsepower and extreme shock load comparisons it's not even a contest The Super II v-belt is stronger more flexible and lasts far longer

Innovative design & construction provide extra strength and stamina

The secret to the Super II v-belt's durability is its unique construction The central position of the polyester cords in the neoprene rubber core provides greater strength, balance and longer life Multiple fabric plies top and bottom enhance flexibility And Dayco's unique raw-edged construction gives it a better grip for controlled slippage

These attributes combined make the Super II belt superior to conventional wrapped belts in every way

Test the Super II v-belt on your toughest drive

The Super II v-belt was field-tested for two years on the most severe applications rock quarry shaker screens lumber mill tree debarkers and pipe deacalers In every case, it outperformed conventional wrapped belts by a wide margin But the only test that really counts is the one you do on your own equipment

Try the Super II belt on your toughest drive problem You'll be so amazed by its incredible endurance that you'll want to put it on all your drives In fact we're so sure you'll be pleased with the performance of the Super II v-belt that in the unlikely event you're not satisfied, we'll refund the original purchase price, or replace it with a conventional wrapped v-belt

Dayco s unique raw-edged belt sidewalls grip pulleys better minimising belt slip noise and drive vibration
Hi modulus polyester cord located in the belt mid-section is specially treated to maintain extreme belt loads & shock without stretching Multiple fabric plies reduce stress on the load-carrying center cord allow greater flexibility 'A' belts have three plies top and bottom 'B" belts have four and 'C' belts have five
Special 100% neoprene rubber compound supports cord more evenly top and bottom dissipates heat more easily and provides more oil heat and ozone resistance

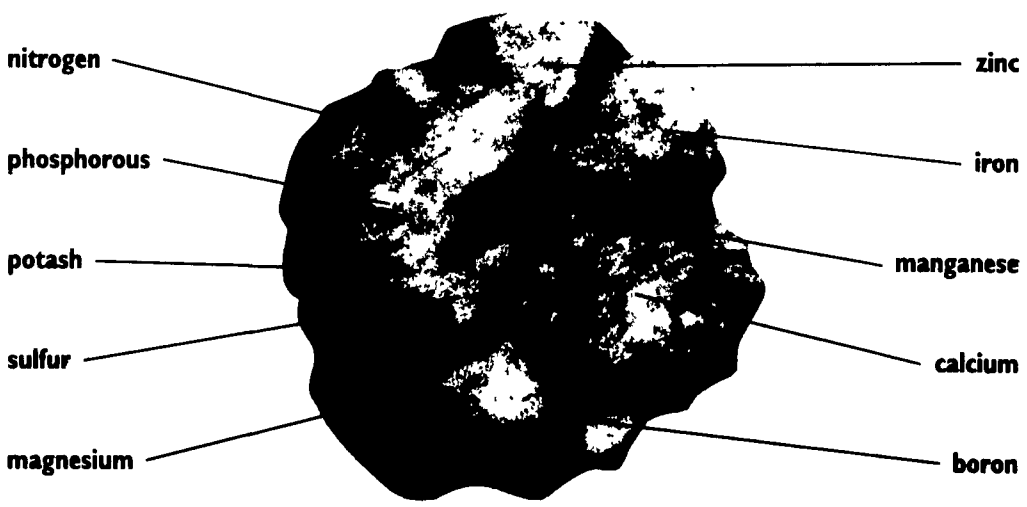
Lebanon Extra Plant Food

For over 47 years, farmers have been choosing Lebanon Extra for premium homogeneous/ammoniated plant food. Lebanon Extra is ideal for use in row applications where nutrient safety and consistency is crucial to yields. And its homogeneous/ ammoniated granules offer superior performance over so-called "Custom-formulated" blends.



A blend of raw materials can result in uneven feeding. Unlike homogeneous/ammoniated granules which deliver all the primary nutrients and micronutrients in each particle — ensuring even distribution for consistent performance.

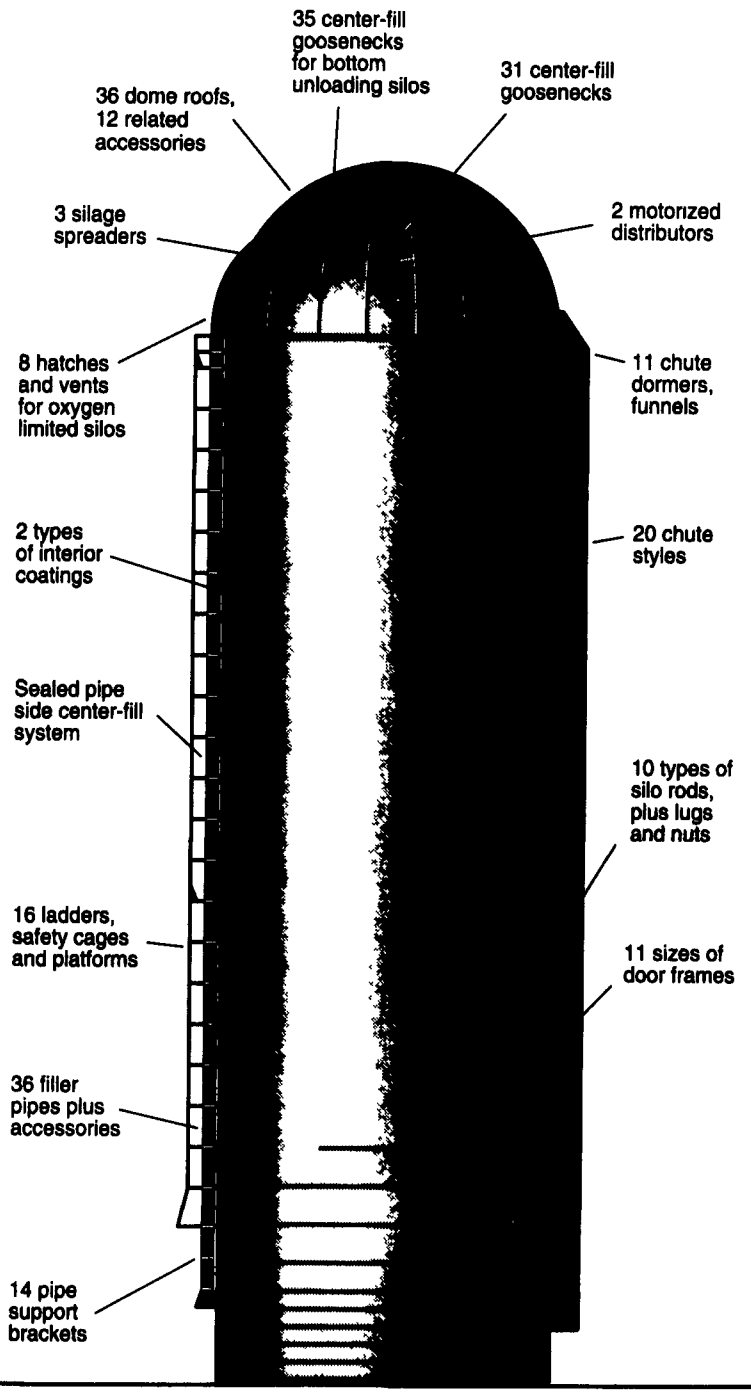
For silo equipment, think "Lancaster"

No other name gives you so many value-packed silo products for filling and construction.



35 center-fill goosenecks for bottom unloading silos
31 center-fill goosenecks
36 dome roofs, 12 related accessories
3 silage spreaders
2 motorized distributors
8 hatches and vents for oxygen limited silos
11 chute dormers, funnels
2 types of interior coatings
20 chute styles
Sealed pipe side center-fill system
10 types of silo rods, plus lugs and nuts
16 ladders, safety cages and platforms
11 sizes of door frames
36 filler pipes plus accessories
14 pipe support brackets

The steel products on your silos have to be tougher than nails if they're going to last. That's why more dairymen trust Lancaster silo equipment for lasting value from top to bottom.

Thirty years ago we invented the silage spreader as the best way to fill silos. But maybe you don't know just how many products we make. If your concrete or steel upright storage system needs parts and equipment, Lancaster makes it.

We use good ideas from practical farmers like you to constantly make our products work better and last longer. You see, with us the job is more than just bending metal. It's using the best materials and dedicated craftsmanship to give you more value for every equipment dollar.

For silo equipment, do yourself a favor. Insist on Lancaster for every item.

Grazing Conference Reminder

The 1996 Pennsylvania Grazing Conference and Trade Show will be held Wednesday and Thursday, March 6 and 7, at the Embers in Carlisle, Pa. The Embers is located on route 11, about 1/2 mile east of I-81. This is the second year for the event, sponsored by the Grazing Research and Education Center in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences and the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council. The purpose of the conference is to present useful and current information to a wide range of people interested in grazing.

Featured speaker for this year's conference is Dave Forgey, a highly successful grazier and Hoard's Dairyman columnist from Indiana. Other speakers from outside Pennsylvania are Jim Green, Agronomist from North Carolina, and Danny Fox, Beef Nutrition and Management Specialist from Cornell.

On Wednesday morning, Dave Forgey will talk about his transition from confinement housing to grazing, and about his plans for the future. In the afternoon he will focus on putting all the pieces of a successful grazing system together. Jim Green will talk about the principals of grazing management. In the morning, and again in the afternoon, people can attend one of three breakout sessions to hear experienced graziers and other experts discuss their experiences with: a) watering systems, b) fencing systems, and about c) paddock and lane layouts. That evening, a panel of four graziers will discuss animal behavior as it relates to grazing.

Thursday morning, Danny Fox will talk about raising dairy heifers and beef on pasture, and Jim Green will focus on fine tuning a controlled grazing system In the morning, people can attend two of three breakout sessions on: a.) hot season grazing, b) raising dairy heifers on grass, and c) raising beef on pasture. That afternoon, they can attend one of three sessions on: a) leader/follower groups, b) calf raising on pasture, and c) low cost milking systems

Registration is limited to about 400 people, and can be made by completing and returning the the clip out form, below. The registration fee includes lunch and conference proceedings.

200 Attend New Holland Vegetable Day

Improved Stand, Less Weeds Possible With No-Till Transplanter

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Tomato and other vegetable growers could realize enormous cost and labor savings — in addition to improved soil erosion control — by replacing plastic mulch with a natural mulch.

A method of using no-tilled tomatoes planted into a hairy vetch or rye cover can mean big savings and improved tomato stand and yield, especially for mid- to late varieties, according to Steve Groff, a Holtwood tomato grower.

Steve and Cheri Groff operate Cedar Meadow Farm. The past year, Groff used a variety of hairy vetch and rye combinations as cover crops for 1½ acres of tomato transplants. He plans to increase acreage in no-till to eight acres this year.

Also, Groff grew some no-till pumpkins and several other crops at the farm using the cover as a mulch.

Groff used a customized Holland transplanter equipped with a subsurface tiller following an 18-inch straight-bladed coulter package. The tiller and shank are both spring-loaded.

The coulter package opens the soil over top of the killed cover crop. As a result, the natural mulch conserves water and soil and allows the plant to thrive, even in a drought.

The mulch worked best in the mid- to late-season tomatoes. For growers who want an early season tomato, plastic mulch is still necessary.

For growers, labor savings are realized because there is no application and removal of plastic mulch. Also, the natural mulch conserves soil moisture and works to control erosion — especially beneficial if planting on slopes.

Groff said that his farm is "98 percent no-till" for corn an many other crops. Groff said, "Soil, I feel, was meant to be covered, and this prevents the soil from moving."

On May 25 this year, Groff no-tilled Mt. Supreme variety of tomatoes into hairy vetch cover crop. In years past, the Groffs used a combination of fall and spring plowing and planted into bare ground.

In the 1995 experiment, in the no-tilled segment of the test plot, the vetch was killed with herbicide from an overhead sprayer. Then, one plot was rolled and the other mowed.

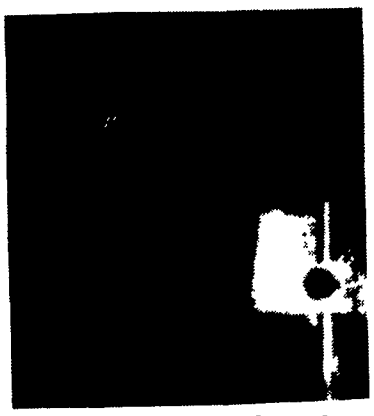
Using a specially equipped Holland transplanter, four rows of tomatoes were planted directly into the killed vetch and, in another field, rye.

The best results were obtained from the plot that was rolled over the one that was cut, in terms of overall weed control, according to Groff. The vetch was mowed with a flail mower. The mulch decayed faster in this plot but had a few more weeds.

In the rolled plot, the vetch was sprayed with herbicide one day before planting and then rolled simply by letting the depth control roller on the flail mower press the vetch flat. Weed pressure was less in this plot because the mulch remained on the soil longer.

But one benefit from using the hairy vetch and rye combinations of natural mulch included less Colorado potato beetle incidence. Some experts indicate this is because the natural mulch acts as a physical barrier to the maturing adults, keeping them from the plant's leaves.

Robert D. Berghage, assistant professor of horticulture at Penn State, spoke about the Penn State bedding variety trials at Rockspring and at the Landisville Research Farm.



Ken Fager, Penn State farm manager at the Rockspring Research Center, said that in 1993, a system of growing tomatoes using organic methods resulted in higher yields and higher returns.

A method of using no-tilled tomatoes planted into a hairy vetch or rye cover cover can mean big savings and improved tomato stand and yield, especially for mid- to late varieties, according to Steve Groff, a Holtwood tomato grower. Groff made use of this customized Holland transplanter equipped with a subsurface tiller following an 18-inch straight-bladed coulter package.

Also, there is less incidence of early blight in no-till tomatoes. The mulch helps keep weed pressure down. Groff noted that a thicker cover crop would control more weeds.

No-tilling saves plowing, discing, harrowing, and cultivating. It eliminates the use of plastic and adds nitrogen to the soil, according to the Holtwood grower.

The use of a no-till planter added $10 an acre to the cost, but the total savings amounted to about $550 per acre, according to Groff.

Other benefits include better soil organic matter and soil tilth.

The seeding date for the cover crop is September, but early October might be OK, according to Groff, if the weather cooperates and the winter is not too severe. Planting should be one month before the average of the first frost date.

In July this year, Groff plans a field day at his farm. He will be demonstrating a drip irrigation attachment on the no-till planter to put a dripline in beside the row. Also, a new way to "crimp" the mulch plant to control it without using burndown herbicides will be examined.

Other plants that could be planted using the no-till method include peppers, eggplant, snap beans, pumpkins ("I had higher yields and much cleaner pumpkins," Groff indicated), melons, and sweet corn.

For growers interested in using the transplanter, contact Joel Myers, the Keystone Soil and Water Conservation Society, (717) 782-3446.

The New Holland Vegetable Day, sponsored by the Eastern Lancaster County School District and Penn State Cooperative Extension, featured other programs as well.

Farm Systems Trial

Ken Fager, Penn State farm manager at the Rockspring Research Center, said that in 1993, a system of growing tomatoes using organic methods resulted in higher yields and higher returns.

The farm systems trial examined three different methods of growing tomatoes in several plots at the Penn State Rockspring Research Farm. One way included the conventional methods, using soil tests to look at nutrient needs, and adding nutrients where necessary. Plastic mulch and herbicides to control weeds were used.

Another, an intermediate system, used primarily cultivation for weed control. For cover crops, a grass/legume mixture was used.

A third system, an organic system, used on-site composted dairy manure for nutrient needs. Straw mulch, instead of plastic, was used. Copper sulfate and a biological pesticide control were used.

According to Fager, overall, the organic system in 1993 had the best yields of the three systems. However, in 1995, the other systems had better yields for reasons that are still unclear. More research is necessary to determine the variations in yields.

Preserving Quality

Also, Tim Elkner, horticulture agent in Lancaster County, indicated that whatever producers can do to keep produce cool will help in preserving quality after harvesting of produce.

Elkner indicated that Pennsylvania produce has an annual value of $15 billion. Of that, 20 percent — about $3 billion — is lost because of mishandling of produce and other reasons after harvest.

Producers should realize that harvested plant parts are "still living tissue" and producers should think of them as such. After explaining exactly how produce deteriorates after harvest, Elkner said that "temperature has a tremendous effect on shelf life and storage life of fruits and vegetables."

An increase of temperature in 10-degree increments can have a considerable impact on shelf life.

For optimum quality, producers should consider their market before making decisions regarding shelf life of products. Harvest should occur at optimum maturity (earlier if shipping to auction, later if at roadside stand) when temperatures outside are coolest (at the "crack of dawn"). Also, producers should handle produce carefully and not overfill containers. Protect harvested produce from the sun, and beware of transportation. Harvest only if you plan to sell it — otherwise, leave it in the field.

Also, don't be afraid to cull some produce. "Don't take down the value of the whole lot over one item," he said.

For those using cold storage, it is important to minimize traffic in the area to keep the temperature consistent.

Also, Bill Troxell of the state vegetable growers association spoke about the benefits of membership in the association. He said a field day will be hosted by the state growers on July 23 at Rockspring.

The next Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Conference is set Jan. 28-30, 1997 at the Hershey Convention Center.

Also, Robert D. Berghage, assistant professor of horticulture at Penn State, spoke about the Penn State bedding variety trials at Rockspring and at the Landisville Research Farm.

At the Vegetable Day, Berghage provided descriptions of the winners of the All American Award for bedding plants.

NCFC President Urges Focus On Export

WASHINGTON, D.C.—We are entering a more open trading system globally for agriculture, but the fact remains—world trade is still dominated by trade barriers, policies and programs by our competitors that impact the flow of goods, said Wayne Boutwell, president of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCFC) today.

"We simply must recognize this and be prepared to meet this kind of competition head on."

That was NCFC's goal last year in arguing strongly for adequate funding for key export programs such as the Market Promotion Program (MPP), and Foreign Market Development (FMD) programs and other export programs, Boutwell said as he addressed farmer cooperative leaders from across the country at the organization's 67th annual meeting here.

NCFC has strongly supported MPP, which has come under attack in both the House and Senate.

"At the same time, MPP has done more to help expand exports across agriculture, especially value-added, than any single program," he said. "It's a documented fact."

Boutwell explained that all agricultural cooperatives—marketing, supply, and farm credit banks—have a vested interest in helping expand exports. Therefore, with cooperatives' continued support, NCFC hopes to maintain funding for these important export programs.

In looking ahead, Boutwell said this year's driving force will be the Presidential and Congressional elections in November.

"We believe the debate this year will be on a more macro scale," he said. "As a result of this macro debate, we don't see much being done on specific programs beyond the normal appropriations process dealing with the funding of authorized programs. Hopefully, progress can be made on a number of key issues such as clean water, pesticide reform, and safe drinking water. However, it is unlikely that action will be completed in 1996."

USDA Field Team Wins National Hammer Award

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A five-person team that provides field veterinary services in eastern Pennsylvania for the U.S. Department of Agriculture Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (USDA APHIS) received the nation's Hammer Award last Friday.

The Hammer Award is an honor established by Vice President Al Gore to recognize outstanding efforts by government workers who help change government from a wasteful bureaucracy into a streamlined, efficient customer service-first organization.

More specifically, the award is called the "Hammer" because it is to symbolize the smashing of old government ways of handling the people's business in favor of creating fast, efficient and low cost ways to serve the people's business needs.

Team members receiving the award included leader Dr. Debbie Hawkins, and members Ms. Beth Wittenbrader, Tom Schoelzel, Dr. Amy Nesselrodt, and Tim Brennan.

U.S. Assistant Secretary of Agriculture for Marketing and Regulatory Programs Michael V. Dunn traveled from Washington to personally present the awards.

Dunn presented the award noting the achievements of the team.

The story behind the award is one of significant change in government — it was brought about by a desire from Hawkins and the others who had been her supervised employees to become more efficient and beneficial to the people who need their services, and it was allowed by those higher up the chain of command, a delegation of authority atypical for government.

According to Hawkins, the team concept was allowed as a pilot program after she got approval from her superiors to go forward with having the team redesign the basic structure of the field operations and areas of responsibility.

With the support of Dr. Ulysses Lane, the area veterinarian in charge at the time (currently serving in that capacity in Florida), and Dr. William Buisch, northern regional director, the Eastern Pennsylvania Veterinary Service Field Team was created as a pilot project in 1992.

The original team met first in August 1992, according to Hawkins, and consisted of herself and the two animal health technicians whom she supervised. Wittenbrader was one of the two original technicians.

Later, in 1993, Schoelzel, an animal identification coordinator joined the team followed by Tim Brennan, an animal health technician.

Hawkins said the team drew up a mission statement based on APHIS mission statement, the mission statement for the Northeast Region, the anticipated needs of internal and external customers and "the taxpayers' right to cost-effective customer service."

In short, what the group managed to do was significantly reduce the cost of its service to the public, achieve 100 percent and faster processing of permits for the importation and exportation of animal products under their purview, and beefed up its ability to catch disease.

Dunn presented the award, and said that he was very proud to have done so.

He was sworn into his appointed office Dec. 28, having served as acting undersecretary for rural economic and community development, and also as an administrator of the USDA Farmers Home Administration.

PuraFire

The Purafire heater provides a consistent, cleanburning and fuel efficient source of warmth for all types of poultry and swine houses. With near 100% efficiency, it uses less energy to yield greater BTUs for your money. Choose from two models: the C80M variable output (40,000 - 80,000 BTUH) and the C225 (225,000 BTUH). Each is LP or natural gas compatible and can be mounted inside or outside your confinement house.

General Manager, Two Pa.DHIA Directors Complete Co-op Institute

"Positioning Your Cooperative For Change" was the title of the 1996 Pennsylvania Cooperative Director Institute attended by David Slusser, Pa. DHIA general manager; and directors Marian Butler and Ralph Gilkinson.

The 12th in a series of cooperative director institutes that began in 1983 was held at the Nittany Lion Inn on the campus of Penn State University. Over 45 directors from 15 different cooperative organizations serving members in 10 states participated.

The director school is sponsored jointly by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and Penn State University's Cooperative Business Education and Research Program (CBERP).

More than 20 leaders from educational, cooperative, and government organizations kept the participants challenged throughout the three-day program.

Keynote speakers included Dr. Graham Spanier, recently appointed president of Penn State University, Mr. Charles Brosius, Secretary of Agriculture for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and Dr. Christopher Peterson, associate professor of agricultural economics at Michigan State University.

Herman Brubaker, chairman of the board of Milk Marketing, In. (MMI), shared insights gained from his many years of guiding MMI through a number of merges and strategic challenges. George Steele, former Agway and Farm Credit board member provided a strong foundation of director basics.

Topics included roles and responsibilities of directors, legal issues of the board, communications, group process, interpersonal relations, board management relations, leadership, strategic planning, and understanding cooperative finances. Sharing ideas, experiences, and issues with other directors is an important non-scheduled part of every director school.

The purpose of the series is to train and equip directors of the region's member-owned cooperative organizations with the knowledge and skills necessary to operate successfully in the rapidly changing business environment. Success for cooperatives means maintaining and increasing the value of membership in the organization by improving on farm profit, maintaining access to markets and services, and limiting some of the risk involved in agriculture.

The title, "Positioning Your Cooperative For Change," verbalizes on the current high priorities of many cooperative and business organizations. Many cooperatives have already undergone restructuring and streamlining and like their investor-owned counterparts, many more will need to make significant changes to continue to benefit their members.

The Director Institute is followed, in alternate years, by the Pennsylvania Graduate Director Institute. The graduate program is designed, as the name suggests, for advanced training on board leadership, financial analysis, and strategic issues.

All programs are planned by a committee composed of industry and educational leaders to address basic training and current priority needs of the cooperative community.

For more information, contact PA DHIA at 1-800-344-8378 or Dick Poorbaugh at Penn State (814) 863-0644.

Computer Committee Sets Course

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

On Wednesday, Feb. 14, the newly formed Pa. DHIA Computer Committee met to organize and chart the course for the following year.

The main thrust of the committee is to advise or suggest changes in the Quick Barn Sheet program that would make the program more user-friendly and at the same time improve the product to his highest performance.

The Quick Barn Sheet program was developed to be a user-friendly date entry tool for Pa. DHIA technicians. Used in conjunction with Westfalia Dairy Plan reports, technicians have the ability to provide the dairyman with reports that contain information that can be used to make immediate herd management decisions in advance of when the paper DHIA reports arrive in the mail.

USING COMPUTER MODELS TO HELP IN FARM PLANNING, DECISION MAKING

and
Dennis R. Buckmaster
Agricultural and Biological Engineering Department
Penn State

Computer models serve as powerful tools to simulate complex systems for the purpose of understanding the linkages and interrelations of the components of the system. These models offer the power to understand, analyze, and optimize these systems where traditional experimental tools fail.

During the last decade, ready access to computing power has increased, bringing a bigger need and practical use for these models.

Grazing systems are naturally cross-disciplinary; with these systems, soil, crop, animal, and machines affect each other in ways that can significanly affect profitability. Such a system is a typical example of a complex set of linkages that cannot be fully understood without the help of a model. These models, in general, are referred to as decision support systems (DSS), since they can help the user make more intelligent decisions through better information.

A typical example of such DSS is the comprehensive grazing model (GRASIM) that link all components of the pasture system. GRASIM was developed at Penn State to obtain a better understanding of the pasture system and determine management strategies that yield more efficient utilization of pastures. It can generate information suitable for estimating the financial and environmental consequences of alternative dairy management strategies including partial mechanical harvest in the context of the year round feed needs of the dairy herd. In addition, the model can evaluate the effect of stocking rate on needed supplementation and amount of harvested feed.

GRASIM simulates intensive rotational grazing systems by accounting for carbon, nitrogen and water budgets in the pasture environment. GRASIM requires input data regarding soils, plants, animals, and management. Among other things, the model predicts soil water level, soil nitrogen level, accumulated grazed intake, harvested yield, and nitrogen leaching. GRASIM simulates four components (grass growth, soil water, soil nitrogen, harvest/grazing) with a daily time step. It models multiple paddocks that share the same soil and weather information but can have a different grass species.

GRASIM is still under development; funding permitting, it will be outfitted with a user interface making it useful to farmers and farm advisors. The scenarios that could be evaluated by the model are widespread. Current plans are to make the model capable of addressing these questions:

- How much stored (supplemental) forage is needed with varying stocking rate on the grazeable land?
- How much can nitrogen fertilizer application to grass pastures help to economically increase herd size?
- How much forage will need to be harvested during spring growth and how does this vary among years and with soil type?
- Should I plant more or less corn?
- Am I better off with 50 cows each producing 21,000 lb milk/year or 60 cows each producing 17,000 lb milk/year?

GRASIM will not solve all the world's problems, but certainly will help agronomists, nutritionists, economists, and engineers pool their knowledge in a way which traditional experimentation has fallen short.

Development of GRASIM has been a collaborative effort among the Penn State Departments of Agriculture and Biological Engineering, Agronomy, Dairy and Animal Science, and Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology. Development has been financially supported by USDA Special Research Grants and the Pennsylvania Agricultural Experiment Station.

The Quick Barnsheet program and Westfalia Dairy Plan are not intended to be a replacement for DHIA mainframe computing. Component analysis date can only be added into the reports after the samples have been tested in the lab.

Through partnerships of these two programs the dairymen may received action lists (pregnancy checks, dry dates, etc.) and rankings by test day milk for regrouping cows. Using these programs gives the dairyman an advantage in making quick accurate decisions.

Please feel free to contact Pa. DHIA at 1-800-344-8378, if we can assist with your dairy operation.

ram down so more people would use it and benefit. No one else can provide this service at this cost profitably and our MUN herd summary report is the first in the nation. Twenty-eight percent of our members' cows are on the program with over 1,000 herds participating.

"The Performance Economics Program is the first in the nation. This program will provide unbelievable cost analysis information through the PA DHIA system. It is confidential, and it is free to our members.

"The new direction of PA DHIA will change DHIA forever. Though our traditional role will remain, bottom line performance is the new game. Our goal is to improve the net farm income of our members, and our new direction will serve that end," Slusser said.

The association listed many major accomplishments in 1995. These included:

- A new herd summary report.
- Feed library and feeding program.
- Performance Economics Program.
- First MUN summary analysis and MUN individual cow data.
- MUN training for veterinarians, feed consultants, county extension employees, and members.
- MUN research projects with Penn State and University of Pennsylvania.
- Testing MUN samples for Vermont, mid-East, and Virginia DHI's.

In addition, Jim Boyer, director of dairy records processing, was named to the National DRCP Committee and Dixie Burris, director, lab services and membership development, was elected to the North American Lab Managers board.

PA DHIA is now in cyberspace to connect by Internet to the USDA, breed associations, and AI studs. In the future the association will be able to connect more efficiently to DHIA technicians and Penn State extension.

Now that powerful, inexpensive desktop computers are available, DHIA has the opportunity to reduce hardware costs and increase the productivity of computer programers. By late spring, plans are in place to move a significant part of the daily DHIA processing onto high end PC's from older type large computers with costly mainframes to process dairy records. The seeds of real change in this area were planted in 1995, and rich rewards are expected to be reaped in 1996.

Speakers on the program included James Ferguson, VMD, associate professor of nutrition, University of Pennsylvania, New Bolton Center, on the subject of MUN testing, and Steve Ford, associate professor, ag economics, Penn State, on the subject of Herd Performance Economics. In addition, Sonny Meyerhoefer, national director from Virginia, brought greetings from the national association.

At the awards breakfast, the winners of the 1995 herd management awards were named. They are:

HOLSTEIN, 1. Milos and Sandy Sinan, Indiana County, 166 points; 2. Curtis and Ann Day, Cumberland County, 158 points; and 3. Fred and Tom Strouse, Northumberland County, 154 points.

JERSEY, (three first place ties, each with 90 points) Rankin Farm, Washington County; William R. Yoder, Somerset County; and Eugene and Brian Harris, Bradford County.

MIXED BREEDS, 1. William and Janis Budner, Washington County, 110 points; 2. Laszlo Mozes, Mercer County, 108 points; and Canon Dairy, Mercer County, 107 points.

GOATS, 1. Whitney and Harter Farm, Center County, 29 points; 2. Elaine M. Eidemiller, Venango County, 26 points; 3. Harold and Joan Stump, Montgomery County, 23 points.

GUERNSEY, 1. Rutter Borthers, York County, 102 points; 2. Trotacre Farm, Lawrence County, 84 points; 3. Richard O. Smith, Bucks County, 75 points.

LOWEST SCC, R.C. and J.R. Shoemaker, Franklin County, 65,000 somatic cells, 56 cows DHI-AP test.

Youth Beef Industry Leaders To Meet

DENVER, Colo. — Youth leaders from across the United States will gather here March 21-24 for the bi-annual Youth Beef Industry Congress (YBIC).

Representatives from national breed associations and state junior cattlemen's associations will meet to learn more about the beef industry and the challenges faced in today's industry. They will also be presented with leadership development opportunities.

With top junior industry leaders in attendance, the YBIC will be filled with cutting-edge speakers such as Dr. Tom Field, Colorado State University; Dr. Ronnie Green, Colorado State University; Dr. Bernie Rollins, Colorado State University, Greg Simonds, Deseret Ranches; Colorado Senator Ben Nighthorse Campbell; and Tim Schiefelbein, Monfort of Colorado. In addition to workshops on marketing, investments and leadership, the delegates will tour the National Cattleman's Beef Association and Maverick Ranch Meats.

The four-day congress will be capped March 24 with guest speaker Sonny Lubick, head coach of the Colorado State University football team.

The fact that this is an election year, and that President Clinton happened to be in Scranton the same day had nothing to do with Dunn's presence in Harrisburg, he said. In effect, Dunn said that the area of USDA he currently oversees is a service function that has as a necessary function of its integrity to distance itself of political manuevering.

He said that allowing Hawkins and the others to take on responsibility for changing the way government does business, to delegate that authority was a risk for the team's supervisors — implying that the supervisors would have been responsible should the project fail to succeed or result in problems.

"But it is an example fo what can happen in government," Dunn said. "This is not a political ploy. This is a genuine effort to do something to improve government. They got an award that was a Hammer Award. The real reward for them was to provide service to their customers."

Dunn said he believed in what noted philosopher, physician, music scholar and Protestant clergyman Albert Schweitzer (1875-1965) had said, "Example is not the main thing in influencing others — it's the only thing."

Hawkins said the award was very much appreciated by the team because it signified that to them that somebody was noticing, other than the people they served, that government could change and also that they were allowed to make their own decisions and have input into creating and carrying out a better way of providing service.

"Basically this idea started back in 1991, and it was at my suggestion to my former supervisor Dr. Ulysses Lane, area veterinarian in charge," Hawkins said.

She said that essentially the way service was provided was according to political and geographical subdivisions, not according to service need.

This both frustrated workers and those needing the services of the APHIS Veterinary Services to do business.

The change essentially was to remove the heirarchy of Hawkins being supervisor to that of team leader, respecting the integrity and intelligence of other team members in getting work done and in knowing what needs to be done.

Geographic and political boundaries were removed from the service region. The strategy instead was to focus on serving the areas where the work was needed.

Further, part of the team's responsibility was to go out to individual farms for field service, for which the farms previously had for be charged $350 each. The team worked with those needing the work done and (similar to how the Holstein Association USA now tries to group its classifications, for those familiar with that service) was able to get service trips lined up to that more than one farm in an area could receive service per trip, thereby reducing the cost per farm to $50, a reduction of $300 per farm per trip.

In 1991, when Hawkins first joined the USDA, having sold a small animal veterinary practice in the Allentown area, she said the eastern region received 420 permit applications. Of those received, only 130 were served with an average turnaround time of 11 months.

Under the team and service approach, in 1993 the team received 580 permit requests, all were served and average turnaround was reduced to 30 days.

"Our field team solved this problem in several ways. First we plotted the premises when our byproducts inspections needed to be done. With this information we were able to 'batch' several premises together and go out and do several permits at one time, bringing the average manhour for a single inspection from an average of four hours to approximately one hour per inspection.

"In addition, we set up a piority system for handling permits. Based on priority, we decide to handle many non-priority permits by phone and fax. This allowed us to greatly increase the number of permits served and to decrease the cycle time," she said.

Two team members purchased their own phone answering machines and fascimile machines. At their own cost, one member even installed a separate telephone line to handle agency business.

"I ran a veterinary hospital in the private sector," Hawkins said, "and when I came to work for government, I was shocked at the way things were done and how low a priority was placed on customer service. So that was my impetus (to change government)."

She said she received tentative approval for a one-year pilot project and then it had to be evaluated. The group set up goals, such as improving animal disease detection service for such disease as tuberculosis, and to respond more quickly to the animal byproducts customers, such as taxidermists who need to have animal part imported, or bone meal coming in-country, or even pig ear doggie chews coming in from Brazil.

She explained that all that has to be tested for approval. "We had a tremendous number and they just weren't getting serviced because the vast majority were falling within one person's jurisdiction (under the old government setup.)

The team approach was to spend more effort in where the work was, instead of having one worker overworked and the other perhaps underchallenged.

The group started tracking the number of permits, how long it took to service customers, tracking the rate of submissions for disease testing at slaughter houses and other pertinent measurable parameters of business.

Once a baseline of current acitivity was established, the team set about improving those numbers.

The team also developed a survey for customers, the first developed by the USDA's veterinary services in the nation.

"Compared to the way government normally works, this was a significant change," Hawkins said.

The group began and continues to monitor its success according to customer satisfaction — something Hawkins said she was used to doing in the private sector.

Again receiving the award and having Assistant Secretary Dunn travel from Washington on a Friday morning during a heavy winter snowstorm impressed Hawkins, she said.

She said Dunn took out two cards — they are cards issued by the Clinton Administration and signed by those who receive them as a promise to make government better by reinventing regulation and government.

As a member of reinventing government team, the card says the bearer will invent a government that puts people first by "putting customers first, cutting red tape, empowering employees to get results, (and) cutting back to basics."

On the reverse of the card is a list of the ways in which this will be done. "We will: create a clear sense of mission; steer more, row less; delegate authority and responsibility, help communities solve their own problems; replace regulations with incentives; develop budgets based on outcomes; inject competition into everthing we do; search for market, not administrative solutions; (and) measure our success by customer satisfaction."

On the other card, on reinventing regulation, is printed, "All regulators will: cut obsolete regulations; reward results, not red tape;

More Than 110 Participate In All-Breeds Dairy Convention

Stormi Greek, and Jeremy Daubert. The other second-place team had members Andrea Koinski, Meredith Bailey, Eric Poole and Justin Wivell.

After a buffet dinner Saturday evening, a mock sale was held with teams of "buyers." They pushed the sale average to $7,700 for 36 lots representing all breeds. The target average was $3,380, so there were a few bargains in the "sale."

The winning teams making the best judgments and purchases were recognized Sunday during a brunch.

Among the sale teams recognized were three. One of the teams consisted of Jessie Bates, Colleen Ishman, Angela Werley, and Heather Oberholtzer. Another had members Lauren Daubert, Jennifer McMillen, Emily Norman and Erica Lloyd. The third team recongized consisted of Jason Stambaugh, Greg Hemsarth, Jeremiah Mensinger, Erin Leach and Jennifer Davis.

Keynote speaker for the brunch was John Rodgers, who gave a motivational speach intended to provoke thoughts about presenting a positive image and setting goals.

Also addressing the group during brunch was state Dairy Princess Rhonda Kieklak.

The convention was sponsored by the Penn State Dairy Science Club in cooperation with Penn State Cooperative Extension, and was described as a great success by Dale Olver, a Penn State dairy science specialist who works with the Penn State Dairy Science Club and state 4-H and FFA dairy activities.

Convention committee co-chairman Marel Raub said, "This was a good chance for dairy youth from around Pennsylvania to meet others with mutual interests and form friendships.

"Teamwork was a major component of the convention, and we hope that participants learned to work together to achieve common goals. We are also very grateful for the sponsors that contributed to this event."

Contributors includes Protiva (a unit of Monsanto), Sire Power, Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers, Milk Marketing Inc., ADADC-Mid East, and Pennfield Feeds.

Melissa Morrow, also a co-chairperson for the convention who helped coordinate most of the activities for the weekend told the group, "You are the dairy leaders of today and tomorrow. We are excited to have you here, and we hope that you will take what you learn home to your counties to help promote the dairy industry."

Plans are already underway for the 1997 Pa. Junior All-Breeds Convention to be held in February, though specific dates are to be announced.

For more information about the Penn State Dairy Science Club and the convention, call Dale Olver at (814) 863-3914.

Farm Labor Expert To Hold Workshops

PHILIP WAGNER
Franklin Co. Extension
Dairy Agent

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — After one year of planning, Dr. Bernie Erven will be coming to Pennsylvania for two one-day labor strategies workshops - March 11 in Franklin County and March 12 in Lancaster County.

Both day long extension sponsored workshops will be geared to personnel management as it relates to the dairy farm. However, many of the principles he teaches apply to any agricultural as well as non-agricultural business.

Dr. Erven is a professor and extension specialist at Ohio State University and is a nationally recognized teacher and authority on farm personnel management. He is an outstanding public speaker and audience-pleaser who has spoken to farm and non-farm business groups in many states and at many national meetings.

Labor issues such as recruiting, training, delegating, motivating and compensating need to be addressed by many farmers.

Do you want to learn how to farm successfully with other family members?

Do you want to manage your labor force more effectively - hired and family?

Do you want to to learn how to recruit, train, compensate and keep good employees?

Do you want to reduce employee turnover?

Do you supervice or intend to supervise other people?

If the answer to any or all of these questions is YES, this workshop is for you. For registration information and a copy of the program flier, call the site nearest you. Phone numbers are: Franklin County Extension 717-263-9226 or Lancaster County Extension 717-394-6851.

Barn Managers Equine Short Course Set

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — Barn Manager's Equine Short Course will be offered by cooperative extension of Rutgers and Penn State universities.

Topics include:

- Can you legally hire an employee and pay cash "under the table" or provide board in exchange for work?
- What is new in the world of horse fencing, barn flooring materials, and arena footing?
- Can written contracts and releases protect you in the event of a liability law suit?

These and other issues will be addressed at the barn manager's short course, which will be held on March 13 and 14 from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, Bethlehem. The equine short course has been developed as a cooperative effort by extension agents from Penn State and Rutgers universities.

A high caliber of professionals in the equine field have agreed to serve as instructors for the short course. Speakers include representatives from Footings Unlimited, Stocton Fence Company, Penn State and Rutgers Extension, Glatfelter Insurance Group, and Keystone Farm Credit. Sessions will be offered on insurance, pasture maintenance, buying quality horse hay, liability issues, biology of pest control, new footing and fencing materials, budgeting for success, and proper ventilation of horse barns. In addition, several owners and managers of area horse farms will be present to share their ideas on how to "manage for success."

The cost of the two-day program is $70, which includes lunch and instructional materials. To receive more information or a registration form, contact your local cooperative extension office or the Monroe County extension office at (717) 992-7344, the Montgomery County extension office at (610) 489-4315, or the Warren County extension office at (908) 475-6503.

Agri-Educational Seminar Examines Globalization Effects

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — After decades of broadcasting farm news, Orion Samuelson, said the biggest change he has seen in agriculture can be summed up in one word: globalization.

This worldwide concept applied to agriculture was touched on by numerous speakers at the annual agri-education seminar held by CoreStates Bank on Thursday.

Globalization is held up as the answer for expanding agricultural markets.

With explosive world populations in countries that cannot feed its own, the U.S. is considered a reliable supplier.

"If we decide to stop exporting, half of the farmers will be out of business," Samuelson said in response to those hesitant of shipping resources outside of the United States. "We have more resources than we can use and those resources are replenishable."

Echoing the message of global trade were speakers Dr. Barry Flinchbaugh, H. Louis Moore, and John Blanchfield.

Farmers cannot remain isolated from what is going on in the world. Flinchbaugh, economist from Kansas State University, said that the general economy affects farmers' bottom line and what is happening internationally and in world trade.

"Export demand looks extremely good," he said. He referred to the population explosions in countries such as China, Indonesia, and India. While these countries need food, trade remains a political market that may be cut off in situations such as China's perchance to fire missiles at Taiwan.

Economic indicators measure what is happening to the economy and according to Flinchbaugh indicate that interest rates will decline because it is an election year. This will unfortunately sow the seeds for another round of inflation, which has been held flat in the 1990s.

Flinchbaugh sees the federal deficit as the number one problem for the United States, with the biggest expenditures in Medicare and Medicaid and little chance for reducing it. "By the year 2002, the deficit will make up 22 percent of the budget and the economy cannot sustain that," he said.

While there is no finalization of the Farm Bill, Flinchbaugh said that farm programs continue to create controversy. Some analyists predict that exports can replace government programs 100 percent, but others believe trade will have zero effect in replacing the programs.

While land prices continue to rise in the East, percentage wise land values are going up faster in Kansas and the Midwest.

Moore, an economist from Penn State, reported that record exports in 1995 will continue to rise 1.5 percent this year.

The economists confer that there is not too much good ahead in the dairy and livestock outlooks for this year, but exports should help these industries eventually.

Blanchfield, director for the agricultural division of American Bankers Association, said that changing dynamics are affecting the Farm Bill debate in Washington. "In the past they came together with the thought of doing something good for agriculture."

Now a harsh review of the effectiveness of programs is resulting in others defining agriculture.

He referred to Dan Rather's recent CBS broadcast that falsely accused dairy farmers for conspiring to develop legislation that would cost American consumers $2.5 billion dollars and put additives in milk.

Bumpy roads are caused too often by parents trying to maintain control and an unwillingness to hand over the business.

Attorney Gary Heim explained farm transfer planning and tax laws. Significant tax savings are possible if the transfer is began while the farm owner is still living. While there is a $10,000 annual gift exclusion, more than that amount may be given tax free annually but the amount must be subtracted from the one-time $600,000 gift allowable in inheritance.

The timing of farm transfers show that the transation of cattle, equipment, and crops should be transferred by the time a child is 30 years old and the real estate should be transferred by the time the child is 40 years old.

It is important for parents to realize that the child taking over the farm cannot be treated equally with other children. Otherwise the child will not be able to raise the taxes necessary and keep the farm. It is more sensible to have a clause state that if the farm is sold within 10 years, a percentage of the money must be distributed among the other siblings.

Heim stressed the importance of selecting a professional you trust.

Miss Pennsylvania Linette Mertz, who grew up on a dairy farm in Kutztown, talked about her reign and her passion to promote literacy. She ended her presentation with a solo, "Proud to be an American."

Students Joy Young, county FFA president, and Kirsten Kauffman, 4-H superior achievement winner, spoke on farmland preservation and how it affects others.

This was the 15th year that the bank sponsored the educational seminar held free for agricultural clients and FFA members.

Fun Auction To Support Maryland 4-H Judging Team

FREDERICK, Md.—Plans are underway to secure unique and exciting items for a fun auction that will be conducted as part of the Maryland Holstein Annual Meeting in late February. Funds from the auction will help to support the Maryland 4-H Dairy Cattle Judging Team that will be representing the United States in international competition in Edinburgh, Scotland during late June and early July.

To date, some of the items donated are:

- a beautiful afghan and quilt
- two prints from Jim Baird, artist who designed Hoard's Dairyman's covers
- a beautiful Barry Richards print
- old milk bottles and other dairy artifacts
- semen for many outstanding proven sires
- a dressed and packaged lamb
- two Maryland/Virginia basketball tickets
- 5 gallons of delicious University of Maryland ice cream
- a beautiful walnut McCune "Cow With Calf" woodcarving.

The items will be on display on Thursday, February 29th at the Frederick County Fairgrounds during the Maryland Holstein State Sale and during the annual meeting on Friday at the Holiday Inn. Some of the itesm will be sold by silent bid and the remainder will be sold at the live auction on Friday evening following the Annual Awards Banquet.

Lewis Receives Appreciation Award

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

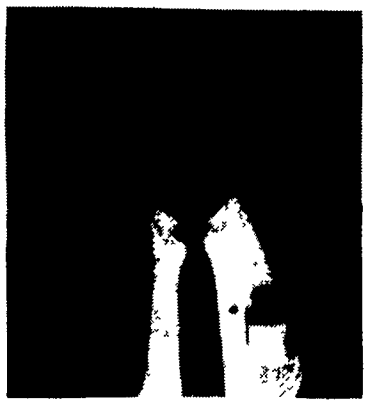
MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) —George Lewis, long-time friend and supporter of 4-H in Lancaster County, was honored with an appreciation award for service to 4-H here at the recent 4-H Livestock Banquet.

Lewis was honored with a special appreciation award for many years of service to 4-H as sheep club buyer, contributor, and in other ways.

Lewis, an ag lender at Farmers First Bank in Lititz for 23 years, has helped the Lancaster 4-H clubs "every year," according to Chet Hughes, county livestock agent.

Lewis contributed to the 4-H Development Fund to help the award-winning Lancaster County 4-H livestock team. In addition, Lewis allowed 4-H livestock judging team members to practice on his five-acre farm outside Landisville.

On his farm, Lewis said he raises Southdown and Hampshire sheep and sells lambs for 4-H exhibitors. Currently, Lewis has six Southdown ewes and 19 Hampshire ewes.



George Lewis, long-time friend and supporter of 4-H in Lancaster County, was honored with an appreciation award for service to 4-H here at the recent 4-H Livestock Banquet.

The George and Lorraine Lewis family's involvement in 4-H goes back to when daughter, Ellen, was involved in 4-H for about 10 years. Ellen is now an elementary school teacher.

Lewis praised the efforts of 4-H to "do what you can to encourage kids to have some kind of useful goal in life, not necessarily in the farming business," he said.

Son Ken Lewis is an executive loan officer with Farm Credit.

Lewis noted that several of the 4-H'ers that were involved in clubs in the county when Ellen was involved have gone on to ag-related careers. And while not all of them pursued agricultural careers, "all turned out well. Working with livestock gave them a chance," he said.

4-H Raises $8,500 At Banquet

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) —The Lancaster County 4-H Benefit Auction had a record-breaking day last Saturday.

"It the best auction we ever had," according to Zoann Parker, 4-H agent.

There were nearly 200 bidders at Saturday's auction at the Farm and Home Center, with total sales of nearly $10,000, according to Parker.

Total profit from the sale was $8,500. Parker said that support came from the "whole community and from four states."

Pumpkin Roundtable Set

WESTMINSTER, Md.—On Feb. 28, the Carroll County Cooperative Extension Service will be sponsoring a "Pumpkin Roundtable" from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Carroll County Extension Office.

This program is for area pumpkin growers and is intended to provide an open forum for discussion of all aspects of production. Helping to lead the discussion and answer questions will be Robert Rouse, regional specialist in vegetables from the Wye Research Facility; Dr. C. Edward Beste, working in weed control at the Salisbury Facility; and Dr. Charles A. McClurg, Horticulture Department on the College Park Campus.

Please come prepared with a couple of questions pertaining to your operation that the experts can help you solve.

Space is limited so if you are interested in attending, please call ahead. For any questions or to register for the program, call (410) 848-4611.

Dairy Of Distinction

fidence in the wholesomeness of dairy products, and increase their sales.

Farms that apply are judged on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings, since this is what our dairy product consumers observe as they drive by. The cleanliness of the barnyard, feed areas, and manure management are other aspects of the farm operation taken into consideration. Roadside judging is conducted during the month of May. Former winners of past years are also rejudged to ensure they continue to meet standards of excellence.

To qualify for consideration, you must be actively dairy farming and shipping milk. Applications are available from your state secretary. Pennsylvania: Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., Tower Business Building, 239 Schuyler Avenue, Suite 105, Kingston, PA 18704, (717) 283-2204; New York: Carol Weddle, NY Holstein Association, 957 Mitchell Street, Ithaca, NY 14851, (607) 273-7591; or New Jersey: August Knispel, R.D. 1 Box 325, Pittstown, NJ 08867, (201) 735-4989. All applications must be completed and returned by April 15, 1996.

The Dairy of Distinction Program is financed in Pennsylvania by Dairy Farmers through the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., and Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, plus Agribusiness organizations. The Pennsylvania Dairy of Distinction Progarm is conducted with advice and help by Penn State Cooperative Extension.

Potential Fruit Rot Diseases

The diseases can be difficult to identify because symptoms mimic or resemble others. The clue is to seal the infected fruit in a clear plastic bag for one day to tell the difference.

With brown rot (Monilinia fructicola), immature green fruit is not affected by the fungus. It is the ripening fruit that is targeted, which includes a brown, rotted, powdery mass on the fruit caused by spores. Spores are spread by rain onto other parts of the plant and other fruit. Twigs can also get infected with the fungus.

To identify, brown rot will cause fruit decay extremely fast in a bag. Other infections, such as anthracnose and Rhizopus fruit rot, will take a lot longer to decay the fruit.

To treat, growers must get rid of the dead mass and the fruit "mummies" that accumulate near the tree. It is important to remove the dead fruit, prune the infected twigs, control the insects that can also spread the fungus, and increase fungicide controls. There are effective fungicides available.

Another fungus, peach anthracnose, has been around for years. The technical name is Glomerella cingulata, also called "bitter rot" on apples. It affects peach and apple trees and can spread from one to another. The symptoms resemble brown rot but include a brown and sunken lesion "with orange to yellow spores in concentric rings" said Travis.

The anthracnose, unlike brown rot, will take a lot longer to completely decay the fruit when sealed in a bag.

To reduce disease pressure, remove brush piles away from orchards, said Travis. Also, anthracnose, unlike brown rot, will infect green fruit.

In the third disease challenge, Rhizopus fruit rot (if placed in a plastic bag) will turn "black or very gray," said Travis. Symptoms include a dark mold on the surface of the fruit, unlike brown rot, with tan-colored spores. The disease can overwinter, so it is important to "maintain sanitary conditions for best controls," he said.

To control disease, Travis indicated that growers need to clean the packaging, feed basins, crates, hydrocoolers, and packinghouse. Store fruit under cold temperatures. Use a post-harvest chemical treatment to destroy any potentially overwintering microorganisms. Also, apply a fungicide near the harvest but within the parameters of the label.

"I am concerned about this peach anthracnose," said Travis, who urged growers to send samples to the Fruit Research Center in Biglerville for analysis. Proper identification of the disease threat is necessary, because improper use of fungicides that have no effect could be costly.

Using Fungicides

At the Lancaster fruit meeting, Travis also told the growers that it is important to think about "controlling diseases earlier in the season than you did before," during the portion devoted to effective use of fungicides.

The Penn State plant pathologist told the growers to beware of potential fungicide resistance.

Travis spoke about two groups of fungicides: protectants and sterol inhibitors. Simply put, the protectants actually seal the plant away from fungicide infestation. The sterol inhibitors are growth regulators that actually affect the fungus growth and kill it.

The sterol inhibitors eradicate fungus infections and protect plants. They are absorbed by the plant surfaces and move inside plants. They are made for specific site action and have a limited spectrum of control. Importantly, noted Travis, they also mean a high risk of resistance development if used frequently.

Sterol inhibitors won't work on summer fruit rots such as sooty blotch and fly speck on apples, according to the pathologist. If dry, hot conditions prevail late in the growing season, growers should not be as concerned with the sooty blotch and fly speck challenges.

In the end, it's important to know exactly how to use the fungicides in what combinations to get effective control.

"Use sterol inhibitors and protectants in combination. Refrain from using sterol inhibitors by themselves," he said. "Put on sterol inhibitors to get good control and put on protectant control to inhibit buildup" of fungus, according to the pathologist.

Used in combination with selective use (pink through petal fall) and with some form of integrated pest management (IPM) program may prove effective for growers. For inhibitors, it is important to use in mixtures with protectants and rotate them.

Mite Management

Dr. Carl Felland, entomologist at the Penn State Fruit Research and Extension Center in Biglerville, spoke about the challenges of mite management in apples.

For growers using an IPM program using predator insects, it is important to do the counts and watch the population of the host material after miticides are used.

Felland mentioned the research under way on a new chemical miticide treatment that had nearly complete control of mites from a 1995 trial lasting from July 5 to Aug. 7.

The experimental miticide will take years to be registered and available commercially.

New Apple Rootstock

Dr. Rob Crassweller, Penn State pomologist, spoke about the exciting potentials with the new apple rootstock lineup.

Crassweller spoke about the new Cornell Geneva rootstock that has produced more than twice the output of fruit per tree (using a Liberty cultivar), with the same space as an M.7, and produces flowers earlier.

Crassweller spoke about a lot of other new rootstock selections that hold promise for growers.

Increase Pollination

Crassweller also said there are a variety of ways to increase pollination of fruits other than bee management.

To get better pollination, it is important to provide a lot more cell division earlier on, to create a greater cell expansion that will give improved fruit size.

There are a variety of nutrients that can boost pollination in fruit, including the use of boron and zinc. Growers can also make more effective use of "pollinizers" but must set the material properly in the rows.

The use of crabapples can act as pollinizers but also must be placed properly in the orchard.

When using bees, hive placement is critical. Also, dandelions should be removed, because bees show a preference for them over the fruit flowers. Also, if using a rapeseed cover, the rapeseed flowers must be removed.

Apple Marketing

Brenda Beleski Briggs, director of the 1995-1996 Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board, indicated that export markets are increasing, particulary to the number one export location, Brazil.

As of November 1995, 43,000 cartons of apples were sold to Brazil, up to 60,000 at the end of December 1995. The figures were supplied by the U.S. Apple Export Council.

On the agenda for members is the referendum to raise the current checkoff from 7 cents a bushel for fresh apples to 15 cents. Also, there will be a vote to raise the current checkoff of 7 cents per hundredweight for processing apples to 8 cents by the year 2000, according to Briggs.

Growers could see domestic markets threatened by other states, particularly New York, which went to a checkoff of 16 cents a bushel for fresh apples last year. Michigan assesses 19 cents a bushel for fresh apples and 21 cents a hundredweight for processing. Michigan's apple marketing board has a budget of $2.1 million per year.

Growers need to consider "looking around the state and around the country" to continue to realize profits in apple production, according to Briggs. The assessment would help the board in their marketing efforts to the tune of $400,000 per year in 1996 and to $520,000 per year in the year 2000.

The board is accenting apples as a new snack food, to compete against the better profit margins of potato chips and other products.

Phil Pitzer, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Region VI agronomic products inspector, provided an overview of compliance with the new Worker Protection Standard.

Pitzer also reviewed new PDA pesticide regulations at the meeting.

The meeting was coordinated by the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service and the York and Lancaster County Fruit Growers' Association. Meetings continue in the weeks ahead with other growers in other parts of the state.

Time To Celebrate Poultry At Banquet

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — More than 1,500 people involved in Pennsylvania's poultry industry will attend the annual Pennsylvania Poultry Federation banquet, scheduled Wednesday, April 24 at the Hershey Convention Center.

The social hour starts with cocktails and hors d'oeuvres at 5:30 p.m. Dinner is 7 p.m.

Entertainment at the annual fund raising banquet will feature country music star Ricky Skaggs.

Tickets are available for $125 each. Reserved tables of 10 or 12 are available.

For reservations, contact the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, 500 N. Progress Avenue, Harrisburg, PA 17109, (717) 652-7530.

INCLUSION BODY HEPATITIS: A RE-EMERGING DISEASE

Barrett S. Cowen
M.S., Ph.D.
Dept. of Vet. Science
Wiley Lab

Inclusion body hepatitis (IBH) is an economically important disease of commercial chickens, especially broilers, which was first reported in the USA in 1963.

It was described as a necrotizing hepatitis in 7-week-old chickens associated with intranuclear inclusion bodies in hepatocytes. Subsequently, it was shown that the disease was associated with fowl adenovirus (FAV) infection.

IBH has been recognized in numerous countries/regions of the world and is reappearing as an important contemporary poultry health problem. It is characterized by a sudden onset of mortality which peaks in 3-4 days and usually stops by the 5th day.

However, mortality occasionally continues for 2-3 weeks. Morbidity is low and sick chickens are in what seems to be a crouching position with ruffled feathers and die within 48 hours or recover. Historically, mortality has usually been no more than 10 percent, but occasionally can be as high as 30 percent. However, this feature has changed in the last 10 years. IBH usually is observed in broilers 3-7 weeks of age, but it had been reported in chickens as young as seven days of age and as old as 20 weeks of age.

Twelve serotypes (to date) of FAV have been isolated from chickens. Numbers of FAV have been isolated from both healthy and diseased flocks and this has resulted in differing opinions regarding their role as pathogens. There have been variable results when attempting to reproduce IBH with FAV isolates and marked differences in virulence have been demonstrated among isolates of the same and differing FAV serotypes.

Numerous field and experimental studies have emphasized a predisposing role for infectious bursual disease (IBD) and chicken infectious anemia (CIA) in IBH. Additionally, other studies have shown that simultaneous infection of chickens with FAV and chicken anemia agent (CAA) resulted in hepatitis and anemia, a condition which corresponds well with the IBH that was seen in the 1960s and 1970s.

Based on field and experimental evidence pointing to FAV acting as secondary pathogens (that is, as a result of primary immunosuppression) in a multifactorial disease (for example, IBDV + CAA + FAV = IBH), it is not surprising that the use of IBD vaccines markedly reduced outbreaks of IBH in the USA and other areas of the world.

In the late 1980s, a previously unknown disease having many similarities to IBH spread throughout Pakistan. The disease initially was observed almost exclusively in 3-6 week old broilers, although it has occasionally been seen in breeder pullets and layers. It is characterized by the accumulation of straw-colored fluid in the heart sac, severely affected liver and kidney, minimal morbidity, and 20-75 percent mortality. The heart lesion gave rise to the name "hydropericardium syndrome (HPS)," but it could well be a different form of IBH because the important signs, gross lesions, and histological changes associated with HPS are very similar to IBH.

At about the same time a HPS-like disease was reported in Mexico; hepatitis, hydropericardium, and high mortality being common features. This disease, which was reported as IBH, has subsequently been observed in Venezuela, Ecuador, Peru, and Chile. HPS has also been recently reported in Iraq, Kuwait, and India.

Many of the IBH/HPS outbreaks in these widely separated regions of the world have been found to be associated with serotype 4 FAV. The fact that there has been higher mortality and a much higher incidence of hydropericardium associated with these IBH/HPS outbreaks than has been the case, historically, with classical IBH (that is, primary or concurrent immunosuppression; secondary IBH) supports the need for a better understanding and knowledge of this disease syndrome.

In addition to the apparent changes in the clinical and pathological features of IBH during the past decade, new field and experimental findings have demonstrated that FAV can be primary pathogens. For example, there have been peracute IBH outbreaks (in broilers 7-21 days of age) in Australia and New Zealand in which there is no evidence of concurrent IBD and/or CIA.

Serotype 8 FAV were commonly isolated from affected flocks in both of these locations. Vaccination of broiler breeders with serotype 8 FAV in Australia has successfully protected broilers against peracute IBH outbreaks. What is the significance of the changes observed in this disease syndrome and associated causative agents during the past decade? Are there increasing numbers of highly pathogenic FAV arising in nature?

Do some of FAV serotypes (e.g., serotype 4) have greater tropism for certain organs (e.g., the heart) than other isolates/serotypes, or are they more virulent and heart-associated when interacting with other agents (e.g., IBDV and/or CAA)?

The fact that this disease syndrome(s) is changing and spreading should be of concern for the poultry industry of the USA, as well as other countries, as trade barriers are rapidly disappearing (for example, NAFTA). It is imperative that research on these syndromes and their associated disease agents be initiated so that poultry diagnosticians can rapidly recognize and distinguish these syndromes (if differences truly do exist) and will have the means (e.g., vaccines) to control them.

Research on IBH has been initiated at the Animal Diagnostic Laboratory at Penn State University and will initially be focused on observing and comparing the clinical and pathological features of this disease syndrome in experimentally inoculated chickens.

Penn State Dairy Science Club To Host Judging Contest

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Dairy Science Club will be holding its annual Invitational Dairy Judging Contest on Saturday, March 23, at the Penn State Ag Arena Holding Barns.

Judging contest chair Dean Kohler and assistant chair Charles Houp have invited all eligible contestants and teams to participate and compete against other teams from around the state.

There are six youth divisions in the contest: Senior 4-H, Intermediate 4-H, Junior 4-H, Senior FFA, Intermediate FFA, and Junior FFA.

Age breaks are as follows: Senior Division - born on or after 1/1/77 and before 1/1/80. Intermediate Division - born on or after 1/1/80 and before 1/1/83. Junior Division - born on or after 1/1/83 and before 1/1/88.

Contestants may sign up for a higher division, but not for a lower division.

The contest will consist of eight Holstein classes. Heifers will be included.

Senior 4-H and Senior FFA will give two sets of oral reasons. Intermediate 4-H and Intermediate FFA contestants will give one set of oral reasons. Junior 4-H and Junior FFA will not give reasons.

The contest chairman will designate reasons classes prior to the start of the contest. To be eligible for awards, contestants must give reasons on the designated classes.

Following lunch, contestants will go to an on-campus building where senior and intermediate division contestants will give oral reasons. There will also be a workshop on notetaking and group reasons for the Junior 4-H and FFA contestants and coaches.

This year there are two new divisions — intermediate 4-H and intermediate FFA. Junior age contestants who wish to give reasons should enter in the intermediate division.

Entry fees are $4 per contestant plus $4 per coach attending the contest if paid in advance. This fee covers the costs of lunch and mailings and should accompany the entry form.

For late entries on the day of the contest or after the deadline, there will be a charge of $5 per contestant and coach.

Entries are due by March 8.

Checks should be made payable to the Penn State Dairy Science Club. Requests for contest entry forms or questions concerning the contest should contact Dean Kohler at (814) 235-9297 or Dale Oliver at (814) 863-3914.

AJCA Youth Contests Deadline March 1

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio— The deadline for entering the American Jersey Cattle Association's Jersey Youth Achievement Contest and Jersey Youth Production contest is March 1.

The achievement contest is open to youth who own one or more Registered Jerseys, who are at least nine years old but not more than 19 years old. Juniors are nominated by their state Jersey organization each year.

Any Jersey junior who has competed in previous years, has not placed first, and is still eligible agewise, may also compete again.

The top 10 winners in the contest are presented with cash awards totalling $2,000 at the All American Banquet and Fun Fest held during the All American Jersey Show in Louisville, Ky., in November.

The National Jersey Youth Production Contest is designed to encourage juniors to maintain production records on their animals. The age limits for this contest are the same as those for the youth achievement contest.

Records submitted for this contest are adjusted to 305-day, twice-a-day milking, and for age and month of calving. The adjusted records are then ranked by using multiple component pricing formulas to figure product value.

For complete information on entering these contests, contact Sara Gaetz at the AJCA officer, 6486 East Main Strect, Reynoldsburg, Ohio 43068-2362, phone (614) 861-3636. All entries must be postmarked by March 1, 1996 to be considered.

get out of Washington — create grass roots partnerships; negotiate, don't dictate."

Hawkins said that she felt really good about being part of government when Dunn read from the cards.

"The fact that he came out of Washington indicated to me the real support there is at the national level."

She said the words Dunn read, about hammering away at archaic government ineffectiveness, "are words frequently heard, but it's much nicer when they come out and and deliver them personally and thank you for the job done."

Speaking on behalf of the members of the team, Hawkins said, "They felt really good that he took time to read (about the team's achievements) and talk about several specific initiatives that we had undertaken and that were successful."

For herself, she said, "It really kind of made me feel patriotic about it. As a taxpayer, a lot of us sit around and cmplain, and when I was in (private) business, I was constantly complaining."

She said receiving the recognition and the go ahead and support from the government administration to be effective and deliver, "I felt like I was instrumental in doing something to help make our government more efficient and less burdensome.

"This is the beginning of what I hope will be a widely accepted way of government doing business — placing our people where people are, instead of by counties.

"Here in Pennsylvania, we hope to make an entire statewide team. On a region-wide basis, we're hoping to start field teams within three or four other states, hopefully within the next year."

Dealers Visit Aftermarket Expo

NASHVILLE, TN—Twelve individuals representing eight John Deere dealerships in southeastern Pennsylvania and northeastern Maryland participated in Deere and Company's seventh Aftermarket Expo. The Expo was held in Nashville on January 30, 31 and February 1 at the Crown Plaza Hotel. The theme of this year's Expo was "People Make The Difference." Dealer parts and service personnel participated in a variety of classes and training pertaining to the Aftermarket (after the sale) portion of their business and received the opportunity to visit directly with representatives from John Deere factories, many of which supply John Deere dealers their parts. During the opening night dealers were treated to the entertainment of singer Louise Mandrell and closed their three day session with motivational speaker Charlie Plumb.

Dealers viewed such innovations as JD Vision, a CD-Rom based Electronic Parts Catalog which assists the dealer in better serving customers. Dealers were also introduced to such products as Lead-free paints and a biodegradable Hydraulic Oil, an industry exclusive for Deere.

A highlight of this year's Expo was the unveiling of the new John Deere sponsored NASCAR Race Car. For the 1996 race season, Deere will be sponsoring the number 23 Pontiac Grand Prix piloted by Busch Grand National Driver Chad Little. The car will make its debut at the Daytona International Speedway on Saturday February 17. During the 1997 season John Deere looks forward to moving up from the Busch Grand National Series to the elite Winston Cup Series with Chad Little as driver.

Roger and Donald Angstadt from Pikesville Equipment inspect the John Deere number 23 Pontiac which will be driven by Busch Grand National Driver Chad Little.

Grazing School Set

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Dairy and livestock producers intent on making the conversion to an intensive grazing system on their farm is the focus of a series of workshops offered through Penn State Cooperative Extension in March.

The Southeast Pennsylvania Grazing School will be held March 14, 21, and 28, from 10 a.m. - 2 p.m. at the Berks County Agricultural Center.

"We are interested in working with a small group of producers who want to take the time to think about how they will incorporate grazing on the farm," said Mena Hautau, extension agent with Penn State Cooperative Extension in Berks County.

During the workshop, producers will redesign their farm for grazing using aerial photos and the soil survey maps. At the end of the workshop, producers will walk away with a plan.

"We also want them to have the support of their feed dealer and veterinarian. If producers want to develop additional on-farm support throughout the growing season, we intend to discuss that too," according to Clyde Myers, extension agent.

'The workshop is limited to 20 participants. The registration fee, due March 8, is $35 for the one person from the farm and $20 for each additional person from the farm. The fee includes reference material and the noon meal for all three meetings.

For more information, contact Mena Hautau, Penn State Cooperative Extension Office, PO Box 520, Leesport, PA 19533-0520, (610) 378-1327.

for $4,000. This Celsius, with strong ties to Ivanhoe Bell, is out of a seven-generation Cherry family that is full of Excellent, Very Good, and Gold Medal dams with lifetime records over 200,000 pounds of milk lifetime.

The third high price came on Solid-Gold Mandel Library-ET, from Mike and Cindy Weimer, Emlenton. This September 1995 calf was out of the heavily contracted Trifecta Lucky Family, that has Excellent, Very Good, and Gold Medal dams back nine generations.

The buyers at $3,900 were Dennis and David Hottenstein, New Albany, and Lester Poust, Muncy.

The convention continues through today with the annual meeting and presentation of awards.

Lancaster Farming plans to have photographs and full coverage of the convention next week.

Ag Consultants Set Workshop

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.)—A marketing workshop has been scheduled for 9:45 a.m. on Friday, March 1, here at the Lighthouse Restaurant.

The workshop is being sponsored by PLS Agri-Management Associates of Carlisle and Russell Agricultural Consulting from Kennedyville, Md.

PLS Agri-Management Associates is owned by Bradley J. Hilty. They provide integrated management services, including accounting, business management and production consulting services to farmers in Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Dr. James Russell, owner of RAC, provides marketing advice to farmers in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and Virginia. He is publisher of the Russell Agricultural Marketing Newsletter.

Both Hilty and Russell were formally employed by the Cooperative Exension Service of the University of Maryland.

According to Hilty, "there is a need for such a workshop to insure that dairy and livestock producers don't get caught short in dealing with a bull grain market as they did this year."

Producers will learn how they can utilize futures and options markets to protect against high grain prices.

Although Hilty initially organized the workshop to help dairy farmers learn about marketing alternatives for managing the risk of feed prices, he and Russell are inviting grain, livestock and dairy producers to participate in their workshop.

The workshop will last from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. A registration fee of $5 is being charge to cover materials. Lunch is provided.

Farm Bureau Announces Legislative Priorities

ALBANY, N.Y.—Concerned about the survival of the state's $3 billion agricultural industry, New York Farm Bureau unveiled its list to top legislative priorities: property tax reform, workers' compensation reform, private property rights, and the NYS Budget.

The announcement was part of New York Farm Bureau's Annual Policy Execution Days, Feb. 12-13. As in past years, the flagship lobbying event has brought more than 250 farmers to the State Capitol to meet with lawmakers from rural and urban areas of the state.

According to John Lincoln, president of the 25,700-member New York Farm Bureau and a dairy farmer from Ontario County, "Farm Bureau's prime issue is agricultural property tax reform. With property taxes on New York farms the highest of the nation's 40 agricultural states, we must give our farmers the relief they need to be able to help grow New York's economy. Property tax reform will enhance the competitiveness and profitability of our farms and spark economic development in rural areas all across the state. Without property tax reform, agriculture will fade away like other great industries that are now only a part of this state's history. We will, also, see the loss of valuable open space, economic depression in the rural parts of the state, and the loss of the locally grown food New York consumers enjoy."

Lincoln continued, "Our property tax load is crushing. Property taxes represent 40 percent of a farmer's net farm income. Cows and crops don't go to school or collect welfare or Medicaid benefits, yet our farmers must pay tax on the tools of their trade." He said, "An income tax credit will help farmers cope with the problem, without taking tax revenues from local governments and school district."

Switching to another issue, Lincoln said, "If farms and other businesses are to remain profitable and competitive, workers' compensation rates must come down further.

"That is why we are pushing for reform of the workers' compensation system, including doing away with costly third party lawsuits (Dole v. Dow). New York is the only state that still allows these third party lawsuits."

He said, "We must, also, eliminate fraud and frivolous claims, allow all employers to use managed care, and base a 'safe work environment' on a negligence standard."

Lincoln said, "The rights of property owners are under seige. Farmers and other landowners are seeing their property rights sacrificed by federal, state, and local laws and regulations which restrict use of the land, without compensating landowners for their loss. We support legislation, S.5077 (Johnson), that assesses the impact of government actions on property rights before they become law. This legislation requires government to look before it leaps into a program that restricts property rights."

"Though we support the Governor's continued emphasis on reducing state spending and lowering taxes, we believe the cuts in the staff of the tiny Department of Agriculture & Markets are too deep — threatening the safety of the food supply and the effectiveness of the Department."

State Legislative Conference Set

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Annual Pennsylvania Farm Bureau State Legislative Conference will be held Monday, March 25, at the Ramada Inn.

The official party representatives of the Adams farm bureau will be visiting Rep. Steve Maitland, Rep. Steve Nichol, and Sen. Terry Punt in Harrisburg during the conference.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss agricultural issues being considered by the Pennsylvania General Assembly. The committee will urge support from the legislators for the farming community concerns.

State Representative Balances Family, Farm, And Political Responsibilities

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HOST (Berks Co.) — Winding down the lane that leads to Deitschland Farm, visitors catch a glimpse of Polled Herefords grazing on a distant hillside. Rolling acres of cleared land and stands of timber rise above the stone farm house nestled in the hollow. A person can almost feel themselves say ah'hhh and relax away from the pressure of schedules and too many people.

But the Millers who live in the stone farmhouse with a brook rippling underneath it, lead no leisurely lifestyle.

Sheila is the state representative for Berks 129th district. Her husband Mike labors for a Purina dealership. Eleven-year-old Emilie, the state Polled Hereford Princess, has a scheduled filled with cattle competitions, school, 4-H, and Girl Scout activities, clarinet lessons, and gymnastics. On top of all that, the family farms about 150 acres and raises 25 brood cows plus young stock.

It isn't easy balancing political, family, and farming responsibilities, but Mike explains, "It's all in doing what you know you have to do. The way I look at it, this is our choice. Nobody is making us do this. It's what we choose."

Although Mike supports his wife's decision to be active in politics, he wants no parts of it himself. To some, it may seem that he takes a backseat to his wife's public image.

He said with boyish wit, "It never bothers me being known as Mr. Sheila Miller. She was popular before I knew her, and after I met her — she became a lot more popular."

Sheila portrays a gracious, refined image adept at handling both satisfied and disgruntled constituents.

Raised on a Dauphin County commercial beef farm, Sheila had no political aspirations. She enrolled as a pre-med student in college, but soon realized she preferred animals and the outdoors, so she switched to general ag studies at Penn State.

After graduating cum laude, Sheila worked for a number of years for the USDA Soil Conservation. When Mike and his dad who were farming in Adams County decided to build a pond on their farm, they called the Conservation office. Sheila designed the pond and a romance bloomed. She and Mike married and shared the dream to farm together. It took several years of scouting out farm sales in surrounding counties before they found the 63-acre farm on which they now reside.

Farmers got an advocate in the state House of Representatives. Sheila is one of only six of the house's 203 members involved in farming.

"It was grown up in brambles, all the barns had collapsed, and the only structure left standing on the property was a log house — and that needed new wiring and plumbing," Sheila said.

But Sheila saw the potential. After a quick call to her husband, Mike gave her the go ahead to make an offer for the farm she described.

The Millers purchased the property not because they wanted to reside in Berks County but the farm met their criteria: It was affordable. It had trees, land, streams, and hills.

Like many young couples starting in farming, the Millers put most of their time and money into establishing the farming operation and only miminal repairs to the house. With the help of family members and friends, they cleared the brush and brambles, dismantled a bank barn located 10 miles away and rebuilt it in the VPI (Virginia Polytechnical Institute) style on their property.

The rebuilding took every weekend for at least a year, but the couple did it is stages as they could afford it.

With Sheila's background in conservation, the gullies and major erosion on the farm was stopped with contour farming methods. To keep manure from running into the streams, the cattle were allowed limited access to the streams.

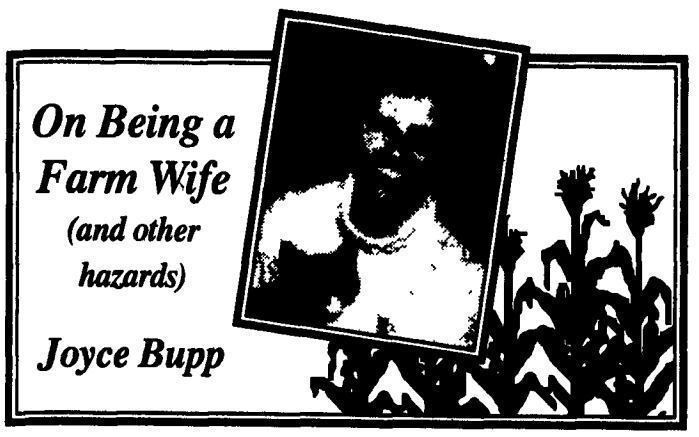
"I've always been terrible at backing wagons, so we designed the barn to drive straight through,"

(Turn to Page B4)

Rep. Sheila Miller with husband Mike, daughter Emilie (who is the state Polled Hereford Princess), and puppy Bonnie enjoy the outdoors their farm offers.

The Miller's 63-acre farm encompasses hills and valleys in all directions. They also rent additional land to bring the total acreage farmed to about 150.

HOMESTEAD NOTES



After a recent CBS news broadcast, which infuriated dairy farmers across the country, some of us have felt the need to respond. I'd like to share with you the following letter I wrote to anchorman Dan Rather, who aired the piece on proposed dairy legislation.

(I revised this several times, cleaning up my initial, gut-level-emotion response!)

Have you ever been hungry? Few Americans in positions of leadership and public-opinion setting have likely experienced the pangs of a really empty stomach.

Americans are the best and most inexpensively-fed people on earth. That's because American farmers have consistently grown more efficient. Less than one million farmers — those who sell $10,000 or more worth of agriculture goods per year — not only feed our nation of billions, but feed billions more around the world.

What a disappointment that a recent CBS news report by you has done the American dairy farmer a serious disservice. That report, aired February 2, charged that dairy farmers had secretly conspired to develop legislation that would cost American consumers some $2.5 billion dollars and put "additives" in milk.

During the past year, agriculture and food industry representatives testified at Congressional hearings held around the country toward developing new farm legislation. These were public hearings, widely covered by the press. Working from the basis of those hearings, legislators developed the dairy proposals recently voted out of the House Agricultural Committee. This is hardly a secretive process.

Yes, the goal of that legislation is to modestly increase the price of raw milk. Dairy producers today are receiving comparatively less for raw milk shipped from their farms than they did a decade ago. Such depressed income levels, compared to the inflation which has steadily increased prices of every input, are creating a severe financial crunch to our nation's dairy farm families.

Your report projected an increase per gallon of milk to consumer of 40 cents. Industry estimates the per gallon increase under the proposed dairy legislation to be about 9 cents. Adjusted for inflation, consumers are already paying less for a gallon of milk today than they were in the 1950s. Raw milk price has traditionally had little effect on the retail price, since the farm price is only about one-third of checkout cost of a gallon of milk.

Meanwhile, the cost of the dairy program to America's taxpayers has dropped from $2.5 billion in 1983 to $4 million in 1995; dairy farmers actually pick up most of the tab through assessments on every pound of milk they sell. But, farm support programs are a form of hunger insurance for the consuming public. Today, there are virtually no stocks of dairy commodities on hand in government storage, should some disaster strike.

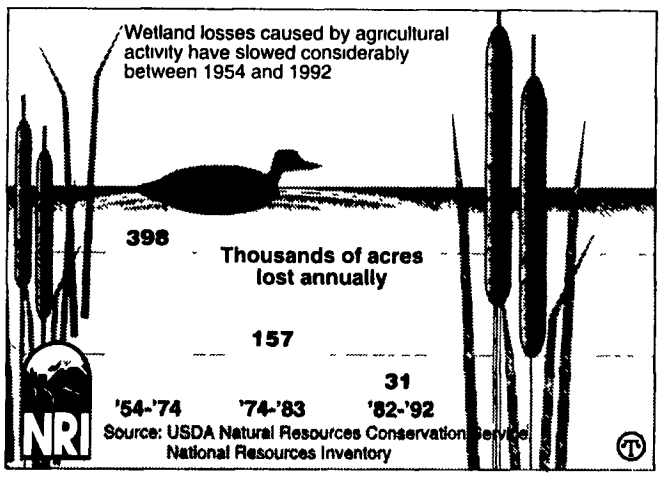
Now, about those "additives." The proposed legislation would simply increase the minimum standards of solids-not-fat in milk — the nutritious but NOT FAT things like protein, calcium and minerals — to standards that California consumers have enjoyed for many years. California milk is consistently rated superior in taste tests. And, milk fortified with higher solids-not-fat is not only better tasting, it's more nutritious.

Milk is not manufactured in the back of supermarket dairy shelves. It can only be produced by the minor miracle that is the dairy cow. If you and all consumers are to have ready supplies of milk in your refrigerators, dairy producers must be able to earn a financial return that enables us to maintain our herds and our farms.

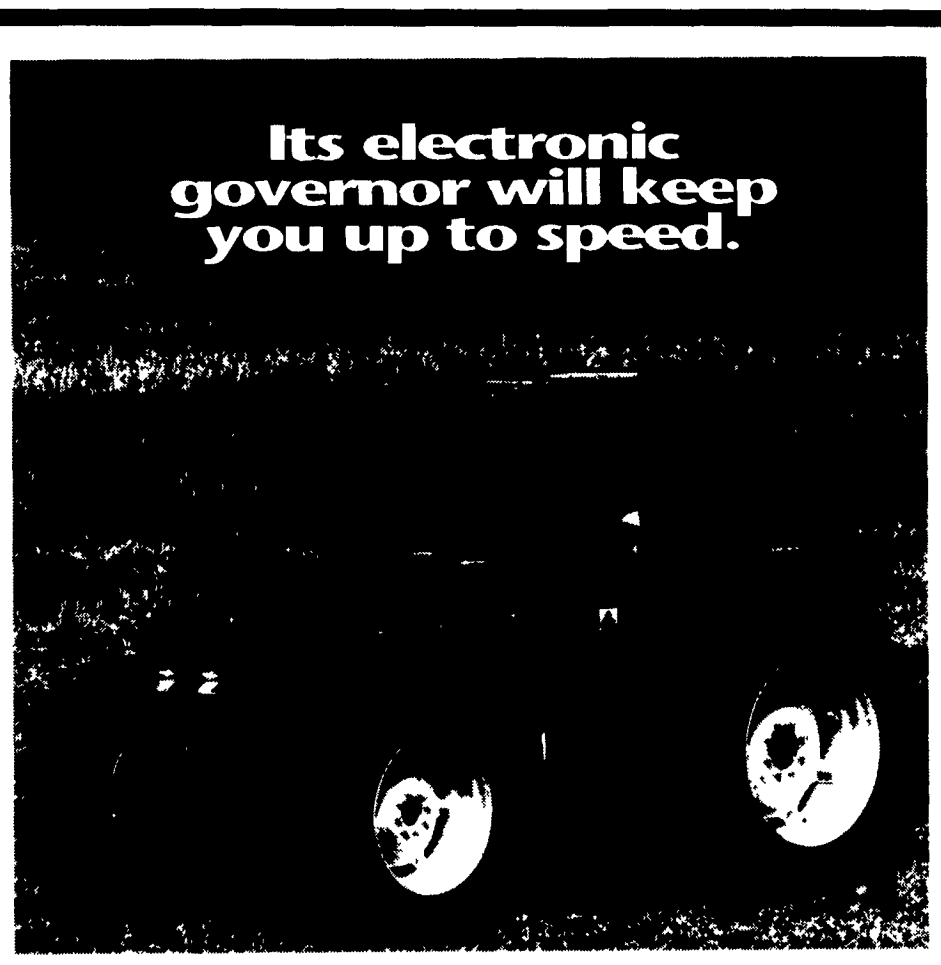
Mr. Rather, your dependability, your believability, your credibility has always seemed above reproach. We challenge you to restore our confidence in your reporting with an airing not just the retailers' side, but also the producers' side of this important public issue. Sincerely yours . . .etc.

And sincerely irritated about irresponsible, distorted reporting.

Agricultural Wetlands Loss Is Down



(NAPS)—Wetland loss due to agriculture has slowed down dramatically during the last forty years. Although wetland losses due to agriculture continued during the 1980s, they did so at a much slower pace than in previous years. Losses caused by agriculture during the 1982-92 period were about 31,000 acres a year—around one-fifth the annual wetland losses estimated by the Department of the Interior's Fish and Wildlife Service for 1974-83, and less than ten percent of the annual losses estimated for 1954-1974. Between 1982-92, wetland losses due to nonagricultural activities outpaced those caused by agriculture.



The electronic governor on our AGCO Allis 8600 Series just might change your mind about traditional methods of farming. Set it and you've got precision ground speed for more productive operations, no matter how the terrain varies. Plus there's less downshifting and improved fuel efficiency, too. At 103 and 120 PTO hp, these tractors are designed with advances for today's profit-oriented farmer. Like dependable two-wheel or all-wheel drive, and a synchronized reverser transmission to easily change direction. Plus, a state-of-the-art climate controlled cab, an advanced air-cooled diesel engine for less maintenance, longer life and greater productivity. And, they're backed by a strong AGCO warranty – four years or 4,000 hours as standard. Check out these high powered tractors at your local AGCO Allis dealer. And ask about flexible Agricredit financing.

Sheila said of the barn used to store hay and machinery.

The Millers moved on the farm with only three Polled Herefords. They converted the overgrown land, cleared some woodland and turned it into hay and grain fields. At first, they used only five acres for pasturing. Now they use 30 acres divided into 12 paddocks. Deer are prevalent in the area, and knocked down several fences until the Millers invested in high tensile fence, which works well for their purposes.

When the Millers first purchased the farm, Sheila was editor of Lancaster Farming. "I had access to a lot of information that we applied on our farm," Sheila said of the crop management and barn building styles they selected.

"It was also through my job at the paper that I became interested in politics," Sheila said. "Through covering hearings in Harrisburg and legislature work in Washington, I got to know the senators and other legislators."

She accepted a job on the Senate Ag and Rural Affairs Committee of which she was later named executive director. Daughter Emiliee was born during her 10-year stint on on the committee. In 1992, when the seat for the 129th district became available, Sheila, through the proddings of many in the farm community, ran for state representative.

It was a seven-way primary and Sheila was the only one with a true farm background. After winning the primary, she proceeded to also win the general election — the first woman representative elected in Berks County.

"I refuse to run a negative campaign, which puts me in a minority position," Sheila said.

Like any political involvement, Sheila has occasionally been verbally attacked. While campaigning with her mother, a total stranger berated her for being a crooked politician simply because she was involved in politics.

While Sheila was inclined to remain diplomatic, her mother's protective instincts arose and she said, "That's my daughter and I don't want you talking to her like that."

In restrospect, funny incidents such as those brighten the harsh realities of the political arena. Emilie was only three years old when she overheard adults talk about an upcoming tough political race. On the morning of the election, Emilie asked her mother if they would watch people running around the track for the race and if her mother thought one of the older men would be able to run fast enough.

Now 11 years old, Emilie has had plenty of exposure to political processes. She likes to visit the senators in Harrisburg, and thinks the rotunda is pretty.

"But I don't want to be in politics because I see how late my mom needs to work at night. I used to say I wanted to be the first woman president, but I don't say that anymore," Emilie said.

In the summertime, Mike and Sheila share responsibilities by taking Emilie with them to work. Or, sometimes grandparents care for her.

During the school months, Mike feeds the cattle before starting work at the Purina dealership in Richland at 7 a.m. Emilie and Sheila check the cattle before Emilie catches the school bus. Mike returns home at 4 p.m. when Emilie arrives home on the bus. Together they feed the cattle. Since Sheila became a representative, Mike does most of the farm work.

As she pointed to stacks of reading material on the coffee table, Sheila said, "The trouble with my job is that it can be a 24-hour day job. It requires lots of reading and I take it with me everywhere."

Sometimes Sheila reads mail and issue-related information until 2 a.m. and is up again at 5 a.m. to begin the days work, which requires her to study and be an expert on almost every concern that pertains to people living in her district.

"It's demanding, but rewarding to be of service to people," she said.

Sheila is pleased to have had three bills that she sponsored

When the Millers first moved on the farm, the 1790's log house was the only standing structure. Since then, they covered the log house with stone in keeping with the time period.

This newborn bull calf will be weighed before it is 24 hours old. Cattle are bred to have birth rates around 80-90 pounds, because larger weights often cause birthing problems.

Maintaining A Healthy Back In The Garden

Laying before you on the floor is a piece of paper that shows your garden plot plan and a 40 pound bag of potting soil. If you were to bend over and pick up either one of these items, which one do you think could put the most strain on your lower back? The majority would answer the 40 pound bag of potting soil. Yes, the 40 pound bag of potting soil can strain your lower back, but so can the piece of paper that shows your garden plot plan.

I personally can attest to this situation. Some time ago, I did blend over to pick up an 8x10 piece of paper, and felt this pain shoot threw may back and bring me to my knees in pain. I spent 10 long days in bed trying to heal my back.

You see, it isn't always the weight of the item you are picking up or lifting that can cause strain to the lower back. In my case, it was the position I was in when I reached down to pick up the piece of paper. I over rotated (twisted) my back when I bent down to pick up the piece of paper, also, my back was very tight from the strain I placed on it the day before.

Gardening is an excellent form of exercise.

Don't stress your joints. Any age group from toddler to a senior citizen can become involved in gardening. It's a great way to release stress, make friends and it burns anywhere from 250-300 calories an hour.

However, too much of a good thing has its price. When I'm out in my gardens, I seem to lose track of time and before I know it, I've worked through lunch and my children are begging me to start dinner. It's so easy to spend 5-6 hours out in my gardens and not realize that I've just spent the 5-6 hours bent over. Oh my aching back! I'll pay for it in the morning!

Here are some tips on how to keep your back strong and healthy for those long hours spent in the garden.

- When pulling weeds, picking up garden tools, etc., never bend from the waist only; bend from the hips and the knees.
- When lifting heavy items, such as bags of soil, shovels, the wheel barrow, etc., lift the bulk of the weight with the legs.
- Never lift objects higher than your waist.
- Always turn and face the gardening equipment or supplies you are lifting.
- Avoid carrying unbalanced loads. An example of this would be carrying a 25 pound bag of soil in one hand and an empty watering can in the other hand. Make two trips if you have to or load up the wheel barrow.
- Hold heavy objects close to your body. Keep hoe, rake, heavy bags of soil, etc., in close to your body.
- Never carry anything heavier than you can manage with ease.
- Avoid sudden movements.
- Learn to keep your head in line with the spine, shoulders are back and down and abdominal contracted. (Pulled in tightly).
- Incorporate strengthening exercises for the back, abdominal and thighs.
- Stretch before, during, and after any strenuous task. Any time you feel tension in the back, stretching is needed.
- Most importantly, before beginning any strenuous activity, whether it's as simple as gardening or beginning a stretching and strengthening program for your lower back, you should first consult with your physician.

Gardening has a great many rewards, but just as our gardens need TLC, we also need to take time to care for ourselves. So, begin today by implementing the tips on caring for your back. Work it into your daily life style and dig to your hearts content!

signed into law during her first term in office. One of those is the Farmland Preservation bill.

She is currently working on a bill for approval of an ag license plate. The profits from the sale of the specialty licence plates would help fund ag land preservation.

Most legislators, Sheila said, are sympathetic towards farming concerns and want to help them, but often don't realize that some proposals — especially those dealing with environmental concerns — could put farmers out of business instead of benefitting the agricultural community.

"It's hard enough farming without being burdened with paper work," she said.

Of her duties as representative, Sheila finds the public speaking aspect the most challenging.

"I still get butterflies wherever I get up to speak," she said.

There is little sparetime for Sheila. In fact, she said she hasn't read a book for pleasure since she took office. And the baby quilt she started to make for Emilie before her birth has now been relegated for the distant advent of a grandchild.

When asked who does the cooking, Sheila smiles and answers, "Cooking? We have a microwave."

Sheila isn't thinking of trying for national political office. She said, "I'm happy with my job here. I want to do the best at what I'm called to do. I couldn't handle that Washington Beltway, but then again, I never planned to seek this one (political seat)."

Potatoes Sprout Tasty Pleasures

Although the potato appears to be a bulky vegetable, it is 80 percent water. The potato is a nutrient dense food because it provides good nutritional return for its calories.

The potato is an important source of complex carbohydrates, vitamin C and B6, trace elements of manganese, chromium, selenium, and molybdenum. The potato supplies about 20 percent of people's daily potassium needs.

Not only is the potato a healthful choice, it tastes delicious and can be prepared in hundreds of ways. Here are a few delicious ideas from our readers.

POTATO BACON SOUP

4 cups diced potatoes
¾ cup diced onions
10-ounce can chicken broth
6 slices bacon, cooked, crumbled
1 cup cottage cheese
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup chopped celery
2 cups milk
¼ teaspoon pepper

In large pot, cook vegetables until tender. Remove one cup vegetables and add 1 cup cottage cheese and place in blender. Blend until smooth. Add blended mixture to pan, then add 2 cups milk, ½ teaspoon salt (optional), ¼ tespoon pepper, 6 slices cooked and crumbled bacon, 2 teaspoon bacon grease for flavor (optional). Heat through and serve right away. Serves 4-6.

½ cup butter, melted
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup green pepper (chopped)
1 pint sour cream
2 cups cheddar cheese (grated)
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup onion, chopped
1 can cream of celery soup

Blend all ingredients except potatoes, then fold them into the mixture. Pour into 9x13-inch pan. Top with bread crumbs and ¼ cup melted butter. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour, covered, then 30 minutes uncovered. Serves 10-12.

Jennifer Davis
Berks Co. Dairy Princess

CHEESY POTATOES

3 cups mashed potatoes
½ cup milk
½ cup butter
⅓ cup parmesan cheese
Salt and pepper to taste

Mash potatoes with milk, butter, salt and pepper until creamy. Put in 9-inch glass pie dish. Sprinkle with parmesan. Bake at 350 degrees until golden. Approximately 20 minutes. Serve as side dish with meat. Serves 6.

Jennifer Davis
Berks Co. Dairy Princess

OVEN GRATIN POTATOES

3 large potatoes, peeled, sliced, and placed in cold water
¼ teaspoon savory
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
¼ teaspoon white pepper
1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
1 garlic clove, peeled
2 eggs, beaten
¾ cup milk
½ cup heavy cream
Salt
Butter

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Drain potatoes and dry slices well. Place in bowl.

Mix savory, cayenne pepper, white pepper, and parsley together. Add to potatoes and mix.

Rub baking dish with garlic clove. Butter dish generously and arrange potato slices in layers. Season with salt. Mix eggs, milk, and cream together. Pour over potatoes. Bake in oven 40 to 50 minutes. Serves 4.

CHEDDAR POTATO CASSEROLE

3 cups mashed potatoes
1 cup shredded Cheddar
½ cup small green pepper
Salt to taste
4 eggs, separated
1 tablespoon green onion
½ teaspoon celery
Paprika

Prepare mashed potatoes as you normally do or use leftover mashed potatoes. Bring to room temperature if you use leftovers. Beat egg yolks into potatoes until well mixed. Stir in cheese, onion, green pepper, and celery salt. Whip egg whites into soft peaks and fold into potato mixture. Spoon into well-buttered 1¼ -quart casserole. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 375 degrees for 25-30 minutes.

Angie Mummert, York County Dairy Princess, says "Dairy products have many nutritious benefits, and can be used in several different ways. Here are a few recipes that are just right for February, which is Cherry Month."

CHERRY BAVARIAN

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1⅓ cup sugar
1½ cups boiling water
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 cups whipped cream
2 cups sour cream
fruit sauce topping (cherry) or other fruits may be used

Combine gelatin and sugar. Add boiling water and stir until dissolved. Blend in sour cream and vanilla. Chill until slightly thickened. Blend in whipped cream. Top with fruit or pie filling. Chill and serve.

CHERRY ICE CREAM PIE

Crust:
1⅓ cups vanilla wafer crumbs
2 tablespoons sugar
4 tablespoons butter, melted
1 teaspoon almond extract

Filling:
1 quart vanilla ice cream
1 21 ounce can cherry pie filling
2 tablespoons heavy sweet cream
2 tablespoons Confectioner's sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
Toasted slice almonds

For curst, mix together crumbs and sugar. Stir in butter and almond extract. Press mixture firmly and evenly against bottom and sides of a 9" pie pan. Bake at 350°F for 5 minutes. Cool and chill in freezer. For filling, spoon softened ice cream into crust, alternating 1 cup of cherry pie filling with ice cream. Return to freezer to harden. About 10 minutes before serving, remove pie from freezer in order to soften slightly. Meanwhile, whip cream until almost stiff; add Confectioner's sugar and vanilla; continue beating until stiff. Gently fold in remaining pie filling. Spread on top of pie with this mixture. Decorate with almonds.

Organizing Estate Information

In the last few weeks, I've been reminded of how temporary and fleeting life can be. So I'm encouraging families this week to take some time to update their files, organize information, and hold that annual "family conference" with their adult children.

There are so many things that individuals can do to make dealing with a death and settling an estate easier. But these things take energy and time. Guaranteed the suggestions in this article are familiar ones — probably ones that some of you have procrastinated on for quite some time.

To make the task of organizing personal and financial information more manageable, break the tasks down into smaller assignments. If you and a parent, or you and a child, need to review information together, make a plan to spend one hour each time they visit to address this task. Or pick one category and organize the information in this area first. For instance, tax records are important to a person's on-going finances and to settling an estate. Do you have past year's tax returns in one place? Have you filed each year? Do you have pertinent information about deductions and income for this year filed together? Completing each of these assignments contributes to getting a person's tax information organized.

Another important file to have available (and to keep updated) in case of an emergency is one with insurance policies. Do you have a concise record of the health and life insurance policies that you own? Be sure to include the smaller ones that might come with group membership to community, veteran, or professional organizations. Record the name, amount of coverage, beneficiaries, and information about accessing this insurance.

Take time to visit your attorney to review your will. Often families experience changes, and wills are more difficult to execute because they list a deceased person as a beneficiary or they stipulate guardians or executors that are no longer appropriate. They may be filed in a state where you no longer live or refer to property you no longer hold. A review every three years is advised; an annual review is even better. And don't forget to consult with the individual that you have identified as your executor. If a bank official will act on your behalf, take the time to let your children know this. Make sure that at least one person knows where you keep your safe deposit box key and at what bank you rent a box.

As a gift to the executor of your estate, consider tackling a few other organizational tasks:

- Order multiple copies of your birth certificate and have several copies of your marriage license on file.
- Review the contents of your safe deposit box. Are all your vehicle titles there? If you own a cemetery plot is the deed enclosed? What about a divorce decree? These documents are all important when settling a person's estate.
- Provide your children with an information card listing the name, address, and phone number of the attorney that is familiar with your will.
- Consider pre-arranging your funeral. Don't forget to keep your family/adviser informed about this. It doesn't do a lot of good to make these plans if people don't know about it and know what funeral business to contact. Also make notations that can be used to write an obituary report.

By establishing a "power of attorney," you can gradually familiarize another person regarding your finances and filing system.

While you're in the cleaning and organizing mood, don't stop at the file cabinet. Open up the closets, too! My grandmother developed a great system where she labels bags of "saved treasures" as "TAWIG" which means "Throw Away When I'm Gone." This is her assurance that the things inside are meaningless to others. Of course, some bags don't get that label because items inside have value beyond her time.

What can you do? Start with the bulging stack of old appliance owner's manuals and warranties. If you discarded the vacuum cleaner years ago, you don't need the paperwork. Same goes for the refrigerator warranty from a defunct model. Do yourself a favor, and give away or recycle some of those old clothes, coats, and scarves now.

Each time you and your children work together to organize your records and belongings, you give them a gift that will ease their pressure when they are faced with the sorrow-filled task of settling your estate.

Take the time to do at least one task this month.

Farm Women Societies

Berks Society 3

Farm Women of Berks County Group 3 read through the annual reading of the Farm Women by-laws, then played By-law Bingo, which is played by answering questions from the by-law book. Each member shared a show and tell item, which ranged from a Christmas stocking for to a handmade sweater and sweatshirt.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 27 at the home of Sonya Moyer, Boyertown.

Cook's • Question • Corner

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible. Sometimes we receive numerous answers to the same request, and cannot print each one.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — Rachel Zook, Willow Street, wants a recipe for honey mustard sauce that is good on soft pretzels.

QUESTION — Catherine Shearer, Greencastle, would like a recipe to make a pork roll.

QUESTION — A Kinzers reader would like a recipe for whole head sauerkraut. After it is fermented, one leaf is peeled off at a time whenever needed.

QUESTION — Donald Love, Somerset, would like recipes for a coffee cake, which uses black coffee as an ingredient but is not a crumb breakfast type coffeecake. He also wants a recipe for coffee ice cream.

QUESTION — Donald Love, Somerset, would like a recipe for zucchini relish that tastes a lot like Heinz sweet pickle relish and a recipe for bar-b-que sauce that has both a tangy and hickory flavor and is mildly spicy hot. It tastes similar to the Cattleman Brand Sauce used in restaurants.

QUESTION — Marie Tschudin, Littlestown, would like an old recipe for graham cracker cake, which she suspects may be known by 80-90-year-olds.

QUESTION — Beulah Davis, East Fallowfield, would like a recipe for New England Clam Chowder that tastes like that served at Yoder's Restaurant in New Holland.

QUESTION — Mrs. David Fisher, Lewistown, would like a recipe to make a chocolate mix such as Nestles' Quik.

QUESTION — Kathy Messina would like a recipe for a Pillsbury bake off winner called Orange Kiss-Me Cake, made with frozen orange juice concentrate used in the batter and as a frosting with a cinnamon sugar-nut mixture.

QUESTION — Previously Beatrice Wright, Duncannon, submitted a recipe for creamed lettuce. Ruth Ann Greathouse of Lititz writes that the recipe sounds interesting, but she would like to know if it is served as a side dish or how does she serve it with pot pie, noodles, and pig maw. And how much lettuce is needed?

QUESTION — Lizzie Sensenig, Mifflinburg, would like a recipe for Magic Shell Chocolate Syrup, which gets hard when poured on ice cream.

QUESTION — Susie Snyder, Fairfield, is looking for a cookie recipe called Cherry Winks, which is made with cream cheese and rolled in nuts and a cherry pressed in the center.

QUESTION — Tina Forry, Palmyra, would like a recipe to make taco seasoning and a recipe for orange pudding, which contains mandarin oranges, vanilla pudding, and orange Jell-O.

QUESTION — Lisa Collura, Holtwood, would like a recipe to make angel cream doughnuts.

QUESTION — Joanne Trombley would like a recipe for cranberry claret wine jelly, port wine jelly, and rose wine jelly. Her grandmother made these wine jellies many years ago; unfortunately, her recipes died with her in 1976, before Joanne was old enough to ask for the recipes. Please included detailed directions because Joanne has never made jelly.

QUESTION — Anna Schrader, Townsend, Del., would like a recipe for making jelly from canned juice. The can says it is 100 percent grape juice, but Anna said that it tastes sweet to her and does not appear deep purple like juice made from the grapes she picks from the vine.

QUESTION — R.G. would like a recipe for tuna loaf, which she writes is made at King's Store, but no location is given.

QUESTION — Linda Ludwig, Reading, would like recipes for blueberry and cinnamon raisin bagels, and an apple tart with syrup topping like those sold by Ruppert's Bakery at the Leesport Auction years ago.

POTATOES AND CHEESE

6 medium potatoes, cooked, drained, peeling removed
1 cup celery, chopped, sauteed
2 onions, chopped, sauteed
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon basil
¼ teaspoon thyme
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon coriander
2 pounds American cheese, diced (reserve 4 slices)
Onion salt
1 cup carrots, cooked, diced, drained
2 pounds ground beef, browned, drained
¼ teaspoon cumin
2 cups milk
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Slice potatoes, set aside. In a separate bowl, combine carrots, celery, and onions; set aside. Add cumin and coriander to browned ground beef. Pour milk into blender, add cornstarch, diced cheese, garlic powder, basil, thyme, and pepper, blend until semi-smooth. Heat in microwave until creamy and slightly thickened. Stir often; set aside. Arrange in a buttered slow cooked as follows: half sliced potatoes, sprinkle with onion salt, carrots, celery, onions, and meat mixture.

Top with four slices cheese and remaining potatoes. Sprinkle with more onion salt. Pour cheese sauce over all. Heat on high in slow cooker until bubbly, about 1½ hours.

2 cups grated mild cheddar cheese
2 cups diced cooked chicken
¼ cup finely chopped onion
½ cup melted butter
2 cups sour cream
2 cans cream of chicken soup, undiluted
1 bag frozen broccoli tips
¼ cup finely chopped celery

Spray a 9x13-inch baking pan with non-stick spray. Mix everything together in a large bowl and spoon into baking pan. Top with melted butter. Bake at 350 degrees for 60 minutes, uncovered.

POTATO PEEL SOUP

Wash 4-6 potatoes, depending on size. Scrub with a brush. Peel and add peelings to the soup stock immediately.

Soup stock:
4 cups chicken broth
1 cup sliced carrots
1 cup chopped onions
1 cup chopped celery
Salt and pepper to taste
Fresh dill, parsley, or desired herbs

Simmer broth, carrots, onions, and celery, about 30 minutes until tender. Add your choice of fresh herbs and salt and pepper. Add as much milk or half and half as needed.

QUESTION — Sarah Clark, Breezewood, would like recipes for a cheesecake made with a layer of caramel then baked with a layer of spicy apples on top; and an ice ball rolled in coconut and flavored with rum.

QUESTION — Gladys Lillya, Salem, N.J., would like a recipe for Amish Old-Fashioned Puffy Sugar Cakes, which are sold at Good & Plenty Restaurant, Lancaster.

ANSWER — Gail Hunter, Smithsburg, Md., wanted a recipe for Trail Mix Bars. Thanks to Laura Horst, Lebanon, for sending a recipe.

Trail Snack Bars

½ cup butter
60 marshmallows
6 cups Cheerios
4 cups granola
2 cups raisins or chocolate chips

Melt butter in saucepan over low heat. Add marshmallows, stirring until well blended. Add remaining ingredients, stirring until well coated. Press into 9x13-inch pan, which has been greased. Cool. Cut into bars. Delicious.

ANSWER — Michele Millerton, Powlison, wanted a recipe for breadsticks and the tomato sauce in which to dip the breadsticks. Thanks to an anonymous reader for sending the breadstick recipe. The breadsticks may be dipped in pizza sauce or spagetti sauce.

Breadsticks

1½ cups warm water
1 tablespoon yeast
1 tablespoon oil
1 tablespoon sugar
1¼ teaspoon salt
4 cups flour

Butter Mixture:
½ cup butter, melted
3 tablespoons olive oil
3 tablespoons parmesan cheese
1 teaspoon garlic powder
2 tablespoons dried parsley

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Add oil, sugar, and salt. Stir in flour until it is too stiff to stir with spoon. Dump on floured surface and knead several minutes. Let rise until double in size. Roll out to a 15x15-inch square, using flour as you roll the dough. Cut strips of dough with a pizza cutter. Cut each strip into three pieces, each 5-inches long. Dip pieces in butter mixture, twist and place on cookie sheet. Let rise a second time. Bake at 350 degrees about 18 minutes or until golden brown. For extra richness, brush rolls with more butter as they are removed from the oven.

CLASSIC POTATO CAKE

3 egg whites
2 cups sugar
½ cup butter, softened
1 cup mashed potatoes, warm
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon cocoa
2 cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
½ cup milk
¾ cup chopped pecans
Chocolate frosting

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour two 8-inch round cake pans; set aside. Beat egg whites in small bowl with electric mixer until stiff peaks form; set aside. Cream sugar and butter in large bowl with electric mixer until fluffy. Add potatoes, vanilla, and cocoa; beat until blended. Stir in flour, baking powder, and baking soda. Stir in milk and nuts. Carefully fold in egg whites until no whites remains. Divide and pour into prepared pans. Bake 35 to 40 minutes, or until toothpic inserted in center comes out clean. Cool completely in pan on wire rack. Frost with chocolate frosting.

RICED POTATOES

6 medium potatoes, washed, peeled
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter

Cut potatoes in quarters. Bring one quart water and salt to a boil in large saucepan. Add potatoes. Cover and broil 20 to 30 minutes, or until tender. Drain thoroughly. Reserve potato water for other uses, such as soup. Let stand, uncovered, until dry. Process through food mill or ricer. Spoon into warm serving dish. Pour melted butter over top. Serves 6.

RANCHERO POTATOES

4 large potatoes, cooked and sliced
¼ cup butter, divided
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup finely diced onions
¼ cup barbecue sauce
1 cup grated cheddar cheese

Rub inside of 8x8-inch casserole dish with 1 teaspoon butter. Layer half sliced potatoes in the dish. Set the remainder of potatoes aside.

In a saucepan, melt remaining margarine over medium heat, stir in flour, and add milk gradually, stirring constantly, until thickened.

Remove from heat and stir in salt, pepper, onions, and barbecue sauce. Stir in cheese and stir until cheese is melted.

Pour half sauce over layer of sliced potatoes. Repeat with second half of potatoes and sauce.

MAKE-AHEAD POTATOES

8-10 medium potatoes, cooked and drained
8-ounces cream cheese
½ cup sour cream or more as needed
1 package Ranch salad dressing mix
Butter

Mash potatoes thoroughly while still hot. Using electric mixer, beat in cream cheese, sour cream, and salad dressing mix. Add additional sour cream if needed or to reach desired consistency. Spoon potatoes into 3-quart casserole and dot with butter. Bake, uncovered, at 325 degrees for at least 30 minutes.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Bernice Poliskiewcz wanted egg-free cake and cookie recipes. Here are some from Jeanette Martin, Myerstown; Mrs. David Fisher, Lewistown; and Ruth Shirk, Lebanon.

Easy Spice Cake

3½ cups flour
2 cups packed brown sugar
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup water
⅔ cup oil
2 teaspoons vinegar
1 cup applesauce
1 cup nuts (optional)

Mix together all ingredients. Bake at 350 degrees for 35-40 minutes.

Seven-Layer Cookies

½ cup butter
1 cup graham cracker crumbs
1 cup coconut
1 cup chocolate bits
1 cup butterscotch bits
1 cup condensed milk
1 cup chopped nuts

Melt butter in 9x12-inch cake pan. Layer each ingredients as listed. Press down lightly. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Walnut Lace Wafers

½ cup flour
½ cup black walnuts, ground

Sift together flour and ground walnuts

4 tablespoons butter
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup light corn syrup
½ teaspoon vanilla

Melt butter. Add brown sugar and syrup. Bring to boil. Remove from heat and add flour mix and vanilla. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto foil-lined baking pans. Spread to make two-inch circle, leaving 1-inch space between cookies. Bake 8 minutes at 350 degrees. Cool completely before removing foil.

Apricot Bars

1½ cups flour
1½ cups oatmeal
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 cup brown sugar
Pinch salt
¾ cup butter

Mix first 5 ingredients. Cut in butter. Press into 9x12-inch baking pan, reserve ¾ cup.

6 ounces dried apricots
⅓ cup sugar
1½ cups water
2 teaspoons cornstarch

Cook apricots in 1 cup water until water is gone. Chop apricots and add sugar and cornstarch, and ½ cup water. Spread over crust. Sprinkle crumbs on top. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

CUSTOM APPLICATORS

If You Can Dream It, We Can Build It.

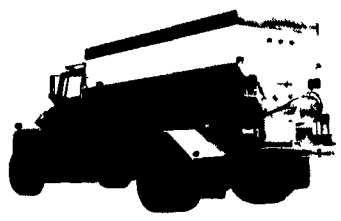
Tell us what you spread. We'll design and build your ideal truck spreader.

There's nothing like a truck spreader for efficient spreading. But your needs are unique. So with off-the-floor spreaders you generally end up with a compromise.

Now, with a custom-built Stoltzfus truck spreader you can have a unit that gives you every feature you want to make your business as profitable as it can be. Best of all, when time comes, re-selling is easier. Stoltzfus Spreaders are known to last 20, even 30 years.

For Dry Materials

For reliable accuracy in spreading mixed-density, dry flowable materials start with our basic "W-Chain" design. Apply custom blends of impregnated fertilizer in one pass. Spread dry lime, marl or land plaster, cement dust, and crushed stone with ease. Designed to operate on hillsides and in light winds, a Stoltzfus "W-Chain" Truck Spreader covers 40 acres at 10 mph with an average load; or from 100 to 4,000 lbs. per acre.



Spread Dry or Wet

For wet lime, poultry litter, compost and industrial lime by-products, nothing beats our versatile "V-Body" design. This rugged hydraulic spinner spreader handles wet or dry materials equally well. Spread a 40' pattern – as little as 125 lbs. or up to 8,000 lbs. per acre. Our largest basic unit has 20 ton capacity.

Make Your Move: Design Your Own

Call today. Put the Stoltzfus design team to work for you, without obligation. We'll work with you to build in every detail needed to create your ideal Truck Spreader. With 50 years experience building top-of-the-line ag spreaders, we know you'll be delighted with your custom Stoltzfus Truck Spreader. It's an investment that will pay you back over and over for years to come.

Seven-Year-Old Draws T-Shirt Design

Elizabeth and her mother enjoy reading books together. Elizabeth also shares her mother's love for preserving farmland. Now, through the sale of the T-shirts like the one Elizabeth is wearing, more money is being raised to help farmers preserve their farms.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

RAWLINSVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — When 7-year-old Elizabeth Zimmerman-Clayton drew a picture of a farm, she had no idea that her picture would appear on hundreds of T-shirts.

"I was at the picnic and they told us to draw a farm scene," Elizabeth said. "I sat two minutes and thought about it and then drew it."

The picnic was the annual one held by Lancaster Farmland Trust in September 1995. Judges selected Elizabeth's drawing from several finalists, many who were older than Elizabeth.

"I never won anything before," Elizabeth said.

Elizabeth's drawing is a brightly four-colored farm scene of a barn, cow, fields, silo, and tractor.

"But they cut off the front wheel of the tractor," Elizabeth said of her picture that was reproduced on the shirts.

The shirts are being sold to raise money to preserve farmland in Lancaster County.

Elizabeth, herself, lives on a farm that is preserved by Lancaster Farmland Trust. That means that the land on the farm must be used for farming and cannot be used to build houses, factories, or stores. If they want to, Elizabeth's family may sell the farm, but the person who buys it must use it for farming.

Elizabeth's parents, Nancy Zimmerman and Clifford Clayton, own the 28-acre farm in New Providence Township. The farm was purchased by Nancy's parents in 1941. Nancy loves the open fields and wooded areas on the farm. She was alarmed to see so many other beautiful farms like hers turned into housing developments. She believes that the growth of agriculture should be encouraged in the county because the farm heritage has enriched the lives of all people who live in the county.

Elizabeth's mother said that she wants to see farmland preserved because, "I hope my children have a county to live in like I did when I was little."

Elizabeth said that the barn she drew looks like the one on their property. The green and brown fields look like those outside her window in the springtime.

"The silo is like Naomi's — she's my Amish neighbor," Elizabeth said.

Evidently Elizabeth inherited some of her father's artistic talent. He taught art for a number of years before beginning his own antique restoration business in the farm's barn. Neighbors farm the land.

No one can accuse her dad for helping Elizabeth with her winning picture because he didn't even know she drew the picture until a

WITH TWIG WALKINGSTICK
Why does a compost pile steam in the winter?
Because the bacteria are heating things up!
In case you've never seen a compost pile before, it's a big pile of grass clippings, leaves, kitchen scraps, dirt — just about anything from your garden or yard you'd throw away
Bacteria and other tiny microorganisms that live in dirt feast on all the free food piled around them (Lawn clippings are bacteria's idea of a good meal — it might sound yukky to you, but they seem to like it.) As the bacteria chow down, they change the yard wastes into rich nutrients you can add to your garden's soil next spring. Adding compost to soil is like making a home improvement for plants!
So why the winter steam? Compost piles naturally get hot. Water vapor and heat are both released by the bacteria doing their thing. The moisture in the pile turns to ice in the winter — from the outside in. So even though it's cold out, most bacteria stay nice and cozy inside.
Of course, the colder it gets and the longer it's cold, the more likely a pile will eventually freeze the whole way through. Then the compost pile has to wait until spring to get active again, just like you!

This is the design drawn by Elizabeth that appears on the T-shirts sold by Lancaster Farmland Trust.

Seven-Year-Old

article about the T-shirt and design were published in the newsletter by Farmland Trust.

"When I was little we used to draw together," Elizabeth said. "He drew a bear. I drew a backpack on it, then he drew a lunchbox, and a school in the background."

Now Elizabeth likes to help her dad in his shop where he fixes furniture and collects antiques.

As a second-grader at New Providence Elementary School, Elizabeth enjoys art class. "I like to use tape, glue, scissors, and wood," she said.

At this point, Elizabeth doesn't plan to become an artist. Instead she would like to be a second-grade teacher like her teacher.

"My teacher reads us stories about artists," said Elizabeth who then recited an interesting life story about one of her favorite book illustrators.

"I like to read for the accelerated reader," Elizabeth said. She enjoys "Ramona," by Beverly Cleary and The Little House Books by Laura Ingalls. After Elizabeth reads a book, she takes a test to receive points. Students who earn enough points are eligible for an activity such as miniature golfing.

"I never got a test wrong yet," Elizabeth said.

Elizabeth sings in the choir and takes lessons in ballet, tap dancing, and piano.

She has a 10-year-old brother Paul."He thinks it's pretty cool that I won," Elizabeth said of her brother's reaction to her drawing.

The shirts designed by Elizabeth can be ordered by contacting the Lancaster Farmland Trust Office, P.O. Box 1562, Lancaster, PA 17608 or call (717) 293-0707 Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. T-shirts are 100 percent Fruit of the Loom heavyweight cotton and come in sizes S(6-8), M (10-12), and L (14-16). Cost is $12.95 plus $2 for shipping and handling.

All proceeds go to benefit Lancaster Farmland Trust in its important mission of preserving farmland in Lancaster County.

Return Of The Buffalo

ALBERTA, Canada — Buffalo are coming back on the Canadian prairies. According to the Canadian Bison Association (CBA), more than 35,000 head are being raised in private herds. And the enthusiasm to breed and market them is better than it has ever been, says a long-time bison rancher.

Since many people missed seeing the roaming prairie buffalo (or bison) herds at the turn of the century, you can see the majestic buffalo in great numbers at the 2nd Annual "Wild Rose Classic Bison Show and Sale," March 27 - 29 at the Edmonton (Alberta) Northlands Farm and Ranch Show.

Buffalo, both live and on the menu, are the attraction, says organizing chairman Tom Meerheimb, Mayerthorpe, Alberta, a pioneer bison breeder. Northlands food concessions will offer roast bison meat in special promotion for the "Wild Rose Classic." He invites the public to come and sample the meat, mingle with breeders, view the buffalo, participate in the Peace Country and Southern Alberta bison associations banquet, and attend the highlight sale, Friday, March 29 at 1 p.m.

Bison auctioneer Norm Moore, Alder Flats, Alberta, expects a strong sale offering witih 72 entries from Alberta's best herds. "Bison from Canada's northernmost herds anchor this sale," Moore said. The sale line-up will include 1994 and 1995 bulls and heifers, and all buffalo will be weighed and vet inspected.

As an added feature, the "Wild Rose Classic Sale," along with a preview, will be broadcast via satellite, a first-time happening for a bison sale. "Wherever you are in North America, plan to get together with other bison producers with a satellite dish for a ringside view," Moore commented. The preview and live sale will be on satellite Anik E-2, Channel 9. Preregistered telephone bids will be accepted.

Moore notes the buffalo business is growing at a feverish pace. For example, the CBA Agribition Sale in Regina in Nov. 1995 attracted a crowd of more than 1,000 people and the average price per buffalo hit about $5,000, topping all Agribition livestock sales for the second year in a row. "Here's an excellent opportunity for interested entrepreneurs and industry newcomers to get a feel for the bison business," he added. The organizing committee has planned informational booths and breeders displays.

The 500-member strong CBA (growing at a 25 percent rate yearly) actively promotes buffalo ranching and the tasty, nutritional buffalo meat, which is becoming increasingly popular to restaurants and on meat counters across the country.

Woman Farmer Finds Solutions To Problems Created By Machinery And Manure

Candace S. Burke
Burke's Little Twenty Sheep Farm

FREEPORT (Armstrong Co.)—My mother, a dairy farmer's daughter who hated farm life, ran away to the city, married, and raised her daughters happily in suburban Pittsburgh. Much to my mother's dismay, I dreamed of the country life and wanted to farm more than anything else in the world.

Thirteen years ago, I talked my very city-bred husband and two small sons into buying a small farm in Armstrong County. They didn't realize at the time I had every intention of farming. My husband Jim figured I would get a few animals and that would be it. When I told Jim one day that I could see the land covered with sheep, he replied, "You never told me you wanted to farm!" I did tell him many times — he was just not listening or believing.

Jim had a very demanding job as a data processing manager, sometimes working long hours into the evening and on weekends. So, as far as Jim was concerned, he did not need another job. Jim felt that a large, comfortable, riding mower was all this farm needed.

My uncle, who owned the family dairy farm in Bedford, knew my Jim was going to be a little problem with this farming idea. So my uncle urged me to go to my county Soil Conservation Service office and ask for help.

I walked into Armstrong County's Soil Conservation Service and proudly announced I had 30 ewes and I wanted to farm. Despite that introduction, a young understanding woman technician greeted me eagerly with news of an exciting new program called "rotational grazing." She urged me to attend an upcoming meeting.

I went to my first "Project Grass" quarterly meeting in Somerset the fall of 1995. I was fascinated over the concept of rotational grazing and felt then and there this would be the solution to my problem.

During the previous years, I had been making hay mostly myself. This was very hard because I could afford only old machinery that loved to constantly break down in the middle of hay season, usually when I had a field to cut. My sons were too young to be of much help loading and unloading hay, and Jim was, of course at work.

Thirteen years after purchasing the farm, Candace built a successful farm business by running 100 show ewes and lambs through paddocks on the farm and by marketing fresh lamb, lamb kolbasa, and lamb salami.

Water Quality Benefits Of Rotational Grazing
Pennsylvania Association Of Conservation Districts

By converting cropland into pastureland, the Potential for soil erosion is reduced. Row crops like corn are most prone to erosion since more soil is exposed year round.

Reduced pesticide use on pastures means less chance of pesticides reaching groundwater surface waters.

Manure spread by grazing animals on pastureland provides nitrogen phosphorus and potassium for new grass growth. Additional fertilizers may not be necessary depending on soil conditions, animals numbers, and location of watering points.

Properly designed, rotational grazing systems encourage a fairly even distribution of manure, thereby aiding soil fertility throughout the paddocks.

Frustrated with me and tired of fixing the baler late at night, Jim would say, "Make believe that baler is your sewing machine — you can fix that!"

To me, that big red baler with the bad notter was a pain I could do without. The idea of running animals on the land through paddocks, letting them cut the grass instead of me, grew more and more enticing. Rotational grazing seemed like a great idea.

Ten years later, that great idea has become reality. I run 100 large show ewes and lambs through the paddocks while they mow and fertilize the pastures as they go. The sheep are grazing the paddocks starting sometimes as early as April 15 to as late as December 1.

This size of farm could never produce enough storage hay to feed that number of ewes, but seven to eight months out of the year, I do not have to make hay or buy it. And running sheep on the land will yield me more profit (pounds of meat) at the end of the year per acre than hay. Even in dry spells, I may have to feed hay to 50 percent of the flock, but financially, I am still ahead of the game because I do not have to feed 100 percent of the flock.

Over the last couple of years, another problem arose with the increase in my flock size. Manure. All of our ewes would come into the barn to water, rest, and just loaf around, depositing more manure with each visit they made. The wet, mucky buildup of manure in the barnyard caused hoof problems and made disease control a challenge. As an associate director of Armstrong County Conservation District, I also understood the danger of water pollution from the buildup of nitrates around the barn and barnyard.

The solution was relatively simple. Keep the sheep where you can use the manure's nutrients — in the grassy paddocks. With the watering systems placed in each paddock, the sheep spread their manure throughout, virtually eliminating the need to add commercial fertilizers to the fields, and putting my manure spreader into semi retirement. I found that the marriage of rotational grazing and nutrient management was beneficial for both my sheep and my business.

(Turn to Page B15)

Raised in the city, Candace Burke longed to farm. Although her city-bred husband purchased the farm for her, he was too busy to assist her with hay making and machinery repairs. By using rotational grazing and nutrient management, Candace found a solution.

Paper Cutting Ignites Creativity

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.)—Recently, spouses of delegates to the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association convention spent the morning snipping paper with scissors.

This was no senseless activity, but one to ignite the potential for creativity that was hiding somewhere inside each of them.

Their hosts, wives of PYFA members in Somerset County's three chapters — Berlin-Brothersvalley, Rockwood and Meyersdale — had invited local artist, Paul Beal, to demonstrate sherenscnitt (the Pennsylvania Dutch term for paper cutting) since it's his area of expertise.

They couldn't have asked a more enthusiastic teacher. Beal thinks no cause is more worthy than that of inspiring newcomers in the art of scherenschnitt. Especially when their concept of scissors is geared to only mundane and practical usage.

Beal's intricate creations were displayed in their various farms. He's done scenes depicting homesteads and deer springing over a hillsdie and Valentine hearts trailed by patterns surely woven by love itself.

The 30 participants began with the simple, doily-like snowflake that kids often do in school art classes. Valentines came next with Beal urging his pupils to think creatively. He suggested pencil-sketching the design on the paper before making any cuts. A dove, for instance, is a nice touch.

"You are relating this to your experience," he told them. "This is you. You have to related it to your experience to make it personal."

In other words, they were to look afresh at old things they usually took for granted and dredge up a fresh mental image. For instance, lace or fabric, a favorite sweater, trees, plants of animals are good places to look for patterns. Sources of inspiration are found everywhere, Beal told them.

Antique glassware has long been a wellspring of influence for Beal. "It's really beautiful. There are so many possibilities for shapes," Beal told the attentive group.

Straight edges are boring. Even scalloped edges, if they aren't snipped here and there, will also be dull and boring after awhile. But these are minor nuisances for the amateur paper cutter whose determination leads to innovation. She will remember her pinking shears, or perhaps, her paper punch, when inventing her decoration.

The group learned that paper cutting began in ancient China, probably around 200 B.C. Somehow, in the intervening years, paper cutting caught on with the Amish in Europe. Later, the Pennsylvania Dutch were instrumental in promoting it, Beal said. To them it had utilitarian value.

They used it as a stencil for designs on their doors, chairs, chests and other furnishings. Paper cuttings became an accepted method for designing any needed patter. Another use was that of protecting furniture from dripping wax. They put a paper doily under the lighted candle.

Beal explained the difference between "negative" and "positive" cuts. Simply stated, pieces that are cut out are negative and whatever remains is positive.

Rose Dillman from Shippensburg, Cumberland County, had a super time learning paper cutting. She said later, that each activity got better as the day progressed. She couldn't decide which of them was her favorite — the paper cutting, lunch at "G. Whillikers" (an old historic landmark that was restored by Jeff and Pam Moore), touring the Inn at Georgian Place of browsing in the shops of the Horizon Outlet Mall.

Dillman said the women who planned the day included superb experiences for their guests, although time was at a premium.

Dillman said, "It would have been fun if there would have been more time."

"Don't let this be your last attempt at paper cutting," were Beal's final words of advice.

He belongs to the Mid-Atlantic Guild of Paper Cutters.

Paper cutting (scherenschnitt) fun was an activity spouses of the Pennsylvania Young Farmers got to do while in Somerset for the 1996 state convention.

Two of Paul Beal's paper cutting creations — fleeing deer and a farm with cows — are displayed at the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Convention held in Somerset.

Research Finds Vitamin E, Other Drugs May Help In ALS

TUCSON, Ariz. — When Lou Gehrig, baseball's "iron horse" was discovered to have amyotrophic lateral sclerosis in 1939, little was known about the progressive disease. Some authorities thought vitamin E might offer some benefit in slowing the disease, although there was no direct evidence. Since little else was even considered a "potential" therapy, Gehrig ate a daily salad of garden grass, a plant thought to contain high amounts of the vitamin.

Some 30,000 Americans are affected by ALS. Many continue to supplement their diets with nutrients including vitamin E, and a team of investigators supported by the Muscular Dystrophy Association is reporting the first evidence that the antioxidant slows muscle wasting in the early stages of the disorder in mice with a genetic defect for a familial form of ALS. Their study, reported today in Annals of Neurology, also noted some benefit from the antioxidant selenium, and found that two other drugs, riluzole and gabapentin, prolong survival in a later stage of ALS.

"We've entered a watershed period of progress in the battle against ALS," said Donald S. Wood, MDA's director of science technology. "The first prescription drug for treating the disease became available earlier this month, and last week the journal Science presented strong biochemical evidence that genetic defects in familial ALS cause an enzyme known as SOD1 to become toxic and damage nerve cells, instead of performing its normal function."

ALS is a paralyzing disease in which cells in the brain and spinal cord that control voluntary muscles gradually die. The disease leads to total paralysis and is usually fatal within five years. It usually strikes between ages 40 and 60.

Led by MDA grantee Mark Gurney, the study reported today, using the first mouse model for a neurodegenerative disease, was conducted mostly at Northwestern University in Chicago and Pharmacia Upjohn in Kalamazoo, Mich. Gurney created the model in 1994 with MDA funding, after MDA-supported researchers isolated disease-causing defects in the human SOD1 gene.

"Evidence that these drugs may slow progression of ALS underscores the real potential of this first-of-its kind mouse model that can yield reliable data on possible ALS treatments in as little as six months," added Wood. "Some 20 additional compounds are being tested singularly or as combinations, and these studies will help accelerate delivery of major health benefits to people affected by ALS."

Today's findings are compatible with the biochemical insights into the cause of ALS reported last week by chemist Joan Valentine of the University of California, Los Angeles and Dale Bredesen of the La Jolla (Calif.) Cancer Research Foundation. By analyzing the biochemistry of two SOD1 mutations that cause a familial form of ALS, this team found a "toxic gain of function" that may improve understanding of both genetic ALS and the much greater number of noninherited, or sporadic, cases.

Gurney said his study underscores the value of using transgenic mice to speed the search for drugs to treat ALS. "It also shows that ALS has two distinct phases, each of which might be treatable by a specific type of drug."

According to Gurney, nerve cells are "silently" damaged by the renegade SOD1 enzyme, made vulnerable to lethal damage from normal nervous system chemicals, such as glutamate, in phase one of the disease. In phase two, chemicals such as glutamate affect cells differently from the way they normally would, leading to cell death.

Gurney said he thinks today's results probably apply to all ALS, not just this genetic type, which affects only a small percentage of patients. Gurney also cautioned that selenium can be neurotoxic, so patients shouldn't take the antioxidant without close supervision from a doctor.

In December, the FDA for the first time ever approved a drug (riluzole, brand name Rilutek) for prescription use in ALS. The approval was based on human studies showing slightly increased survival times for those who took the drug versus those who took a placebo, or dummy pill.

Riluzole partially blocks release of the chemical glutamate from nerve cells. It was developed by Rhone-Poulenc Rorer with the aid of MDA research on glutamate. Doctors and patients at several of MDA's 230 hospital-affiliated clinics across the country helped test the drug, which slows progression of the disease.

Gabapentin (brand name Neurontin) is approved for use in epilepsy and is being tested for use in ALS. It seems to partially block the body's manufacture of glutamate.

Vitamin E and other antioxidants are being tested in clinical trials by MDA - supported investigators and results are expected this spring. Meanwhile, many doctors continue to recommend vitamin E to their ALS patients.

MDA is the nation's leading nongovernment source of medical services and worldwide research seeking treatments and cures for ALS. The Association allocates more than $5 million each year to its ALS program (about $2.5 million each to research and patient care), or some $100 million in the past four and a half decades. MDA maintains seven ALS research and clinical care centers, and some 230 clinics where people can get expert diagnosis and follow-up care form the country's top specialists in neuromuscular diseases. For more information about ALS, the latest research into neuromuscular diseases, or referrals to an MDA clinic, people should call 1-800-572-1717.

Smile!

One of the most important things you can give your child is a good sense of self-esteem. There are many things you can do to enhance your child's view of themselves: smile at them, encourage them, help make good decisions, and occasionally, take their picture or have it taken professionally.

Photography gives your child a special feeling. "Someone wants to remember me today."

So, even if you're not a great photographer, say "smile" to your child, and that feeling will help give your child self esteem.

Thirteen years later, this little farm has grown into a full-time business: selling farm fresh lambs to housewives in Pittsburgh and surrounding areas, shipping lamb kolbasa at Easter and lamb salami at Christmas time, and breeding, showing and selling quality replacement ewes and rams. Now, people compliment us on how much we have done to this small farm and what good business persons we are. But between you and me, all we have done it put fence, water, and animals on the land. We open and close gates six to seven months out of the year, and the sheep do the rest. By the way, my husband Jim never did need to buy me that large, comfortable, riding lawn mower.

We Can't Keep It Quiet Any Longer

Introducing: The Big Dutchman.

UniGROW360 BROILER FEEDING SYSTEM.

After years of Broiler Pan Evolution, It's Time for a Revolution.

Everyone also knows manually adjusting hundreds of pans every couple of days is unrealistic. The income you would gain in feed efficiency would be lost several times over in labor costs. That's why the UniGROW360 system is so revolutionary.

NOW, YOU CAN QUICKLY AND EASILY ADJUST THE FEED LEVEL AS OFTEN AS YOU LIKE

This special winch enables simultaneous feed level adjustment of a line of UniGROW360 pans with a simple turn of the crank. Unlike other systems, it is not dependent upon level floors.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Other people complain about the snow and winter but I enjoy it as long as I don't have to drive on icy roads. When I can stay inside and work on braiding a rug, then I delight in seeing our meadow covered with snow. Some fields are brown but the sloping ground to the Conestoga River is still white from the January snow.

My husband keeps himself busy in his woodworking shop. He is planing large cherry boards in order to use them for furniture. The other year he made a walnut bookcase but then we had no room for it and so it is in our son's house.

The bluebird houses that he made attracted bluebirds last year. We both enjoy watching them as they fly and perch on the roof of the houses. Some birdhouses were given away to other folks.

My neighbor and I go together to a Bible Study group. We often take an older lady along with us. She is very forgetful and must be reminded of the time that we will pick her up. So an hour before, I telephone her and even then she forgets her hearing aid or her glasses. Our group cancelled their January meeting and so we will cover two chapters this month.

Missionaries from Ethiopia shared stories of their lives with our church members recently. An informal afternoon was spent tasting fruit from their country and hearing about their schools. In Ethiopia there is 95% illiteracy. The wife is a teacher and the husband helps to build new churches. They do no have snow to worry about but rather drought. Everyone has their own weather problems.

¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups chopped nuts

Cream butter and sugar. Mix in remaining ingredients. Shape into one-inch balls. Bake at 400 degrees for 10-12 minutes. Roll in confectioners' sugar. Cool. Roll in confectioners' sugar again.

Variation: use coconut or finely chopped candied cherries instead of nuts.

Old-Fashioned Ginger Cookies

3 cups dark molasses
1 cup sugar
2 cups shortening
8-10 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons baking soda
1 tablespoon ginger
1 tablespoon cinnamon
1½ cups buttermilk

Heat molasses and sugar. Stir in shortening and then dry ingredients alternately with buttermilk, ending with flour, adding no more than needed to make a firm dough. Chill. Roll ¼ -inch thick. Cut out and bake at 350 degrees for 20-25 minutes.

ANSWER — John Probst, Springfield, wanted a recipe for mustard eggs. Thanks to Barb Gayman, Chambersburg, for faxing this recipe.

Mustard Eggs

10-12 hard cooked eggs
3 tablespoons prepared mustard
⅔ cup sugar
½ cup vinegar
1 cup water
Pinch salt

Mix all ingredients except eggs and heat just until warm. Add eggs and store in refrigerator for a day or so to develop flavor. A blender or hand blended make the mustard mixture smoother.

ANSWER — Lou Stryker from Haddon Heights, N.J., wanted an ethnic German recipe for potato soup, which she remembers her grandmother making with chunks of potatoes and a broth similar to vegetable or beef soup.

Potato Soup

5 cups cubed raw potatoes
1 cup diced onion
2 cups chicken stock (no fat)
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
¼ teaspoon dried hot pepper
¼ teaspoon cracked black pepper
1 cup light sour cream
1 teaspoon bacon bits

Bring to a boil and cook until potatoes are soft about 15-20 minutes. Add sour cream, heat just until smooth and hot. Garnish with bacon bits. Serves 4.

Winifred McGee

Almost every day, I talk to someone who wants to start their own business. The phone calls always have a truly optimistic note. Each caller has a wonderful idea — their friends have told them so — and they want to begin making some money using skills that they just happened to pick up through a hobby or interest of one sort or another. Their enthusiasm usually has them floating high on a cloud of optimism . . . no time for planning now! Moving now (before others steal the idea) is foremost on their minds.

But should it be? The rare second phone calls I receive indicate that hopeful optimism is great, but it doesn't go far if it replaces good planning in the operation of a small business. Luck is good at the carnival, when the stakes are a dollar and it'll all go to charity anyway. That's a small risk, much the same as getting up in the morning. Business is a big risk, though, — of money, time, and ego — so careful planning is needed to see that things go the way optimism said they should. It's easiest if you plan for success from the start of your business venture, but it's never too late. Taking time now to go through the following steps will help a start-up, or existing, business to start down the path of success.

First, stop and think. Is your (business) idea a good one for you? An important first step is to assess your personal situation so that you have a clear understanding of how well your business fits in with your life, overall. This involves asking yourself a series of questions.

• Are you willing to make decisions and see things through to the end, take criticism and rejection and be organized and self-disciplined so that you may reach success?

• Are you willing to work hard for your idea, and stick with it even if rewards are slow in coming?

• Do you tend to plan, getting things lined up before you jump into action?

• Is this idea likely to have the support of your family and friends, or might it add stress to your home life?

• Are you willing to take the risks necessary to reach your goals?

• Can you use existing resources, such as family labor, buildings, equipment and experience, to serve as the building blocks for your enterprise?

• Does the enterprise offer the potential for positive new experiences that might complement your current lifestyle and responsibilities?

Optimism is replaced by assurance when you ask yourself: Is your idea a good BUSINESS idea? You can get a good feel for this by answering some of the following questions:

• Just how clear is my idea and how clearly can I tell others about it?

• Who are my customers and what are their needs and wants?

• How do I connect with my customers?

• Who is my competition? If there is no competition, why not?

• How many people will buy my product or service? Is this number likely to grow or get smaller in the future? What will I do when this happens?

• What kind of equipment, facilities, and supplies will I need? How much will this cost?

• Who will do the work and how will it get done?

• How much money will I have to spend in the next year, and how much can I REALLY expect to make?

Careful thought and time spent in research should help you to answer these questions. Don't make the mistake of figuring that the questions will answer themselves!

After you assess your personal situation and do some research, if the business is still a "go," you need to set pen to paper (or boot up the computer) and plan how you'll actually do the business. A business plan is the best tool you'll have for your enterprise. It is a summary of what your business is, what your goals are, the results of your marketing and production research and your projected expenses and income. It does not have to be an epic. For a simple, one-person, part-time business with small start-up costs, a plan may take two sheets of paper. A larger, more complex idea that needs bank financing may mean putting together a document an inch thick.

One thing that all plans have in common is that the writer, that business owner, took the time and care necessary to plan for his or her success . . . not just hope for it. "Hopers" are here today and gone tomorrow. "Planners" are in for the long, successful, haul.

ANSWER — Beth Graves, Columbia, wanted a recipe for Depression Potato Soup made with ground beef, onions, and diced potatoes. Thanks to Orpah Umholtz, Valley View, who sent a recipe that her dad brought home from World War I. The family called it Slum Soup and made it a lot during the Depression. It is one of the best soups that Orpah has tasted.

Depression Potato Soup

1½ pounds ground beef
1 quart corn
1 quart potatoes, diced
Parsley
1 chopped onion
Salt and pepper to taste

Brown ground beef and onion in oil or shortening. Add 1 quart water. Add potatoes, corn, and parsley.

Cook 30 to 45 minutes until potatoes are done. Add more water if needed.

ANSWER — Tina Forry, Palmyra, wanted an old recipe for chocolate chip cookies, which are soft and round almost like a sugar cookie. Thanks to Eileen Dove for sending a recipe, which she writes was requested by Carol Grove.

Soft Chocolate Chip Cookies

1½ cups brown sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 cup evaporated milk
2½ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 package chocolate chips
1 cup chopped nuts (optional)

Cream butter and brown sugar until light. Add eggs and beat well. Add vanilla and vinegar to evaporated milk. Sift dry ingredients and add alternately with milk to creamed mixture; mix well.

Stir in chocolate chips and nuts. Drop by rounded tablespoons, two inches apart, on greased cookie sheet. Bake in 350 oven about 15 minutes or until delicately brown and firm to touch. Cool on rack.

ANSWER — This is actually an answer to several requests, for Betty Gruver, Hope, N.J., who wanted recipes to make fresh pork sausage, Italian sweet sausage, and Italian hot sausage in bulk, to a Kutztown reader who wanted a recipe for pepperoni made with venison or beef, and to Rose Diehl, Bloomsburg, who wanted a recipe for Venison and Pork Soupie. Bob Downey of Street, Md., writes that he makes a lot of homemade sausages and jerky. His bible for these projects is a book written by Rytek Kutas called "Great Sausage Recipe and Meat Curing." The best jerky recipe Bob ever is in the book. There are also recipes for ground beef and venison jerky, pepperoni, souse and much, much more. A free catalog of Sausage Making, Smoking, and Meat Curing supplies, equipment, and spices may be requested by writing to Sausage Maker, 26 Military Rd., Buffalo, N.Y. 14207 or call (716) 876-5521 or fax (716) 875-0302. A Shirley Walters of Lockport, N.Y. also recommends the Sausage Maker, but she gives the street addred as 177 Military Rd. We are not sure which address is correct.

Bob writes that when making 5-pound or less batches of jerky, he uses an American Harvest Dehydrator. For dried ground meat sticks similar to Slim Jims, American Harvest Jerkey Works is a great help. The company sells seasoning kits for various flavors of ground beef jerky.

ANSWER — Salome Fisher, 151 Buckwalter Rd., Lancaster, PA 17602, wanted the story of "The Legend of the Star" written about the star found inside an apple when it is cut crosswise. Thanks to Betsy Dehn, Spencerville, Md., who sent three versions of the story.

Version 1: A little apple tree was among some big oak trees whose branches were high above the little apple tree. All the little apple tree could see above was the big branches of the oak trees and stars shining through their branches. Thinking that the stars were on the oak trees' s branches, the little apple tree said, "God, give me some stars like them."

God said, "Be patient! Little one."

The little apple tree said, "But, I want stars."

Spring came and the apple tree was full of beautiful blossoms — white and pink. The little apple tree still wasn't satisfied and still wanted stars. God told him to be patient.

Summer came and the blossoms fell, leaving just little buds which turned into beautiful red apples. But the little apple tree still wasn't satisfied and wanted stars. And God told him to be patient.

Autumn came and apples fell from the tree. Once split open when it fell. (Cut an apple open crosswise and you can see a star). The little apple tree had lots of stars.

The Legend Of The Apple Star
Version 2

Once there was a child who wondered where the stars went in the daytime. He asked Grandmother, "Where do the stars go when the sun comes out?"

Grandmother smiles and said, "Each star lives in a little red house with no doors or windows. If you go outside, you might be able to find one.

So the child began searching for the star's little red house with no doors or windows that has a star inside?

When the child met a black cat, he asked, "Have you seen a little red house with no doors or windows that has a star inside?"

"No," said the cat. "Maybe the yellow duck has seen the little red house you are looking for."

So the child went to the duck pond and asked the yellow duck, "Have you seen a little red house with no doors or windows but with a star inside?"

"No," said the yellow duck. "But maybe the bluebird in that tree has seen the house you are looking for."

So the child looked up in the tree where the bluedbird was sitting and said, "I am looking for a little red house with no doors or windows but with a star inside. Have you seen it?"

"Yes," said the bluedbird, "I have seeen the house you are looking for. In fact, the little red house is here in this tree!"

So the child looked up and guess what he saw? A red apple. (Cut a red apple crosswise and see the star formed on the inside by the seeds).

Why Apples Have Stars Within

The little brown apple seed, so the story goes, pushed its way out of the ground, and to its delight discovered it was a small apple tree. She found the world in the daytime a wonderful place, but the nightime with its canopy of stars, was the most beautiful of all to her. With all her soul she longed for just one star.

The fairy queen heard her wish and told her to strive and work to grow strong and beautiful and her wish would be granted. The apple tree did just so; working hard to grow straight and tall, and finally, one spring day she was covered with beautiful pink blossoms. But best of all, when she dropped her blossoms, she had little brown baby seeds that would someday grow into apple trees.

She was so happy, loving and caring for her baby seeds, she forgot all about her wish. But the orchard fairy had not forgotten. The orchard fairy told the apple tree she earned her wish and she would make her a crown of stars. The tree said, "That was a foolish wish of mine. But if stars you have to give, give them, I pray you, to my baby seeds."

So that is why, if you cut your apple through the center of the circle side, you find brown baby seeds nestled in a five pointed star.

What To Do With Leftover Paint

(NAPS)—Paint is a vital part of keeping our immediate environment bright and beautiful. Consider these environmentally friendly ways to deal with leftover paint:

1. Always buy only what you need and use it up. If you only buy what you need, there isn't any leftover paint to dispose of.
2. Recycle the empty steel can.
3. Store paint properly by securing the lid and turning the can upside down. When properly stored, paint can last for years.
4. Donate useable leftover paint to churches, community groups, theater groups, etc.
5. Dry leftover latex-based paint before discarding it.
6. Save leftover solvent-based paint for a special waste collection program in your community.

For a free brochure, Managing Leftover Paint, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to the National Paint & Coatings Association, Dept. NAPS, 1500 Rhode Island Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20005.

Top Md. Farmer Honored

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. — Farmer Roy William Crow, 39, of Kennedyville, Md. will represent the state of Maryland when 34 of the nation's foremost farmers meet in Sioux Falls, S.D., for the 40th National Outstanding Young Farmer (NOYF) Awards Congress, Feb. 29 through March 3.

Four agricultural leaders will be selected at the event as the National Outstanding Young Farmers for 1996.

The annual event is administered by The U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce (Jaycees), co-sponsored by Deere & Company and Pioneer Hi-Bred International Inc., and supported by the Outstanding Farmers of America (OFA) Fraternity.

The National Outstanding Young Farmers event is the oldest farmer recognition program in the world. The program honors the achievements of a diverse group of enterprising farmers and ranchers across the United States.

Hundreds of past winners, dignitaries, and Junior Chamber members will attend the awards ceremony at the Holiday Inn - City Centre Hotel. On hand for the event will be 76th National Junior Chember President Kelly J. Wills.

Crow is the sole proprietor of a 500-acre dairy and grain farm and has won numerous breeding and production awards. The University of Maryland graduate and his wife Sue have three children.

The United States Junior Chamber of Commerce represents the voice of young men and women ages 21-39. The organization provides personal and professional development through civic involvement. There are some 140,000 members in more than 4,000 chapters across the nation. For more information, contact The U.S. Junior Chamber National Service Center at (918) 584-2481.

THE IMPORTANCE OF SIRE SELECTION IN PENNSYLVANIA BEEF HERDS

The bull provides the largest proportion of genetic improvement in a cow herd.

In fact, in herds closed to other females, the bulls that are selected represent 100 percent of the genetic base in the herd. The following table outlines some of the impact of sire selection.

The purpose of the station from the perspective of the consignor is to test the genetic selection and herd management program of individual herds in an "objective" environment. This provides information to the consignor on what the genetic potential is for economically important traits in beef production for their own cattle, as well as showing the consignor how their program compares to those of others. This is extremely important because genetic improvement is not based on an individual performance record, but rather how that record compares to others in the population. There is no other site in Pennsylvania that will provide that type of comparison.

What kind of contribution does genetic improvement make to the state's economy? It would be easy to simply extrapolate the performance records of the bulls from the station to their progeny over an expected lifetime. For weight gain, for example, this means we would take the deviation of a particular bull from the average of the others in the station, multiply it by the heritability of the trait, and multiply that value by the number of progeny the bull sires in his lifetime in an "average" cow herd. This approach has some scientific basis, and will, in fact, be fairly accurate. However, it also seems to reek of scientific "hocus-pocus."

Can we put the value of genetic improvement on a real-life, one producer basis? A demonstration project in sire selection in beef herds conducted by Penn State Extension in 1992 did just that. In this case, a herd was selected that was well-managed, but simply did not employ sound genetic selection principles for sires. The herd was randomly separated into three breeding groups of about 30 cows each. The owner of the herd used two bulls of his own selection (which did not include any individual performance information) and a third bull was selected for use in the project based on his own superior performance and the comparison of that performance with the average for his breed.

The results were the calves from the selected bull averaged 92 pounds more at weaning, which generated an additional $1,810 in sale weight for this owner compared to calves from the other two bulls. With these results, it is easy to determine that over the productive life of the bull a herd owner could afford to spend $4,000 more for this bull than he did for the other two and make money by doing so.

These results showed two things: first, the herd was very well managed or the genetic improvement that was available would not have been realized. Secondly, the only thing that was done differently in this herd was the use of a bull- no different feed, no different health program, no different markets. Does this mean that every bull that comes from the MAEC testing program add 90 pounds to every calf he sires compared to any other bull? Probably not.

However, it is important to realize the kind of bulls that are tested in this type of program. Potential sires are ranked for sale in test station sales using an index (with 100 as average) based on a number of factors such as weight, growth, and/or fat. Research at the University of Georgia with bulls and at Oklahoma State University with boars has shown there will be no difference in the performance of progeny between sires that were sold with an index above 100 to those that were sold with an index of 80-95. This may seem to imply there is no reason to test the bulls. This is not the case. The reason progeny do not perform differently is that these tested sires represent a selected group that are genetically superior to the average bull in Pennsylvania.

The selection process consignors use to send bulls to MAEC is, in itself, an important genetic advancement made available to the beef industry.The beef industry is generally segmented into the calf producers, a backgrounder or cattle feeder, and a processing/ distribution segment. The use of tested bulls is confined to the calf production segment. However, the influence of genetic selection does not end with the sale of a weaned calf by the calf producer. That genetic superiority can influence profitability in all segments of the industry.

As an example, the results from the 1994 PA Feedlot Test show how important this can be to the cattle feeder. In this test, calf producers from around the state consigned a sample of their calves to a central location to be "finished" on grain diets. The calf producers retained ownership on their steers for the entire feeding period, and profitability was determined by subtracting an estimated value for the calf at delivery (based on current feeder calf markets), feed costs, yardage costs, and vet bills from the value of the steer when it was sold at the packing plant.

The results showed the value of genetics to profitability in the cattle feeding enterprise. When the steers were categorized by profit, the traits of feed cost, average daily gain, breed, final weight, yield grade, and final quality grade were examined to determine which traits had the greatest influence on profit. It was very clear that the trait of greatest importance was weight gain. Those steers with the genetic superiority that would allow them to gain weight faster were the most profitable, and these differences were at the rate of $100 per steer. Where did this genetic superiority come from? It came largely from the sires that were selected to produce these steers.

The beef industry is in a period of change. The lines separating the traditional segments are becoming harder to define as calf producers are aligning themselves with cattle feeders and cattle feeders with packers in partnerships that depend on a uniform genetic base.

Pennsylvania calf producers must be able to take advantage of these management and marketing options. To initiate that process, the Pa. Feeder Calf Roundup was held in eight western counties of Pennsylvania in 1995. Under this program, producers were asked to precondition their calves under strict guidelines for vaccinations, other health management, and weaning. All of the calves (242 head) were weaned and fed for 20 days at one location, graded and sorted into uniform sale lots, and sold via teleauction (a process where buyers receive printed descriptions of the calves and bid on them through a telephone conference call with the calves never leaving the farm until they are picked up by the new buyer.)

Under this system, the calves must meet guidelines for weight and quality before they are sold. It is estimated these producers received $.02 to $.04 more value per pound of calf sold than they would have selling the calves as unpreconditioned, ungraded lots. However, variation in net income per calf among participants was large. The largest net income per calf was over $418 and the smallest was about $240.

Where did this difference come from? Of course sale price was a major factor since the prices on the sale lots ranged from about $.70 per pound to about $.60 per pound.

Another major factor was sale weight, which represented the sum of the ability of the calf to grow prior to weaning and the ability of the calf to adapt to feeding and grow during the weaning period. In the latter case, some calves gained weight at the rate of four pounds per day and others did not gain any weight during the weaning period.

The influence of the sires of the calves on weaning weight has already been established. Again, genetics played a vital role in profitability by contributing to calves the ability to meet size and quality requirements, as well as providing the potential to perform and produce valuable sale weight.

These programs are not fleeting: it is estimated Pennsylvania will sell 1,000 calves under these conditions in 1996 and this is a trend seen across the country.

These examples show the sustainability and profitability of beef production is highly dependent on the availability of genetically superior breeding stock. Calf producers in Pennsylvania generally have small herds, but the impact of good genetic selection has been well documented in these herds.

A recent survey among cattle producers in the state has shown that 75 percent of beef cattle owners depend on their cattle for a portion of their family income. Without sound sire selection, they become less competitive in the marketplace, and the environmentally sound, sustainable practice of using grasslands for profit through cattle will be diminished.

The Eastern Cattleman's Symposium

The next edition of the Eastern Cattleman's Symposium will be held at the Atherton Hotel in State College on March 28 beginning at 8:30 a.m.

Beef producers from around the state are invited to attend the symposium, and then participate in the rest of the activities of the Pennsylvania Beef Expo, which returns to State College and the Ag Arena this year.

The symposium, cosponsored by the Pennsylvania Cattleman's Association and Pfizer Animal Health, Inc., will feature speakers from around the country. Highlight speakers include Dr. John McNeil from Texas A&M University, who will discuss the "Ranch to Rail" program that has been so successful for Texas cattlemen; Dr. Ed Prigge from West Virginia University, who will discuss some basics of a good pasture program; and Lawrason Sayre of Churchville, Md., who is a purebred breeder and former regional winner of the NCA Environmental Stewardship Award. Lawrason will discuss his outstanding forage harvesting and feeding program.

Other topics include vaccination programs for the cow herd, using a health program in marketing feeder calves, and some fundamental concepts of fencing and watering systems for rotationally-grazed pastures.

Contact the Pennsylvania Cattleman's Association at (814) 692-4208 or me at (814) 863-3661 for more information.

SOW NUTRITION

It is important that brood sows and gilts get the proper levels of nutrients for successful reproduction. Feeding in excess is not only wasteful and costly but may increase embryonic mortality. A limited-feeding system using balanced, fortified diets is recommended. Individual feeding insures that each sow gets her daily requirements of nutrients without consuming excess energy.

As a rule of thumb, four pounds of a balanced diet per day usually will provide adequate protein and energy. During cold weather, additional feed may be required, depending on the type of housing. Heavy milking breeds or females that are still growing will require more total nutrients. With limit-feeding, it is extremely important that each sow gets her level of feed and no more. One of the following systems may be used to restrict energy intake of gestating females: daily individual limit feeding or interval feeding.

The daily feeding of a limited amount of each individual is the most popular system, and its success is based on having an adequate number of feeding stalls or space for individual animals. Group feeding on a daily basis is less desirable. The individual stall is best because it prevents the "boss sows" from taking feed from slower-eating or timid sows. However, individual feeding takes more labor if it is not mechanized. Self-feeding for given intervals (one day every third day) takes less labor but is the least acceptable method for two reasons: 1) it costs more to maintain sows, and 2) it is very difficult to control feed intake.

All animals are territorial and therefore like to have some space identifiable as their own. Use of individual stalls or maintaining small groups, especially during early gestation (through day 30), provides for this need. If gestating females are group housed, keep them in as small a group as possible (15 to 20 maximum) and separate gilts and first-litter sows from older and fat sows. Comfort and contentment of bred females is important to achieve maximum productivity from the breeding herd.

Feed Lamb Production

Feeder lamb production is a livestock enterprise adaptable to small-scale and part-time farms in Pennsylvania. Feeder lambs are purchased as premarket-weight lambs, fed to a desirable market weight, and then sold. The lambs can be purchased at less than 35 pounds and as high as 60 pounds. These lambs are usually marketed at 110 pounds through local auctions, slaughterhouses, brokers, and individuals. In recent years, direct markets, niche markets, tele-auctions, and marketing cooperatives have become popular for selling lambs. The wool is sold through local and national markets, brokers, and wool cooperatives.

Feeder lamb production is a good option for the small scale or part-time farmer because:

- No investment in ewes or rams is required.
- The investment for buildings and equipment is minimal, especially if existing facilities are available.
- Labor requirements are minimal.
- The feeder lamb business is relatively easy to enter or exit.
- Feeder lambs can use forages or crop residue that otherwise might not be utilized.
- Death loss is very low because the lambs are purchased close to weaning weight.

Two disadvantages to feeder lamb production in the northeastern portion of the United States are:

• Availability of feeder lambs is limited.

• Traditional markets are limited.

The best way for Pennsylvania farmers to compete in this market is to buy local feeder lambs, utilize cheap feed sources (homegrown forages or crop residue) and, most importantly, develop local markets (niche or direct).

Horse Boarding Facilities

If you are to have a successful horse boarding operation, your facilities should make a favorable impression on your clients. For the comfort and convenience of your clients, you should provide ready access to clean restroom facilities, a telephone for use in emergencies, and sufficient space to store tack and equipment.

The services you provide will determine the type of facilities you need for boarding horses. Site selection and the arrangement of facilities require careful planning. Your top priority should be the safety of horses and people. Other important considerations are cost, efficiency, flexibility, maintenance, and local zoning codes.

Housing can be as simple as three-sided sheds to protect horses kept outdoors. Open sheds should face away from the prevailing winds. Provide enough space to minimize the chance of injury. Timid or less aggressive horses can become trapped in small, enclosed areas or corners. The recommended space for horses in loose housing is 90 to 150 square feet per animal.

Individual box stalls are commonly used in boarding facilities and are preferred by many horse owners. The minimum stall size for most light horses is 10 feet by 10 feet, but 12- by 12-foot or larger stalls are better. All interior stall surfaces should be durable, free of projections and sharp edges, and easy to clean.

Sanitation, comfort, ease of cleanup, and safety are the primary factors to consider when choosing floor and bedding materials. Tamped clay and stone screenings are common surfaces for floors. Concrete or asphalt flooring is acceptable when used with rubber mats and traditional bedding, such as straw, wood shavings, sawdust, and shredded paper. Bedding must be free of harmful substances, such as black walnut shavings, which can be highly toxic to horses.

Proper ventilation is critical to prevent respiratory problems and protect the health of stabled horses. Well-ventilated barns allow a continuous exchange of air to maintain proper air quality and humidity and reduce odors. Sufficient ventilation usually can be achieved with proper placement and use of windows, doors, vents, and louvers. Forced-air ventilation systems may be necessary in horse barns that do not have sufficient natural ventilation.

Is Cattle Feeding For You?

Cattle feeding in Pennsylvania has been a fairly stable business. In the past 35 years, the number of cattle on feed on Jan. 1 has ranged from 75,000 to 89,000 head.

On Jan. 1, 1995, about 80,000 cattle were on feed in Pennsylvania, or one percent of the U.S. total. The cattle fed are a mix of beef breeds, crossbreds, and Holsteins or dairy beef.

Pennsylvania beef packers slaughter about three percent of the nation's slaughter cattle. These packers supplement their slaughter needs by bringing in slaughter cattle from the Midwest.

Cattle feeding is a high-risk business. During some years, an operation may not recover out-of-pocket costs. Entry into the cattle feeding business has few restrictions.

Although facilities range from small lots with a few head to modern facilities with more than 50,000 head, there are economies of scale in cattle feeding.

The cost of feeding per animals drops as the number of animals in the operation increases. Because of the high risks and the economies of scale that favor larger operations, beef-feeding enterprises are not as well adapted to small-scale and parttime farms as are beef cow-calf operations. In addition, less land is required for a cattle feeding operation than for a cow-calf enterprise.

Master Gardener Symposium Set

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The third annual Penn State Master Gardener Symposium is scheduled for Saturday, March 16, at the Farm and Home Center.

Designed to service both novice and professional gardeners, recognized horticulture experts are featured: Holly Shimizu, chief horticulturist and assistant director of The United States Botanic Garden; C. Dale Hendricks, noted plant propagation expert and co-founder of North Creek Nurseries; Gordon Hayward, noted Northeast landscape designer and author of "The Garden Path"; and J. Robert Nuss, professor of ornamental horticulture and woody ornamental expert from Penn State University.

The all-day event costs $35, which includes speakers' fees, up-to-the-minute gardening informational handouts, lunch, and refreshments. Registration deadline is March 11.

Seating is limited and registrants will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis.

Five hour-long presentations will further your knowledge on how to select or propagate, plant and care for trees, shrubs, perennials and annuals whether you are landscaping an entire yard or creating a small garden. Each speaker will allow ample time to answer your questions.

The symposium is sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension and Master Gardeners of Lancaster County. Call the cooperative extension office at (717) 394-6851 for information or for a registration form.

National Legislative Conference Set

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — The 1996 National Legislative Conference of the Adams County Farm Bureau will be held Wednesday and Thursday, March 6-7, at the Capitol Holiday Inn, Washington, D.C.

Congressional spokespersons and members of the National Legislative Committee will be attending the conference to meet with U.S. Congressman William Goodling to discuss agricultural issues before Congress.

The members of the committee will meet with Goodling at his Washington office and be host to a breakfast the following morning, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau. A special reception and dinner will be held Wednesday with a legislative guest speaker.

Representatives of the legislative body will discuss the results from attending the sessions at the Adams County Farm Bureau Annual spring meeting to be held Thursday, March 28, at the York Springs Community Fire Hall.

Case Announces Agreement

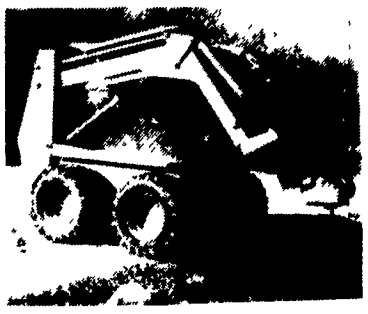
RACINE, Wis.—Case Corporation has reached a worldwide cobranding and supply agreement Alitec Corporation, a leading manufacturer of power attachments.

Case-branded Alitec attachments, designed to be fully compatible with Case skid steers, can be purchased through Case IH dealers.

Several Alitec attachments, including flail mowers, tillers, stump grinders and augers, are available as Case-branded products.

"All Case IH dealers who sell skid steers are able to offer these attachments," said Bob Weiglein, Case marketing manager, application systems.

"The agreement reinforces Case's commitment to supply more than just the prime mover," said Weiglein. "We're providing systems for customers rather than just equipment." For farmers, the agreement means they can purchase their skid steers and attachments from one source, with the guaranteed service and support they expect from every Case IH product.



Case Corporation's recent agreement with Alitec Corporation allows Case IH dealers to offer farmers a complete system solution with Case-branded Alitec attachments for skid steers.

Case IH dealer personnel are already being trained in servicing and supporting the co-branded products. In addition, all Case-branded Alitec attachments have passed Case engineering of key products to ensure full compatibility with Case IH equipment," said Weiglein.

Farm Credit Elects Chairman

LEWISBURG (Union Co.)—Northeastern Farm Credit announces the election of Don Cotner, of Don Cotner Farms, Danville, as chairman of the 1996 board of directors.

Cotner has served on Northeastern Farm Credit's board of directors for 14 years, representing the Lewisburg Division of Farm Credit's service territory. He is a partner in Don Cotner Farms, which operates an independent 300,000 layer operation which conducts wholesale and direct egg marketing. His operation also includes more than 1,000 acres of crop.

Cedar Crest Equipment Holds Open House

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Cedar Crest Equipment, located in Lebanon and East Earl, recently held an open house at the Lebanon Fairgrounds.

The annual event provides an opportunity for people interested in farm equipment to talk directly with company representatives of major farm equipment manufacturers, attend some equipment clinics, get a first hand look at some equipment, enjoy a lunch, and get an opportunity at some special open house discounts.

Companies represented included Uebler feed carts; Lancaster Silos; I.H. Rissler TMR mixers; Valu dumping waterer, LAPP energy free waterers, and Ritchie waterers; Lancaster Levelflo; Norbco Inc. livestock misting systems; Schaefer ventilation equipment and Pleasantaire, Zimmerman and Leading Edge fans; Show-East Stalls; Houle manure pumps, Patz feed and manure handling equipment; GSI feed bins; Noland Systems Inc., Fiberdome; and Pasture Mat cow mattresses.

In other business, Jim Smith, district manager for Patz Sales Inc., Pound, Wis., presented an award to Sylvan Witmer, a salesperson with Cedar Crest Equipment. Smith covers an area that includes half of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland.

As a Patz dealership, Cedar Crest Equipment covers an area encompassing several counties in south central Pennsylvania.

The award was presented to Witmer in recognition of the fact that last year Cedar Crest Equipment was among the top 10 Patz dealerships in the United States and Canada.

Witmer has been a salesman for the company for six years.

According to Smith the fact that the Cedar Crest performed so well was remarkable because it is a small-sized dealership for Patz and one out of 500 in the United States and Canada. "It's a major achievement for a small dealer," Smith said. "Our challenge now is to stay in the top 10."

Patz manufactures equipment such as silo unloaders, barn cleaners, conveyors, feeders, mobile and stationary TMR mixers, bale choppers, manure pumps, for dairy, beef and poulty animals, and it also handles a line of equipment for sawmill and industrial uses.

According to Smith, Patz is also looking more toward recycling and waste handling equipment.

He said Cedar Crest did so well because it can keep operating costs low with its two-person sales staff and still offer better service because its staff includes factory trained service people.

New Holland Names Sales, Marketing V.P.

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — New Holland North America, Inc. announces R.M. (Mac) Reeves has been named vice president, sales and marketing, replacing retiring Robert J. Nicolazzi.

Reeves, of Lancaster, began his near 30-year career in 1966 with then-Sperry New Holland as a field sales trainee/sales representative. He has been responsible for various positions in sales, product management, and marketing research.

In 1988 he was selected to head marketing services for the company's North American Sales Operations, and in 1991 became general manager of the Americas Sales Operations, his most recent position. Reeves holds a bachelor's in agronomy from the Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

New Eckroth Location To Have Grand Opening

A new farm store, shop, warehouse, and parts department will be unveiled Monday February 26, by Eckroth Brothers Farm Equipment, Inc. at Orefield in Lehigh County. Situated on five acres along Kernsville Road just west of town between Rt. 100 and Rt. 309. the 17,500 square foot building is the result of expansion by Dan and Eugene Eckroth that started nearly fifty years ago when their grandfather began in business at New Ringold. The Eckroths still have the New Ringold location and also distribute parts from their location in Bloomsburg. Their former location in Bangor has been closed in favor of the new facility.

A dealer for Case IH, Cub Cadet, and Massey-Ferguson, the Eckroth business has been built on a low-pressure sales approach with a friendly sales and shop team that makes every effort to satisfy customers.

The open house will run through March 2 with a special schedule of events of interest to all farmers. In the photo, Niels Ostergaard and Bob Zigler prepare to welcome everyone to their open house.

Wonsidler Is Association President

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Charles J. Wonsidler of C. J. Wonsidler, Inc. of Quakerstown was recently elected as president of Penn-Jersey Equipment Dealers Association.

Wonsidler is the son of Morris and Clara Wonsidler. His father had a dairy farm of 170 head of dairy cattle and a milk store operation.

At 16 years old, Charles was fully employed on the dairy farm. He milked, processed, and delivered their bottled milk.

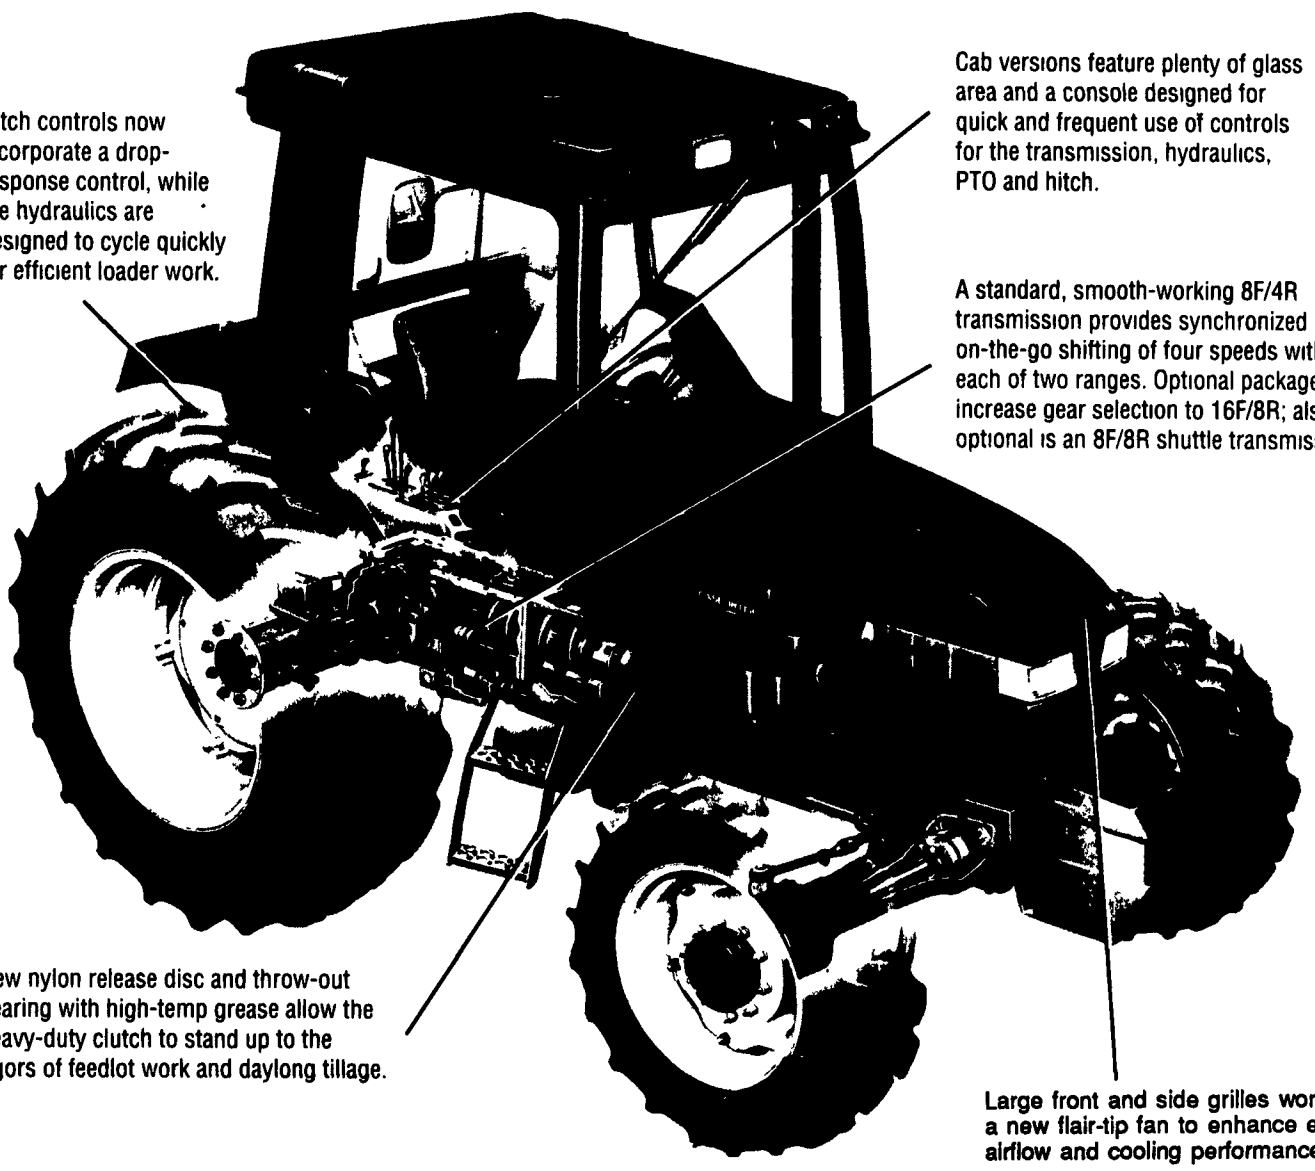
In 1959, Charles Wonsidler married Ruth and later had their daughter, Darlene. Also, in 1959, Wonsidler and his brother, Jesse, took over the dairy operation. In 1965, Charles began selling barn and milking equipment. In 1969, Wonsidler established his Allis-Chalmers dealership and built a new 50 foot x 100 foot building. At this time, he committed to being a full-time dealer of farm and lawn and garden equipment.

The AC dealership grew and developed good customer relations so that, in 1973, Charles expanded his building and doubled the operation. In 1974, Charles added New Idea equipment to his dealership. Demand and sales grew so that in 1977 Charles added a branch store with Allis-Chalmers equipment.

In 1979, Charles added his third dealership location in Oley with Allis-Chalmers and New Holland Equipment. Charles's nephew, Barry Sell, became store manager.

Charles serves as president until the next convention in November 1996.

A GENERAL-PURPOSE TRACTOR YOU CAN REALLY GET INTO.



Hitch controls now incorporate a drop-response control, while the hydraulics are designed to cycle quickly for efficient loader work.

Cab versions feature plenty of glass area and a console designed for quick and frequent use of controls for the transmission, hydraulics, PTO and hitch.

A standard, smooth-working 8F/4R transmission provides synchronized on-the-go shifting of four speeds within each of two ranges. Optional packages increase gear selection to 16F/8R; also optional is an 8F/8R shuttle transmission.

New nylon release disc and throw-out bearing with high-temp grease allow the heavy-duty clutch to stand up to the rigors of feedlot work and daylong tillage.

Large front and side grilles work with a new flair-tip fan to enhance engine airflow and cooling performance.

The Case International 3200 and 4200 Series tractors. Five tractors designed to the industry-leading performance criteria established by MAGNUM™ and MAXXUM®. These 42 to 85 PTO hp tractors set the standard for mid-range productivity.

To see which 3200/4200 tractor best suits your needs, visit one of the Case IH dealers listed here today. And while you're there, ask about Total Product Support — our commitment to the service and parts that add life to your tractor.

Leaders Exchange Ideas

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — The national FFA officers will learn about the latest developments in agribusiness from U.S. industry leaders across the country during a two-week series of business and industry visits. At the same time, they will update executives about how agricultural education and FFA are changing to involve more young people in increasingly diverse areas of agriculture.

The six officers, accompanied by representatives of the National FFA Foundation, will travel Feb. 26 through March 8 in Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Wisconsin, and Washington, D.C.

"The best way for our national officers to learn about current issues in agribusiness and the food industry is to talk to leaders in those areas," said Larry D. Case, national FFA adviser and coordinator of agricultural and rural education, U.S. Department of Education. "By the same token, the best way for industry leaders to learn about agricultural education and the FFA is to meet our national officers who represent our members across the nation."

The tour begins in Chicago for a meeting with Allan R. Johnson, president of Farm-Progress Companies, Inc. and 1996 National FFA Foundation Sponsors' Board chairman. The officers then will divide into three teams to visit a variety of FFA sponsors' businesses across the country and learn more about the industry of agriculture and the economic factors affecting it.

"Sponsors are a vital part of FFA, both in supporting our programs and activities and in representing the industry to our members," said Seth Derner, national FFA president from Bartlett, Neb. "We look forward both to learning from the leaders we will meet on our tour, and to showing them our enthusiasm for agricultural education and American youth."

Other officers participating in the business and industry tour are: Cody Wagner, national secretary from Banner, Wyo.; William Catania, eastern region vice president from Westfield, N.Y.; Joe Caffee, central region vice president from Geneva, Ind.; Clara-Leigh Horn, southern region vice president from Ashville, Ala.; and Andy McCall, western region vice president from Houston, Texas.

The U.S. tour follows the national officer team's return from a two-week visit to Japan sponsored by Mitsui & Co. (USA), Inc., as a special project of the National FFA Foundation, Inc. The Japan trip provides the officers with a better understanding of international trade relations and the importance of a global marketplace to American agriculture.

The national FFA officers take a year off from college to represent FFA members to officials in government, education, business and agriculture. As they travel during the year, they meet with members on the chapter, state and national levels and will be able to share information about agricultural issues and concerns with their fellow students.

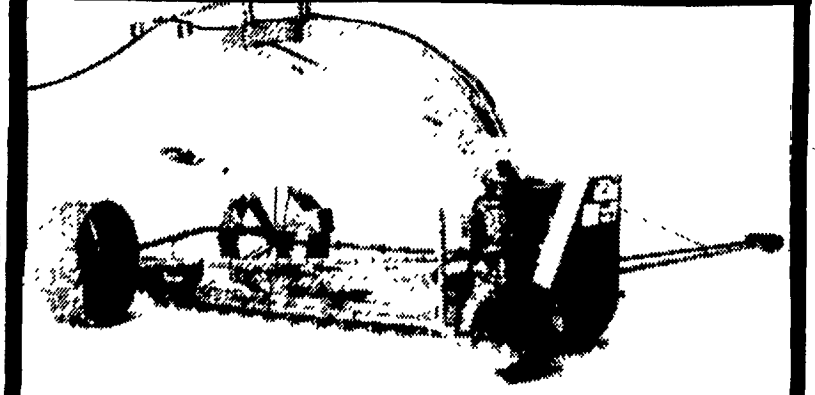
NEED A NEW UNLOADER? NO PROBLEM!

All parts go up the chute to install easily anytime



Model 98C Gathering-chain Unloader Increases Blowing Capacity

Big blower handles high volumes.
Four impeller blades adjust for close tolerance and efficient blowing.
Stainless steel blower is available.
Proven cutter-and-claw gathering chain provides high-volume delivery in frozen and hard packed silage.
Fully automatic unloading because the 98C is self-propelled on the silage without cable support. No winch watching!
Depth-of-cut control ensures high-volume delivery.
Automatic self-leveling for uniform silage removal, saving trips up the silo.
For 12 to 30 ft. silos.
Patz financing offers affordable rates.
Owners of Patz 61, 66, 98, 98A, and 98B unloaders: This bigger blower will fit your unloader.

Ask for details.

It's not too early to begin planning for storing your valuable feeds for 1996! Quality forages and grains become more important as margins decrease in the dairy and livestock industries.

When you think of "quality" feeds, you need to consider "quality" storage. Farmers all over the East (from Maine to Florida, and West to the Mississippi River), are turning to the poured concrete SOLLENBERGER SILO to protect the quality of their feeds.

Listen to what these farmers from VA say about their switch to a poured concrete silo for their hi-moisture shelled corn storage: "Even during the hottest summer in our memory, the shelled corn from our poured concrete silo has kept its bright yellow color and has not heated. We have the best hi-moisture shelled corn ever."

Signed: Keith Wilson, Paul Wilson, Gerald Garber, Cave View Farms, Inc., Weyers Cave, VA.

"THE BLIZZARD OF '93, THE SEVERE WINTER OF '94. THE SNOWY FALL OF '95, the HOT SUMMER OF '95 and THE BLIZZARD OF '96 all INCREASE YOUR APPRECIATION OF THE CONCRETE TOWER SILO"

MEMBER: International Silo Association/PA Forage and Grassland Council/AM Society of Agricultural Engineers/Crop Storage Institute.

NOTHING WORKS LIKE A SILO Sollenberger Silos Corp.

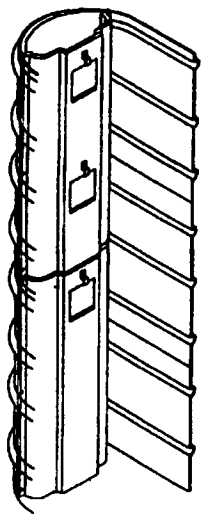
CLEAN SILO CHUTE

Innovative Design and Outstanding Performance combine to make this the premier system on the market.



Field tested to fine tune the silage flow from the unloader to the discharge point, eliminating dirty silo chutes.

Easy installation .
Retrofits many existing chutes.

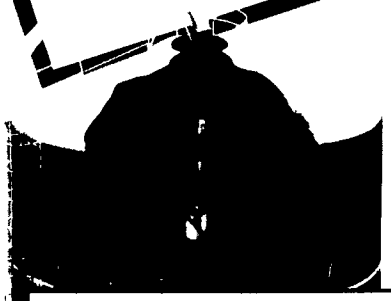
The Word Is Out!

B.U.C.S. Owner's Report
- ✔ Increased Storage Capacity
- ✔ Better Feed Quality
- ✔ Faster Unloading
- ✔ Lower Maintenance



The Jamesway Big Jim® B.U.C.S.™
(BOTTOM UNLOADING CONVERSION SYSTEM) is making big news!

Reports are coming in from B.U.C.S. owners everywhere. And they're reporting that their systems are delivering increased storage capacity, higher quality feed, faster unloading and reduced maintenance versus their old systems. Even in silos that had been retired! But don't take our word for it. Here's what your neighbor has to say about their B.U.C.S. System!

OWNER'S REPORT #51

"We have two B U C S. unloaders and get more material into the silos with much faster unloading And tests prove we have better quality feed We have had no problems and feel these unloaders will have much lower maintenance and service costs "

Melvin Kreider, Millstone Acres, Mt. Joy, PA

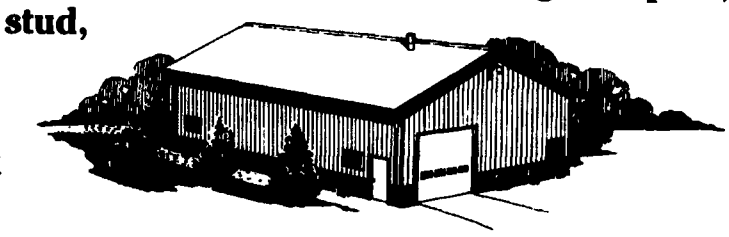
The Building you want.
The Lease you need.

Whether your new farm or commercial building is of pole, timber column, stud, steel or block construction; choose Telmark lease financing.



Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 30 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider the features:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated write-offs: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings. Could reduce tax liability this year.
- Low upfront costs: Beginning costs may be as little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms start aggressively at five years but may be as long as ten, twelve, or fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules match your cash flow. Payment options include monthly, quarterly, annually, as well as, skip or specially designed seasonal payments.

How do you start leasing a building from Telmark? Talk with a qualified builder to determine your needs and building cost. And call your Telmark representative:

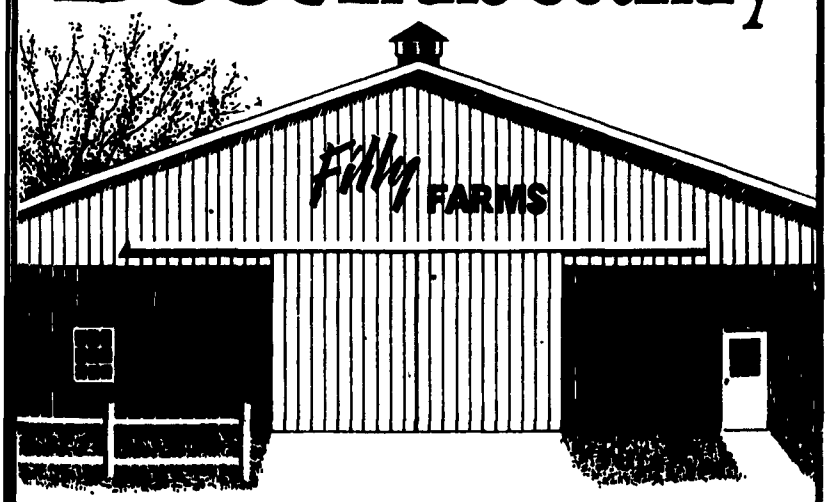
Best in the Country



For rough duty, rougher weather: Rugged, practical, cost-efficient Centurydrain™ roofing and siding.

Centurydrain is the roofing and siding to use for a strong, tight structure that'll carry you through the years of heavy snows, driving rain, and ripping winds.

Wheeling Centurydrain is a pure practically: full-hard, high tensile steel; galvanized for toughness, durability, and rust resistance; and with an exclusive drain channel for dry, snug interior.

Handsome appearance, too: bold shadow lines and choice of rich, baked-on colors. The best in the country is right here, Stop by.

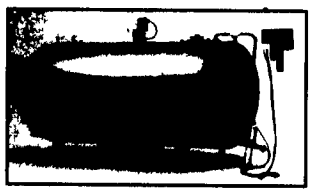
MUELLER DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Scroll-Compressor Technology
New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment cost is not the only cost of cooling milk

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller® milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31 000	$28 000
Cost of electricity @ 08 kW for 12 000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17 550	$22 850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48 550	$50 850
Savings	$ 2 300

HIGH TENSILE FENCE...THE FARMER'S BEST INVESTMENT
717-899-7617
BEAVER FENCE SYSTEMS

Darren Peachey, Belleville, PA
"The spring of 1995 was a turning point for our dairy operation as we moved from a high input operation to an intensive grazing system. Intensive Grazing has been everything we hoped it would be. Our cows are healthier and we have less labor per cow. The life of our machinery will be longer. All in all it spells higher profits.
The first thing we did was talk to other people who were grazing to get ideas that we could incorporate into our dairy operation. We hired Beaver Fence Systems to build high tensile fence around the entire farm and we use portable fence to divide the interior into paddocks.
Today's dairy economy does not allow us to keep doing things the way we have always done them. We need to keep looking for more profitable ways of producing milk and managing our land. Intensive grazing has made our business more profitable."

Cut stall clean-out time by 50% with a Millcreek Compact Spreader.

"The spreading efficiency sure outweighs the price. This is a wonderful machine. I couldn't be more pleased."
EARL SINKS - Brock, Texas

Say "Good-Bye" to back-breaking manure handling and cut stall clean-out time in half. Hook an affordable Millcreek Compact Spreader to your 10 hp garden tractor, take it right to the stall for easy loading. No more wheelbarrow.

Millcreek Spreaders last and last
Since spreaders are our specialty, we put more into each one. For example our 20-year guaranteed floor will never rust or rot. Positive chain drive provides excellent spreading action. And tough steel construction holds up to rugged farm use. Seven sizes, for 1-horse barns to 50-horse stables. PTO and ground drive models available.

For Snook, Standability's Most Important Factor

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

JERSEY SHORE (Lycoming Co.) — Some people say it's the rich river bottom soils that allow Ed Snook to take home the first-place ribbons in the Pennsylvania Corn Club's annual production contest. But according to the long-time corn grower and hog farmer, there are many factors that contribute to bumper corn crops.

"In the Five Acre Corn Club, I don't enter the same fields every year. I've had them in the Nippenose Valley on limestone ground and along the river. It's always pushed up to me that I have pig manure and river field, but we've had the Five Year Corn Club in seven or eight locations and we've won awards on all of them," he said.

In this year's contest, Snook placed first in the three-year average shelled grain class for the regular harvest size. His yield in 1992 was 191.8 bushels per acre. In 1993 he produced 201.6 bushels per acre and in 1994 he produced 194.1 bushels per acre for an average

Corn A Year-Round Business At Wolf Farms

JOYCE BUPP
York Co.
Correspondent

STEWARTSTOWN (York Co.)—Piles of icy snow still linger along the edges of the rolling fields at Wolf Farms, west of Stewartstown.

But inside the farm's offices, Dan Wolf contemplates the neon-green commodity price charts scrolling across a satellite monitor and makes plans for planting corn.

Corn is king at this southern York County crop farm, where Dan Wolf and his brothers Dave and Steve crop 1,000 acres of the golden grain crop along with additional acreage in soybeans, wheat, timothy, and popcorn.

Wolf, a quiet, well-spoken farmer who studies his business intently, is one of the newest directors of the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association (PMCGA).

Familiar to many corn producers through the statewide corn yield contest, PMCGA also works closely with Penn State in education and research work toward improved yields and cropping practices.

"The association helps to promote corn through education and advertising," Dan said, adding that the PMCGA's efforts are closely related to the programs and efforts of the National Corn Growers Association. "We also work toward enlightening and educating elected officials in the best interests of corn growers."

Promoting new products made from corn is another focus of the corn growers' association. Ethanol, an alternative fuel made from corn, continues to grow in volume of usage across the country. Tax benefits granted for ethanol development were a result of the ongoing efforts of the corn growers' associations, Wolf noted.

Two generations at Wolf Farms attend to business on the family grain operation. From left are brothers Dave and Dan Wolf and Dan's son, Justin. Absent from the photo because he was in the shop getting equipment ready was the third Wolf brother and partner, Steve.

CLUTCH REDUCTION FOR SMALL ENGINES
This may be a fast, efficient and affordable solution. Mount a flat plate on equipment, bolt engine and clutch reduction, onto plate, hook up P.T.O. & hydraulics and go.

Features
- tensaloy aluminum housing & cover
- carefully constructed clutch easily adjusted
- helical gears
- extra shaft for running hydraulics
- easy to assemble

clutch reduction shown with 9 HP Robin engine overhead valve

upright handle kit available

Can be installed on many late model engines, 7 to 20 HP, such as Honda, Kawasaki, Robin, Kohler and others 6 to 1 ratio, simple, efficient way to change tractor driven equipment to engine mounted drives, 540 RPM. Plus live hydraulics from extra shaft always runs when engine runs. Bring your engine to us, or order clutch reduction and install yourself.

NOTICE - We are no longer in engine repair business

Plain Type With Soybean And Grass Seed Attachment, And Press Wheels
Equipped With Fertilizer Attachment, Press Wheels, Grass Seeder, And Soybean Attachment

There's nothing more important to a crop than early even emergence. To get it, you need accurate, even seeding.
The 5300 has earned a reputation for its seeding precision, a function of its exclusive feed cup design and dependable disk openers. And, to improve placement of seed, the opener drawbars are heavier than on previous models. Press wheels and opener bearings are heavier for long life operation.
Along with accuracy, the 5300 gives you fast, high capacity seeding, so you spend less time refilling hoppers.
We have One New 5300 Drill 16x7 With Fertilizer Attachment, Press Wheels, Double Disk Openers, And Seed View Cups, for Extra Savings Purchase Before Year End

Binkley & Hurst Bros, Inc. Has A New Packer For You At Factory Direct Prices

Levels Firms Seals

FACTORY DIRECT

Farmhand WingPackers break clods, level seedbeds....then gently firm the soil to reduce air pockets and seal in moisture. Flat fold WingPackers range from 19' to 36' wide. Behind a disk harrow or field cultivator, they're an ideal final tool before planting. Behind a drill, they gently but firmly pack soil to increase seed-to-soil contact, improving germination for even field stands.

Quality Gehl In Stock At Binkley & Hurst Bros. "Let's Get Together Now!" Binkley & Hurst Bros. Has A Quality Gehl Spreader At Economical Pricing!

GEHL Box Spreaders

Even when it's empty... it's loaded.

Low profile design means easy loading by skid loader, front end loader or barn cleaner.

Gehl-Tuff Flooring prevents the apron from freezing to the floor, allowing manure to slide out with little resistance. Less apron pull means less wear and tear on drives and apron chains. One piece construction won't flex under heavy loads.

Extra-strong, T-Bar apron chains with an average tensile strenght of over 23,500 pounds keep the biggest loads moving.

Double Galvanized steel sides are corrosion resistant for long life. One-piece seamless construction won't catch material or leak.

Optional hydraulic endgate rests in front of the beater paddles to secure sloppy loads and keep heaped material out of the beater until you're ready to spread. An available litter pan reduces spills in the yard or roadway while enhancing the spread distribution.

Oscillating tandem wheels allow faster ground speeds while providing greater flotation. They're standard on the 325-bushel and 425-bushel models and optional on the 250-bushel model.

Twelve extra wide one-piece beater paddles are symmetrically positioned for broad, uniform spreads. Paddles are fabricated from tough, ¼" thick high strength steel. Bolt-on replacement tips are available to extend paddle life.

Constant velocity pto for continuous, smooth chatter-free power transfer when spreading on turns and reduced stress on the entire drive line.

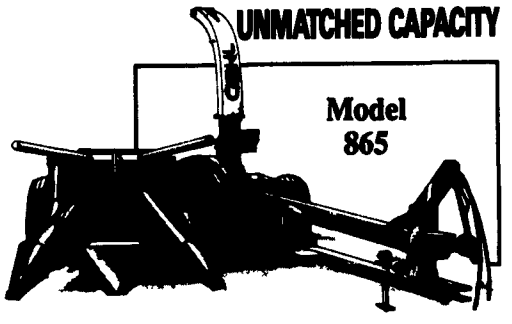
UNMATCHED CAPACITY

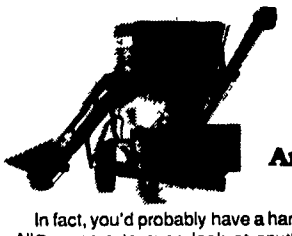


Model 865

Standard equipment includes an in-head hydraulic knife and cutterbar sharpening system, electric controls, one-way shear-bolt protection system, single station cutterbar adjustment and an over-running clutch

Model 865

Most Mix-All owners will never buy another.



Model MX125 And Model MX170

In fact, you'd probably have a hard time convincing Gehl Mix-All® owners to even look at anything else And why should they?

The Mix-All's big 21-inch wide hammermill features 66 reversible thin hammers that cut, rather than pound the feed to deliver a more consistent grind and ensure uniform mixing for a better feed conversion rate

Gehl's self-contained hydraulic system is designed-in, not added on. It provides the precision of infinitely variable in-feed attachment control to match tractor power for greater grinding capacity. Plus you get fast, smooth, trouble-free unloading with greater reliability.

And a wide variety of options and attachments lets you customize your Mix-All to fit any operation.

MAGNUM

Setting New Standards of Excellence

The MAGNUM Tractor has proven itself for RELIABILITY, DEPENDABILITY, and ECONOMICAL PERFORMANCE on EASTERN Farms since 1987. Others have tried to copy the MAGNUM - but MAGNUM remains

THE STANDARD BY WHICH LARGE TRACTORS ARE JUDGED.

When you buy a MAGNUM from Hoobers you get HOOBER SERVICE EXPERIENCE:

1) HOOBER has sold more MAGNUMS than any other dealer in PA, MD, NJ and DE...

2) HOOBER has (9) Factory-trained Servicemen; (4) in DE & (5) in PA.

48 HP* MASSEY FERGUSON 253

Tractor everyone can afford.

It's easy to see why the MF 253 has become known as the best bargain in the market. With the high-torque backup from its 48 hp* Perkins engine, it outworks tractors many horses larger. And uses less fuel than tractors with far fewer horses.

Plus it delivers the unequaled implement control of an advanced Ferguson hydraulics system.

Manufacturer's estimated PTO hp.*

At Last...

...a Boom Sprayer for multi-crop produce farmer that is affordable and will do the job from sweet corn to melon crops.

With features like...

- 24 ft. one-side boom that allows for 50ft. coverage between drive rows.
- Easy boom height adjustment from 2ft. to 7 1/2 ft. for sweet corn.
- Hydraulic leveling on the go allows uniform boom height from the crop.
- 280 PSI, 15 GPM diaphragm pump with power shaft for quick hookup.
- Adjustable wheel spacing and tongue height.
- Rubber mounted boom to absorb shock

With the high cost of chemicals, the right Sprayer is needed

FREE FINANCING FOR 4 YEARS IS COMING! The hay tool deal of this century (and next) begins February 19th.

Looking to be more productive and cut costs? Well, here's a time-saving, money-saving opportunity that comes along only once in a blue moon. From February 19 through 26, 1996, take home a new John Deere MoCo, round or square baler, pull-type forage harvester, or one of several other hay and forage implements* and you'll receive 0% fixed-rate financing* for four years. Interest free for four years! Sounds pretty good, doesn't it? And the more you buy, the more you'll save. So mark your calendar for February 19 and plan to stop by. But you don't want to wait too long... this offer expires February 26th.

* Financing subject to John Deere Credit approval and is available only from participating dealers to residents of Conn., Del., Ind., Ky., Maine, Md., Mass., Mich. (lower peninsula), N.H., N.J., N.Y., Ohio, Pa., R.I., Vt., and W. Va. Minimum amount financed: $1,000. Rotary Chopper and self-propelled products (and heads for those products) are not included.

NEW 6400 LOW PROFILE TRACTOR
with 2-Post, MFWD and 640 Loader
One Only - $41,132 FOB Allentown
Purchased During February 1996

Firestone The Leader in The Field

Super All Traction 23°

R-1

- New top-of-line bias-ply tractor rear, featuring our long bar/long bar design for tread stability, and heavy bar bracing to extend tread life.
- Long wearing and smooth riding, due to the more uniform, flatter contour of the long bar/long bar design.
- Proven 23° bar angle for traction, operator comfort for [illegible] cleaning.
- Bead and rim protector shields the bead to keep [illegible] from getting between the bead and rim flange.
